PRICE TWO CENTS

BROWN AND UP SINCLAIR

Having Fun With One Another by Enforcing Sunday Laws.

BOTH SPEND TIME IN PRISON

Brown Was Arrested For Interfering With a Public Meeting Being Given Five Days.

While Sinclair and His Friends Were Given Eighteen Hours for Sabbath Desecration.

Blue Laws May be Enforced in Delaware in all their Severity. Sinclair will get Busy When he Escapes From Jail.

By United Press Wire.
Arden, Del., Aug. 2.—Union Sinclair, the Socialist author and son of his associate (deceased) in the Upton single tax colony here, were a trifling regretful today that they had declined to permit George Brown, the philosophical anarchist, to spread his doctrines as he pleased.

For Upton and his friends have been in the Wilmington jail since 9 o'clock last night and will remain there until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The party fell foul of their own trap. In order to keep Brown from talking at a recent single tax meeting, Sinclair and other leaders in the colony had his arrest. He served five days on the stone pile at Wilmington because he would not pay a fine inflicted on him. Then he invoked the blue laws of the state and had himself arrested for playing tennis. Professor J. M. Garrod, of the Northeast Mutual Training school; Fred Windle, a Philadelphia lawyer; Don Stephens, a millionaire; Harold Ware, Hamilton Ware, Bergely Tobey, Frank Leach, Chester Lefthorn and Alexander Dublin, for playing ball, and Fred Steinhilber for selling ice cream on Sunday. They refused to pay fines when Judge Robertson found them guilty and he sentenced them to eighteen hours in jail.

Considered a joke by all of the participants, the matter became serious today when it was remembered that an avowed anarchist, who under oath testified that he believed in the law, secured a judicial opinion that the Delaware blue laws are legal. The result is likely to be that the laws will be enforced in every section of the state from now on and all that will be left for the natives to do will be to go to church or for a walk. Street railway systems, steam railways, the telephone and telegraph systems, in fact, every kind of industry, is illegal and can be stopped wherever the laws are enforced.

They will now be enforced everywhere if Sinclair and his associates, who were forced to work on the stone pile today, have their way.

"When I get out," said Sinclair, "I will organize an anti-blue law association. I will hire detectives and see that every man, woman and child in Delaware that violates these laws is prosecuted. I will, if necessary, arrest the judges, lawyers and public officials who play golf on Sunday and send them to jail. I will make those laws so obnoxious the state will have to repeal them."

TAFT TO VOTE NEW BILLS

Standpaters Report That the President will Veto Both Woolens and Free List Measures.

President is Reticent but Standpaters Act as Though They had a Tip.

By United Press Wire.
Washington, Aug. 2.—Republican "standpaters" who talked with President Taft today made the positive prediction that Taft would veto both the wool tariff revision bill and the free list bill if they reached him.

The president himself is reticent on the subject, but the confidence exhibited by standpaters was taken to indicate that he had given them some hint regarding his intentions. If the senate and house agree on the two measures, as now seems likely, and the president vetoes them, the prospects are that the present session will come to an abrupt end.

House Democratic leaders expect to secure a final vote on the cotton bill tomorrow. In the senate, according to agreements, a vote must be taken tomorrow on the bill for reapportionment of congressional districts. The house bill, fixing the membership of the lower body at 433 will probably be adopted, although considerable opposition has developed in a large increase over the present membership of 391.

Chairman Underwood, Democrat, Alabama, of the house ways and means committee, announced that if President Taft signed any of the tariff revision measures, the session would be prolonged indefinitely, to put through more similar measures.

Whitewashing Outrages.

Rockport, Ind., Aug. 2.—Authorities searching for two men for whom warrants have been issued following the whitewashing outrage here yesterday, their efforts when Mrs. Rettle Combs, whose home was attacked, died today.

Mrs. Combs was shot as she passed an open window. She had been ordered to come from the house and take her medicine. The woman placed two of her children under a bed and was hurrying to the crib where her infant child slept when shot down. A dozen men were in the party bent on whipping Mrs. Combs as two are said to have been identified.

HE KILLED HIS WIFE

Bert Highwarden of Urbana Surrendered Himself After Committing the Crime.

By United Press Wire.
Creston, O., Aug. 2.—After killing his former wife yesterday, after she had refused to remarry him, Bert Highwarden, colored, walked calmly into the office of the chief of police and surrendered himself with the statement: "She got what was coming to her."

The murdered woman had divorced Highwarden and had been making her home at Piqua, but returned yesterday to get some personal effects.

Tobacco Stock Dropped.

New York, Aug. 2.—American tobacco stock dropped fifteen points from 325 to 310 within ten minutes on the curb today, on rumors of injunctions by St. Louis stockholders, who are dissatisfied with the suggested plans of reorganization. They claim, the plans are intended more to squeeze the minority stock holders than to meet the conditions imposed by the supreme court of the United States.

Standard Oil was also five points on rumors of renewed litigation in connection with the reorganization plans.

SMART SET PARALYZED

Guilt Edgers Using Restoratives on Account of John Jacob Astor Being "Hooked"

By a Young Woman Whose Family Was Not in the Select One Hundred.

By United Press Wire.

New York, Aug. 2.—Two more exclusive members of New York society, especially the matrons with daughters of marriageable age, are using smelling salts and other restoratives in great profusion today to bring their nerves back to their accustomed state. The news that Colonel John Jacob Astor, multi-millionaire and the biggest "catch" of the season, had been "hooked" by an eighteen-year-old girl whose family was not of the "select 100," picked by the bride-groom-to-be's mother as representing "true American society," has simply paralyzed them. Meanwhile friends of Colonel Astor are not particularly surprised. He always had an eye for beauty and in his new wife he will have one of the most beautiful American girls. Despite her youth, Miss Madeline Force is wonderfully developed with clear strong features and a wealth of brown hair, a striking figure in any company. She "came out" last winter but cut little figure in society, which has been disposed not to patronize the Force family. Colonel Astor attracted paying her marked attention. Then the society leaders who have never been members of the "inner shrines," tried to patronize Miss Madeline, but with small success as she has a will of her own.

It is understood that the wedding will take place early in the fall and that immediately afterward the couple will start on a round the world wedding trip. It was intimated today that Colonel Astor's former wife, Mrs. Ann Willing Astor, who divorced him, will now demand complete possession of their children. Vincent Astor has spent most of his time with his father since the divorce and should Mrs. Willing, as he is now known, try to have him remain with her, a lively legal fight would follow. None of the members of the Astor family would discuss the rumor today.

A Vessel Sunk.

New York, Aug. 2.—A wireless dispatch from the captain of the steamer Massachusetts, enroute from Boston to this city, says that she ran down and sank the schooner Susan Pickering, stone laden from Stonington, Maine, to New London, Connecticut, in Long Island Sound early today. The Pickering sank in four minutes. Her captain and four crew were rescued by the Massachusetts.

RE-DECORATING.

UNDERWOOD STRIKES BACK

Amid Thunderous Applause he Denounces Mr. Bryan's Statement.

HE IS NOT A PROTECTIONIST

Statement That he Has Led the House into Protection is False.

The Speaker Knows it is False, the House Knows it is False and Mr. U. Wants the Country to Know it.

Kitchin Declared That Bryan is the Most Badly Informed Individual in the World.

By United Press Wire.

Washington, Aug. 2.—William J. Bryan was denounced as a falsifier on the floor of the house today by Representative Underwood, Democrat, of Alabama, amid thunderous applause from other Democrats. The Democratic chairman of the ways and means committee declared "absolutely false" the statement issued by Bryan last night, dubbing Underwood a protectionist.

"Bryan charges that the chairman of the ways and means committee, standing in the interests of protective tariff, has led the house into lines unworthy of any Democrat," he asserted. "I know that statement is false, Mr. Speaker; you know it is false, the Democracy here knows it is false, and I want the country to know it is false. Mr. Bryan insinuates that I have attempted to prevent consideration of revision of the steel schedule. That is absolutely false."

Underwood then called upon Representative Kitchin, Democrat, North Carolina, to reply to the assertions in the Bryan statement that Kitchin had denounced Underwood in the Democratic caucus for his alleged interest in the iron and steel business. Kitchin declared Bryan "the most badly informed individual in the world," and asserted that since the caucus in which he had taken a view opposite to Underwood and demanded that the iron and steel schedule be revised at once, he had come to believe his view was wrong.

He asserted that Bryan "was not reasonable," and that he never dreamed that any Democrat would "slandeer Underwood."

All Points Overruled.

Columbus, O., Aug. 2.—Diegle and his attorneys, John Connor and C. E. Belcher, and Prosecutor Edward C. Turner were about the only ones present in the court-room when the ruling was handed down. Diegle's wife and daughter, Patricia, who were present during the trial were at Sandusky. Judge Kinkadee passed upon each of the seventeen grounds contained in the motion for a new trial separately. In his decision, holding in each instance that no error had been committed.

Now the European war scars factories are modifying it to the effect in that there will be a fight sooner or later. This means later always.

DISCUSSING ADVERTISING.

After a day's session devoted to welcome addresses, presidential and secretarial reports and speeches, the delegates to the seventh annual convention of Associated Advertising Clubs of America in this city are today discussing advertising matters in departmental sessions at eleven halls in the city.

C. A. WHITE TO BE "CHICKEN FED"

Browne Cautions Him Against "a Little Place Called Joliet."

By United Press Wire.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The sordid story of the circumstances attending the sale of his vote for the election of Lorimer to the senate, was told this afternoon to the senate investigating committee by Charles A. White, former Illinois state representative.

"On the night of May 24, 1909, in his room at the St. Nicholas hotel, Springfield, Lee O'Neil Browne asked me to vote for Lorimer," said White. "I met him in the hotel lobby at 1 o'clock and he invited me to go to his room, Otis B. and Sydney C. Yarbrough came in."

"Had you been drinking?" asked Attorney Marble.

"We had some drinks served in the room, but nobody there was affected by them," White said.

A little later, he said, Browne and he were left alone in Browne's room. "I asked him how much I would get for voting for Lorimer. He said it was strictly under my hat but that I would not be chicken fed." Somebody rapped on the door and Browne placed me in the bathroom. A man entered Browne's room and I thought I recognized Beckmeyer's voice.

"Before he entered, Browne cautioned me to keep quiet in the bathroom, declaring that he was suspicious of 'a little place called Joliet.' He urged that I keep what I know under my hat."

"That was about all there was to it."

"Why had you reached that declaration?" asked Marble.

"I did it for the reason that I could get information for use afterwards for the benefit of the people. I would not have voted for Lorimer unless I was paid for it, because otherwise I could not make any exposure."

Known in Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 2.—It developed today that Mrs. Bertha Judell, found dying under a hotel window in St. Louis yesterday, was well known in Springfield. Friends here assert she was formerly Bertha Odam.

While she was very young, her parents died, and she went to live with her maternal grandparents. She took their name—Baies.

Judell, the dead woman's husband, is also well known here. He formerly worked in Virden, Illinois, twenty-six miles south of Springfield.

Steamer Shimnecock.

New London, Conn., Aug. 2.—The steamer Shimnecock, of the Montauk Steamship line, New York to Block Island, ran ashore in the fog early today off Long Beach, Long Island. All aboard were taken off by the steamer Manhattan and landed at Greenport.

So the Canadian navy ran on the rocks. That's what comes on having a navy you don't need.

REVISION OF TAX LAWS

Some Examples of the Way the State Tax Commission is Doing Business.

GAIN TO MANY PEOPLE

Ed. Hanley Will Not Indulge in Resentments but will Stand by Harmon.

If the Governor is Found Not to be Available Hanley Will Stand for Champ Clark.

Ex-Mayor Atherton of Newark Who Was Removed From Office is Again a Candidate for Office.

Columbus, O., August 2.—Democratic candidates for state offices, from the stump last year, promised the people if elected they would work for a revision of the tax laws that would more equitably divide the tax burden among all classes of property owners.

Here are some examples of what is being done by the state tax commission. Governor Harmon's appointments for a revision of the tax laws that would more equitably divide the tax burden among all classes of property owners.

The figures represent old and new valuations of the following properties for taxation:

Minister & Laramie Ry. (new), new $35,000; Ohio River Elec. Ry. & Power, old $25,010, new $125,000; Parkersburg, Marietta & Interurban, old $135,572, new $500,000; Portsmouth St. Ry. & Light railway, old $252,716, new $900,000; Springfield, Troy & Piqua Ry. old $115,710, new $400,000; Springfield and Washington C. H. Ry. old $20,000, new $70,000; Toledo, Fostoria — Findlay Ry., old $102,771, new $784,200; Mahoning Valley Traction, old $425,874, new $5,000,000; Toledo Ry. & Light (Railway property only), old $2,624,900, new $14,000,000; Stubsenville & Wheeling traction, old $81,000, new $500,000; Toledo & Western Traction, old $300,000, new $900,000; Toledo, Port Clinton and Lake Erie Traction Youngstown Park and Falls Street Railway, old $91,850; new $800,000; Youngstown and Sharon Street Railway, old $250,000, new $750,000.

Each increase means a gain to farmers, small home and other real estate owners for they have been paying most of the taxes that others escaped paying.

Eaw. W. Hanley, chairman of the Ohio State Central committee, in a statement published in the Cincinnati Enquirer recently, makes it plain that he is a loyal Democrat, notwithstanding he was defeated for United States Senator Atlee Pomerene, Hanley in last said:

"I am a Democrat firm and true at all times and under all circumstances. My only ambition suffered a collapse in the senatorial campaign result, and there is no office, position or honor I crave or would accept. My business and home life is pleasant in every way, and to the extent that mortal man can be satisfied, I am satisfied."

"I hold that personal considerations should be subordinate always to the success of the Democratic party.

"It is possible I may be a delegate from my district to the national Democratic convention in 1912, but it is of no consequence to me whether I am or not. If I should be, my vote would be cast for the present governor of Ohio, assuming that he will be the only candidate from the state. In the event he cannot be nominated, my alternative choice at this time would be Champ Clark, of Missouri."

A strong believer in organization, Chairman Hanley declared party workers performed a public duty and asserted they would be praised instead of vilified.

The work of the Democratic general assembly and the state administration was praised by Hanley as follows:

"The legislative session was turbulent at times, and surrounded with some unpleasant incidents at the close but much more was accomplished than seemed apparent from a cursory examination. Taxation, election and general administrative and financial measures, progressive and useful, were written into the statutes, and nearly every weather-beaten plank in the state structure replaced with better, and sounder material, designed to meet the wishes and the necessities of the people. All of these measures are now in process of execution by competent officers, and we can only hope that they will, in the results obtained, reflect the wisdom of the law making bodies and the executive.

"The Democracy of Ohio have won three successive gubernatorial victories, and at the last election all other state offices were secured by candidates upon the ticket, leaving the auditor of state a lone-some relic of the Republican army of occupation so long in power and so insistent in holding it against attacks. Democratic officers may not have reached the goal of perfection in transacting the business of the commonwealth, but it can be safely asserted that they are intensely earnest in an effort to develop system, efficiency and commendable routine application in their respective assignments. Reform is a much abused word, and I hesitate to use it—rather does it seem to be evident that great and meritorious improvement has been made in all departments, and to that extent at least, Democratic rule has been beneficial, for honesty and conscientious regard for an official oath counts for little. If there is lacking that business acumen and executive and initiative capacity inseparable from the safe conduct of public business.

Ex-Mayor Atherton, of Newark, who was removed from office a year ago by Governor Harmon because of his refusal to prevent the lynching tragedy that afflicted that city at that time, is again a candidate for reelection to the mayor's office. Should Atherton be "elected" him, the action would be deemed everywhere as a sanction of the crime by the citizens of the place after deliberation. This, of course, would mean Newark's further disgrace and one from which the city's business interests could not recover for years. The seriousness of such a situation cannot fail to create a heated campaign for the coming municipal election of that city.

The extravagant and unnecessary expenditure of public money, not only in manners clearly illegal, but by poorly organized or corrupt concealed misadministration, is to be made a scientific study with the object of ultimately reducing the cost of government to its lowest possible terms, thereby overcoming to some extent the enormous increase in taxes which have been made during the past 25 years in Ohio.

This aim is embodied in tentative plans which have been prepared by Attorney General Timothy S. Hogan. He will be an economic adviser to the entire state.

The purpose of the plan is that of keeping a vigilant eye upon the affairs of every political subdivision of the state to see that extravagant and dishonest expenditures are prevented. Scrutiny and analysis of the sums paid out by school boards, city councils, township trustees and various state, county and municipal offices which are usually covered in their general purpose fund appropriations will be the principal factors relied upon to which a set of rules may be formulated to determine how much return may be expected from the expenditure of a given amount of public money. Two attorneys in this department will be assigned to this task.

Governor Harmon, in advocating the enactment of the Smith one per cent tax rate law, contended there was extraneous money, and he asserted the mismanagement can be discovered.

During the past 10 years, the population has increased nearly 15 per cent, the tax duplicate only 2.5 per cent, and the amount of money raised by taxation increased 68 per cent. Doubtless if some officer years ago had adopted General Hogan's plan, tax rates would not have increased so fast.

Attorney General Hogan has given former State School Commissioner John W. Zeller a ruling in which he holds the state should not pay for Mr. Zeller's little junket to the meeting of the National Educational association, recently held at Los Angeles, California.

The conference began July 8, and Mr. Zeller's term expired July 10. He charged his railroad fare west and two days expenses to the state and turned in a bill approximating $50. After the expiration of his term of office he did not ask the state to pay his expense.

Mr. Zeller contended it was a customary expenditure and that it was an excellent investment of state funds when they are spent to assist of.

A GREAT FIGHT FOR A LIFE

Vigorous Work to Release Joseph Clary a Miner Entombed Since Sunday.

PUSHING A RESCUE SHAFT

A Telephone Instituted and Let Down to Him Through a Six Inch Drilled Hole.

The Line Carried to the Bed-side of His Sick Mother Puts Them in Communication.

Food and Drink Lowered to Him. He is Standing in an Inky Flood and the Waters are Rising About Him—Expects to Get Out by Tomorrow—Later Clary Rescued.

By United Press Wire.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 2.—Joseph Clary, a young miner entombed three days in the cave-in, White Oak mine, was rescued at 8:30 o'clock this morning and all but collapsed from exhaustion and emotion as he was carried off to the home of his mother, made ill by her son's experience. The digging of the shaft through seventy-eight feet of earth and limestone took three days, men and boys working in the shaft day and night.

Rescued at Last.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 2.—Joseph Clary was rescued this morning at 8:30. He was lifted to the top of the shaft at 8:30. A blanket was wrapped around him and he was removed to his home. He said he wasn't scared from the first as he knew his shaft would not cave in being of solid limestone. The water rose and was up to his armpits when R. E. Brown reached him.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 2.—Facing a new peril in rising water about him Joseph Clary, the miner entombed since Sunday morning in the White Oak mine, was assured early today that he would be rescued soon. Unless a new cave-in buried him a second time, Clary will be reached today through a rescue shaft about four feet in diameter that is being cut through a limestone stratum.

Thomas Clary, pioneer mine operator, father of the entombed man, has hardly left the top of the six-inch drilled hole which yesterday penetrated the prospect drift in which Clary is held prisoner. Father and son talk frequently through this narrow tube. Warm food and fresh air and hopeful assurance alone can be passed through it, but young Clary keeps his nerve.

A quarter of a mile away, in her home, Mrs. Thomas Clary lies ill, her illness aggravated by the harrowing experience of her son. She hears his voice, however, last night, when a telephone loop was strung from her bedside to the drilled hole leading to Clary and a small instrument, all connected up, was lowered 78 feet, where the son is standing upright in an inky flood that threatens to rise above his shoulders. He did not tell his mother that the water is rising even faster than a pump operated on the surface has been able to draw it up.

"Tomorrow, they will have me out of here, mother," he said over the telephone to his mother. "I am feeling well. This is not so bad when you know the boys are working to save me."

Four holes were bored before the rescuers knew they had reached the mine chamber in which Clary was entombed. They were chagrined to hear from him that the second hole reached the side of the drift but that they could not hear him calling.

"I was a bit discouraged when you abandoned that hole and I could hear the rumble of the drill further off," called up Clary.

This was the beginning of the third hole that he heard. The third drill never touched the drift tunnel and Clary was forced to stand in his water-filled cell while the fourth hole was bored, a full day after a successful drill had been overlooked by his rescuers.

Clary had not slept since the mine shaft caved in at about 8 o'clock Sunday morning. The water has risen steadily about him and today he called up the tube that the black pool seemed to deepen during the night. He came close to having a chum in his experience. His "bumby" was hoisted as soon as they heard the rumble that preceded the cave-in. The collapse came before Clary could be lifted.
