WETS AND DRYs CLASH OVER COMING ELECTION

Quiet Chillicothe in Turmoil with Election Wednesday—Drys Plan Parade for this Afternoon—Mayor Denies Use of Streets to Drys—Tent Collapses at Meeting and Wets are Charged with Cutting the Ropes—Rewards Offered for Illegal Voting or Vote Buying.

Chillicothe, O., April 27.—Excitement is at fever heat here over the impending "wet" and "dry" election in Ross county which will be held on Wednesday and while there have been no serious clashes both sides are on edge for fear that something may happen.

Conservative old Chillicothe, which has heretofore been able to cope with almost any kind of situation is shaken as it never was before and a day before the election the result is much in doubt.

For three weeks the "drys" have conducted a campaign with scarcely a protest from the "wets." It took four weeks of hard work to secure a petition and at first it seemed as if the county was certain to return a "wet" majority.

The businessmen have steadily refused to take any hand and very few signed the petition. The town was not placarded with banners and cards as had been the custom elsewhere, and up to three days ago one would scarcely have known that an election was to be held.

All this has now been changed. The "drys" opened a big tent in the city and although compelled to go to the outskirts, because all desirable locations were denied them they have packed it nightly. Sunday night a storm broke, and while it was raging the tent collapsed and a panic ensued. Men, women and children ran pellmell into the rain and nearly all had their clothing ruined. The "drys" immediately investigated and claim that the ropes to the tent were cut and offer $300 reward for the parties who did it.

The "wet" element deny all this and claim the storm caused the tent to sag.

The "drys" have planned a big non-voters' parade for today at 3:30 o'clock and all women and children from miles around have been invited to participate. Mayor Yaple issued a proclamation forbidding the parades the use of the streets on the ground that it might cause an outbreak. The "drys," however, have announced that they will take their chances and that the parade will be held on schedule time.

Another sensation was the resignation of Rev. F. H. Graeper, as pastor of the First German Evangelical church. Pastor and congregation disagreed on the "wet" and "dry" question and the pastor resigned.

The "drys" have caused two arrests for illegal registration and offer $2,500 reward for the arrest of vote buyers or sellers. Meanwhile the "wets" had A. W. Teter, a prominent druggist and "dry" leader of Bainbridge, arrested on a charge of "bootlegging." Yesterday afternoon Samuel W. Crabtree, a "dry" leader, had Bert Bybee, a saxon man, arrested on a charge of assault and battery and Bybee got right back by making the same charge against his accuser. All these cases are continued until after the election.

The "wets" and "drys" are both having big meetings. The "drys" are using their tent while the "wets" have the opera house, and both are packed.

FALLS 425 FEET TO DEATH ON PAVEMENT

New York, April 27.—Falling 425 feet from the thirty-fourth story of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s skyscraper on Madison square Thos. Mortimore, forty-two, was "instantly killed."

Mortimore, who was foreman of the riggers at work on the building, was supervising the erection of a scaffold four floors above the big clock on the 24th-st. side of the tower.

Hundreds of people in Madison square were watching him at work, and saw him fall to the balustrade of the balcony above the clock. Here the body poised for a moment, and dropped to the street.

WEALTHY MAN BUYS TOWN AND CHANGES ITS NAME

Escanaba, Mich., April 27.—Joseph Perrow, an Escanaba man, has declared a deal whereby he becomes owner of the village of Northland, in Marquette county. He bought twenty-five dwellings and two stores, all of the buildings in the place. Perrow's rapid rise from poverty to affluence reads like a fairy tale.

Ten years ago he worked in an upper Michigan woods as a lumber jack. He saved his money and now his dream to own a town is a reality.

The name of the village will be changed to Perrow.

FORMER SECRET POLICE CHIEF IS CHARGED WITH TREASON

St. Petersburg, April 27.—It is reported here that Col. Gerassimoff, until recently chief of the secret police of St. Petersburg, is to be arrested and tried for treasonable activity.

It is presumed that the charges are based on his alleged relations with the revolutionary organizations which M. Lupokine has declared he still maintains.

M. Lupokine, former director of the police, who was arrested on the technical charge that he was a member of the revolutionary organization, will be arraigned for trial April 28.

YEGGS BLOW SAFE AND GET AWAY WITH SPOILS

Spokane, Wa., April 27.—Stealing a team at Garfield, a gang of safe blowers drove six miles to the little town of Elberton where they cut the telegraph and telephone wires, broke into the Elberton bank, blew open the safe and took the contents.

Driving back to Garfield they left the team and started north on a hand car.

It is not known how much booty they got.

Sing Fong Lee, the Chinese violin virtuoso is decidedly the feature on the present bill at the Family theatre. Sing Fong doesn't deliver black-faced melody and trust to luck to make good. Oh my no! He plays such songs of the heart as "Ave Maria" from "Cavalleri" and Schumann's "Traumerie" and plays them with emotional depth too. As an encore he dashes off a bit of country hoo-down the sort they danced on the bare floor after the huskin' bee when

WANTED TO SEE WORLD AND WORK FOR LIVING

New York Heiress Goes to Boston and Works in Restaurant—Becoming Dissatisfied She is Ready to Return to Her New York Home—Identified on Train—Saw Pictures in Newspapers and Learned That Police Wanted Her—Mere Childish Whim.

WANTED (Ereob - hdl mfw mfw m New York, April 27.—Adele Boas, the 13-year-old daughter of Arthur E. Boas, a wealthy thread manufacturer, is home with her parents and glad of it; the mystery of her disappearance last Friday has been dispelled and the case resolves itself into nothing more than the escape of a child with a sudden desire to see the world.

Boston in particular, and a wish to be independent and work for a living. With a cut finger and dishevelled clothes, and apparently suffering from fatigue, she arrived home. It was generally believed she had been kidnapped and her father had offered a reward for her.

Yet, aside from the natural reaction that has set in, the girl is little worse for her wanderings. The Boas family physician spent half an hour with her and announced afterward that she was in perfect health. He said her trip was merely the result of a childish whim.

"She is growing," he said, "and she was seized with one of those unexplainable notions children have and followed the fancy. She had been thinking of going to Boston for some time. For two weeks she had been saving her money for the trip."

With the first shock of the meeting with her parents over, the child told of her movements in Boston. A position she had in a restaurant there was to have brought her $2.50 a week with board and lodging.

Saturday night and Sunday she had spent in the room she had rented. Her money by this time was exhausted, all but enough to get back to New York and she decided to return. She went to the South station and was approached by an elderly man.

"The police are looking all over for you, Adele Boas," he said.

"My name is not Boas," she replied defiantly, and boarded the train for New York, only to be identified at Stamford, Conn., after she had tried in vain to dodge the persistent questioners, even resorting to the ruse of speaking broken English.

The first clew to the missing girl came when Mrs. E. M. Upton telephoned from Charleston, Mass., and said she had seen a girl answering the description of Miss Boas while on a train between Boston and New York.

Mrs. Upton did not make it plain to the police whether the train was en route to Boston or coming to New York, but the Boston police were notified and later Mr. Boas received a telephone message from a man in Boston saying he had seen a girl answering the description of Adele and that she had boarded a train for New York. This started so much police machinery in motion that it was impossible for the girl to pass unnoticed.

An hour later she was in her home apparently safe and sound. She went away voluntarily, she said, under the impression that she would like to earn her own living, and seeing the newspapers and seeing the police were looking for her, she decided to come home from Boston alone without notifying the police.

The girl told the detectives who found her that she possessed $14 in cash, and she was seized with a desire to go away. She stayed in this city until after midnight Friday, and then went to the Grand Central station, where she boarded a train for Boston, where she arrived Saturday morning, found a furnished room and obtained employment at a restaurant. She worked only a few hours when she cut her finger and the manager discharged her for awkwardness.

Saturday evening she saw her photograph in a newspaper and a story of her disappearance from home, saying the police were looking for her. She determined to return

Sing Tong Lee, Chinese Violinist, at the Family Theatre.

"ma" and "pa" were kids. It brings across the big hand.

"The Wrong Mrs. Appleby" as conceived by the Frank Maltese company has plenty of action and a goodly portion comedy. Ida M. Howell, singing comedienne completes the professional bill.

The illustrated song is given in pleasing fashion by Miss Pauline Beck and there are motion pictures of humorous theme.

On the opening night of John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels, the manager of the troupe was double-extra busy, and while receiving the congratulations of his friends on the magnitude and merit of his gigantic entertainment he missed the unique comedy act of the Trio, and he was obliged to make inquiry: "How did the Lane Trio go?" The answer was as satisfactory as if Edison himself

New Turnip Dish.
A nice way in which to combine meat and turnips is the following: Select small white turnips, pare them smoothly and cook them until nearly done in slightly salted boiling water. Take them out of the water, hollow out the centers, leaving a cup-shaped receptacle, dust lightly with seasoning, and fill them with chopped cooked meat of any kind mixed with just enough rich gravy to make slightly moist. Brush over the turnips with soft butter and dust them with fine crumbs, put them in a baking dish with two tablespoonsful of butter, and bake them in a good oven until perfectly tender. Place them on a heated dish, and put a little of the melted butter in the pan of each. They should be baked two or three times with the butter while cooking.
