A HINT TO DRINKERS.

Some one asks how the bar rooms can be closed. Bar rooms are not kept for amusement. There is not a man in the state who would keep a bar if there was hope for a profit. Let every man who has brains enough to attend to his own business determine not to drink at a bar, and the business will soon be closed.

Bar-keepers in the city pay on an average two dollars a gallon for whiskey. One gallon contains an average of sixty-five drinks, and at ten cents a drink, the poor man pays $6.50 per gallon for his whiskey. In other words, he pays $2 for the whiskey and $4.50 to a man for handling it.

White would be best for all not to drink, some men will have whiskey, and my advice to them is: Make your wife your bar-keeper. Lend her $2 to buy a gallon of whiskey to begin with, and every time you want a drink go to her and pay ten cents for it. By the time you have drunk a gallon she will have $6.50, or enough money to refund the $2 borrowed of you, to pay for another gallon of whiskey, and have a balance of $4.50.

For every man ever stop to calculate the cost of drink drinking. At ten cents per drink, one drink per day will cost $36.50 per year; two drinks per day will cost $73; three drinks $109.50; and four drinks $146 per year.

A man came to me the other day to pay the interest on a note for $100, that I hold against him. Said he: I only receive $900 a year, and with a family to support, I am not able to pay my debts. I asked him to take a pen to make a slight calculation for me, and then asked him how often he drank at a bar. His average was three drinks per day, which by his own calculation amounted to $109.50, or sufficient to have paid both principal and interest of the note, and have $1.50 left.

CLIPPINGS FROM THE "PAPER WORLD." Paper blanks possess a great advantage over woven and cotton bed coverings for use in hospitals and in regions where the low fever or other venereal epidemics may be raging. The only way to get rid of infected woolen or cotton bed clothes, which, if not destroyed, may be the means of spreading certain diseases to a terrible extent, is to burn them—neither an easy nor an agreeable thing to do.

We have endeavored in the following figures to give a close analysis of the newspaper press of the United States as it existed at the close of the year 1875. First among our figures comes the total number of newspapers and periodicals published in the thirty-eight states, nine territories and in the District of Columbia, which foot up the grand total of 9,196. These are divided according to their periods of publication as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Period and Number. Includes Daily (792), Semi-weeklies (149), Tri-weeklies (69), Weeklies (7,143), Sundays (101), Semi-monthlies (750), and Quaterlies (40).

The adaptability of paper to numerous important and widely-varied uses is wonderful. What other substance can so satisfactorily be substituted for wood, iron, and such common materials to the extent that paper can be? It is impossible to find anything else, which like paper, may be so differently and dextrously prepared, as regards flexibility, thickness, strength, durability, imperviousness to fire and water, etc., that it can be readily made into sails, washbowls, dishes, bricks, napkins, blankets, barrels, hoses, stoves, wrapping paper, curtains, book-covers, newspapers, writing sheets, wrappers, carpets, coating for iron ships, flower-pots, boxes, covers for the leads of pencils, jewelry, lanterns, car-wheels, dies for stamping, uppers of shoes, roofing, and many other things.

THE COLOR OF THE SEA. The changes in the color of the sea have attracted the attention of seafaring men from the earliest times. They struck wonder the Phoenicians when first they ventured out to the Mediterranean into the Atlantic; they excited the astonishment of Columbus and terrified his companions while in search of the Indies; and they are no less a surprise to the modern navigator, to whom the march of discovery has left few unexplored regions in store. One of the most remarkable and most widely distributed contrasts of color is that which is known to exist between the intensely blue seas situated between the tropics and the green seas of higher latitudes. It appears as the result of recent observations, and more especially of a series of experiments made on board the steam frigate Gazelle that there is an intimate relation between the color of sea water and the proportion of salt held in solution by the latter. On comparing the specific gravity of green water to that of blue water, it was found that the latter is always heavier than the former, and, therefore, at the same time more salt, the two differently colored waters being supposed to have the same temperature. In other words, the greater or lesser intensity of the blue color of sea water may be taken as a direct index of its saltiness and of its specific gravity, so that when we observe the color of the water successively change from deep blue to a bluish green and at last to a dark green, we may conclude that the water has become at the same time less salty and less heavy.

The difference of colors between the blue and the green, in the ocean, may be owing to a greater or less proportion of salt, but our information gained from making two or three trips along the Atlantic coast, is to the effect, that the color of the water depends upon its depth. On soundings—as every old salt will tell you—the water is green, but the deep sea is blue. The water most strongly impregnated with salt, is supposed to be in the neighborhood of Turk's Island, where the strongest salt is made by solar evaporation. About the West India Islands and the Bohama Banks the water is shoal, and the bottom of light colored sand—is easily to be seen from the surface. The impregnation, therefore, has nothing to do with the color of the water in this region, and probably no where else.

THE COMING PAGEANT. FOREPAUGH'S ORATORY OF ALL SHOWS IN THIS VICINITY.

Such an attraction will be witnessed by those who delight in arduous and curious entertainments as has seldom if ever been seen here, on the occasion of the street parade of the Great Forepaugh Show. The great show is coming and the magnificent procession will be seen on morning of show day. It is free to all, it will pay to see it, and it is worth miles of travel to behold.

Imagine the oriental magnificence and splendor of the pageant. Sixteen hundred elephants, half a million dollars in sumptuous sun-bright chariots, beautiful in various dyes, richer than the opening dawn; living lions loose in the street 200 perfect prancing steeds; two grand marching bands; the grand march led by Prof. Russell's Military Orchestra, seated in the jeweled and resplendent classical Car of the Muses, adorned with artistic statuary representations of Olin, Melpomene, Terpsichore, Polytrone, Thalia, Urania, Euterpe, Erato and Calliope, followed by the Commander of the Faithful, accompanied by his Sultana slaves, jeweled warriors, and a royal retinue of richly-robed professionals, drives of black and white Camels and the gorgeous Car of India. Next comes the magnificent golden chariot representing the mystic rites of Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva.
