The recent thaw broke up the ice in the river below Bridge street, but the ice above at the Harbor remained firm and of a thickness of four or five inches.

We notice more frequent this season than for many others, injuries and deaths from the escape of deleterious gases from base heating coal stoves.

The mason work on the Ashtabula Bolt & Shaft Company's new building on Ann street would have been completed in three or four days, had not the present cold weather set in.

Our friend of the Sentinel bazar held a grand opening and display of holiday goods on Thursday, which continues until Dec. 25. He expects, we suppose, to make some hearts happy.

A levy of English sparrows made a fierce and combined attack, a few moments since, upon an owl, over in Toronto, and gave him such a pecking that his owlship fled, while his tormentors pursued him while in sight.

Although the TELEGRAPH is pretty well occupied with advertising matter, the reader will be pretty well employed to master the message and report of the Secretary of the Treasury, and such other matter as is furnished.

The Senior of the Ashtabula Store started in the midst of the storm of the week, for the great metropolis, for the purpose of additional supplies, which may be expected right along, whether the wind be tempered to the shore lamb or not.

Dick is making unusual efforts to make his stock very agreeable for the holidays. Some of his goods are received in unbroken packages from the other side of the water. Vases rich and varied are among the goods thus received, and disposed of at very low figures.

The new building of the Ashtabula Pump Company is completed with the exception of a small part of the slate roof which has been delayed by the late storm. The work of sitting up the machinery still goes on, and the work of manufacturing will be commenced at an early day.

The last few weeks have made the streets a little uncertain for pedestrians—perhaps not a little dangerous for elderly people. When the bonuses become brittle and tender a fall may cripple for life. Mrs. Hogle had a fall some weeks ago which, we learn, was of a somewhat serious character.

Those farmers who were caught with their potatoes in the ground, indulged in a gleam of hope at the soft weather of Sunday, and the thawing out of the surface, but they are now overtaken with another covering of snow, which, while it lasts may save them from frost, but midwinter is a sorry time for potato digging.

The North Eastern Mutual Aid Association of Ashtabula has now over 1000 members. This large membership speaks well for the popularity and management, as this Association has been in operation less than one year. A weekly indemnity for disability by accident is a feature of this organization that is becoming quite popular.

The original George Harris, of Uncle Tom's Cabin, delivered a free lecture at the Opera House on Wednesday evening last. The weather was very unfavorable, and the audience was small. The hundred or so who were present were well pleased with the lecture, and at the close contributed freely to make up a purse for the lecturer.

A narrow escape was run on Sunday morning last—as we learn from the Reporter—by Mr. F. Smith. While attempting to cross the creek on the ice he broke it, and struggled with the breaking ice, in the water for nearly one hour, when his cries brought help. A rope was thrown him and he was rescued in a very exhausted condition.

A recent purchase was made by Mr. A. G. Snyder of a couple of 60 foot logs, some four hundred feet deep, from Mr. Gilbert, from the former Bernard Nellis property, adjoining the premises of Supr. McCoy. The consideration is reported at $1,000 cash, and that they are intended for a homestead of Mr. Wm. Snyder. The property is very eligible.

Protection Engine and Hose Company are to give one of their select balls at Haskell's Hall on Tuesday evening, the 28th inst. The parties given by this Company last winter were attended by the belles and beaux of Ashtabula, and the management of each party was about perfect. All who receive invitations to those parties may depend on having a pleasant time.

The way poultry is sent East seems to carry the idea that its consumption is very much on the increase. Forty or fifty hundred is not uncommon to come up at a time on the A. & P. road. The quantity increases year by year. Last year the quantity was greater than ever before, and the Express company asserts that the present year surpasses last year. The poultry trade has been a growing and distinct trade.

The title of Newspapers may be somewhat questionable, in view of the space devoted by some of them to holiday ads, and the prospectuses of various papers and magazines. We cannot well avoid this disposition of space, even if it were not for the material aid afforded, but we have this strong conviction, that the embargo will be lifted ere long, and then all things will go on again as usual.

We were favored on Thursday last, with a call from Mr. A. Woodworth of W. Williamsfield. The Woodworths are a rather numerous tribe and many of them have held their places in that neighborhood. The first generation settled on the place now occupied by Mr. A. W. when it was an unbroken wilderness. Some of them to show considerable tenacity to life. Mr. Diodeat Woodworth, the father of A. W., passed his 90th birthday on the 6th inst.

The third annual county party under the auspices of members of the I. O. O. F., is announced to take place at the Opera House on Tuesday evening, December 16th. These parties have been largely attended and very pleasant occasions in the past, and no pains will be spared to make this one still more popular. No gentleman admitted to the floor without a lady, and only those in mask will be allowed on the floor before supper. Masks and dominoes may be procured at the Central News Room.

Sunday last was another of those exceptional days which have marked the year. The temperature was as mild and balmy as spring, and what remained of the two or three weeks—more or less—of good sleighing, was disposed of in short order. Before the day closed, the wind chopped round from the south with something of the piercing effect of a contiguity of a polar iceberg. More snow followed on Monday night and Tuesday with a promise of another season of slipping and gingham, and the activity of trade.

Our reporter made rather bad work last week in noticing the death of Mr. Clark R. Hodge, of Cleveland. Mr. H. was alluded to as the husband of the former Miss Bettie Fassett, daughter of Mr. J. Fassett of this place, instead of the former Miss Flora Fassett, daughter of Mr. S. M. Fassett, of Washington City. These young ladies—cousins—began married life within a week or two of each other—and while death has broken the union between Mr. and Mrs. Hodge, Mr. and Mrs. Worfolk, are in the enjoyment of their union and of health and happiness.

The merchants and business men of Ashtabula have taken possession, mainly, of the three newspapers printed in that village. The last issues of these papers contain little reading, the home advertising taking nearly all the space, and the News and Telegraph give much of their principal reading matter in the form of supplements. And this is no new thing for the merchants of that town. Of course, the next approach of the Holidays stimulated them to increase their advertising somewhat but they never neglect it, and keep it up year after year. These merchants and business men do this, and continue to do it, because it pays them. It is something they have tested thoroughly. By means of it they have attracted the cream of trade from a large portion of Ashtabula county. Advertising is business as much as selling goods over the counter is business. People will go where they are invited, at least, if the invitation is a standing one, and the inducements are flattering. Merchants who do business in this way sell the large cash bills, while those who do business "under a bushel" take the truck and dicker in a small way. Trade always flourishes in the town where the most people congregate, and where people get in the habit of visiting a particular town and in particular place of business in a town, they can generally be rated as steady customers. Horace Greeley was undoubtedly right when he declared his belief that it was money to the merchant to make his advertising bill equal to the amount paid for rent. "Success to enterprise everywhere, and especially in one's own town," is our motto. Genesia Times.

A DISHONEST DRUMMER WHO STEALS TWO HEMLOCK FROM A DRY GOODS STORE—ARRESTED AND HEAVILY FINED.

A theft of two small shoulder shawls valued at $1.50, was committed at the store of Carlisle & Tyler about six o'clock last Monday evening by one, M. F. O'Meara, a traveling salesman of the large importing house of James P. Parrell & Co., of New York. O'Meara is well known among the dry goods merchants of this vicinity, making frequent visits over this route, and carrying a large line of samples, the value of which frequently exceed $3000.

Last October he was here, and after a visit at the store of Carlisle & Tyler two pieces of satin valued at $15 were missed from the stock, and suspicions were directed toward O'Meara. When he visited the store of Carlisle & Tyler last Monday, he was closely watched, and such goods as he would be likely to take were left upon the counters. While the members of the firm were at tea, Mr. S. C. Talcott, a salesman, discovered O'Meara stuffing two small shoulder shawls in his overcoat pocket. Nothing was said about it until the proprietors were sent for. As O'Meara was leaving town to take the accommodation for Conant, he called at the store to bid adieu to Mr. Carlisle, when he was accused of the theft. He denied the accusation and even called Mr. Talcott a liar, much to the danger of his (O'Meara's) family. A search warrant was served, and his trunk which were about to be taken to the L. S. & M. S. depot were returned to the Ashtabula House, and the contents examined, and the missing shawls found. O'Meara was then taken before Justice Heath, when he pleaded guilty to the charge of petty larceny, and was fined $20, which, with costs amounted to $23. He claimed to be out of funds, but borrowed $10 of Landford Spill, and put up a new pair of shoes and pants for the balance, saying he had telegraphed to the house for money to be sent to Palmerville, and that he would redeem the clothing when the money was received. He begged like a hungry babe, while in the august presence of Justice Heath, and swore he would confess to the theft should God spare him until Sunday.

Instead of going to Palmerville as he claimed he intended to, he took the midnight train the same night and went East, leaving his trunk at the L. S. & M. S. baggage room with a note to the American Express Company agents to forward the same to the house in New York. He is a bold, bad man and has probably been stealing from his customers for a long time.

A TELEPHONE EXCHANGE. Steps are being taken for establishing a telephone exchange in Ashtabula, with good prospect of our citizens taking hold of the matter to make it a certainty. In Cleveland the instruments rent for six dollars per month, but it is expected to be less here, for we have few firms in Ashtabula whose business would warrant so heavy a rental.

Missionary Meetings.—The Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbytery of Cleveland will meet in the church of this place, on Wednesday next at 3 o'clock p. m., and continue its sessions through Thursday morning. A public meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, to be addressed by Mrs. Wilder, missionary to Southern Africa, and others.

A BOOK BINDER WASTED.—To a person with a well furnished shop—embracing a good reeling machine, or the requisite means to produce such, with business application and skill, might find at this place an ample field and abundant encouragement and remuneration. The entire country would be tributary to its support. In the county there are eight job printing offices and any quantity of blank work—reeling and binding, which now goes to Cleveland and Buffalo. Besides these sources of work the miscellaneous Magazine and other book work, would furnish any amount of business for such a concern. The chance is a good one, and some worthy, competent person should avail himself of it. Any one desiring to improve such an opportunity may address the TELEGRAPH.

Eda Tel.—The following statement does not quite shape with my observation: Four whitewood logs, one 10 feet and the others 12 feet long, and averaging 4 feet in diameter, were hauled in from Plymouth last Friday to Bugbee's saw mill. One of the logs, which Mr. Bugbee estimated to weigh from 5,500 to 6,000 pounds, was drawn up the Gulf hill, on a pair of horse sleds, by Mr. J. W. Rockwell's two horses.

So far from these logs averaging four feet in diameter, permit me to say that two of them of Mr. Bugbee's selection, scaled respectively 39 and 40 inches, and in respect to one of them being drawn up on horse sleds up the Gulf hill, the fact is it took Mr. Rockwell's team and a second to accomplish that feat. TAKE NOTICE. TO THE TEMPERANCE WORKERS OF OHIO.

The Ohio Anti Liquor Alliance, organized at Columbus, January, 1880, is preparing to circulate the Legislature for a stringent Local Option Law. Petitions to that effect, and will be sent to parties in all parts of the state. Persons desiring a copy of the petition will apply to Lock Box No. 3, Columbus, O.

A grand Mass Meeting of the citizens of Ohio will be held in Columbus on the 12th and 13th of January, 1881, to be addressed by some of the best speakers of the Nation. At the same time the petition will be formally presented to the Legislature, and the people make an earnest, united, persistent effort this winter to re-lease our beloved state from the cruel oppression of the rum power.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE. In accordance with the spirit of the above and in pursuance of a resolution adopted by Jefferson Lodge, No. 471, I. O. G. T., a mass convention is hereby called to meet in Jefferson on Wednesday Dec. 23d, at 2 p. m. The various churches and the temperance societies of Ashtabula County are requested to send delegates to this convention, thus ensuring a representation from all parts of the county. While these organizations are requested so to do, it is not desired in any respect to make it a delegate convention, and every one who feels an interest in local option is urgently solicited to be present and to aid in the movement to obtain it. We are already assured of the attendance of some of the ablest speakers of our county.

"ELI PERKINS" REMOVED, SATIRE AND WIT.

"Eli Perkins" does not profess laughter by telling anecdotes. He perpetrates his jokes freely, and he tells his jokes as if he were not to go home and tell how the speaker received them. Lamb's and Sidney Smith's old jokes, and how he described them—how they and Eli both being serious to the—how they surprised them with antithetical paradox.

It is not surprising that the humorist should be so successful in his own country, and that he should be so successful in his own country, and that he should be so successful in his own country.

This eminent humorist will lecture at Haskell's Hall, Friday evening, December 17th. The price of admission has been placed at twenty-five cents. No extra charge for reserved seats.

Tickets for reserved seats will be for sale next week at the Central and City News Rooms and at Shel. Allen's.

"THE RAILROADS AND THE PEOPLE."—Mr. F. B. Thurber, of New York, furnishes in widely read, and which has far to exceed the consideration of the people. It is entitled "The Railroads and the People" and it presents most forcibly the recent exposures of corruption in the great railroad monopolies of this country. The December number of Scribner's has had a very large sale in England some few years past, and its circulation must now be far greater as that of any English magazine, and perhaps greater. Its illustrations have made its way easy.

The price of Scribner's Monthly is $4.00 a year, and new subscribers who begin with the November number may secure, by the payment of $1 additional, nine back numbers, containing all of Part I of Schuyler's new romance history of Peter the Great, which the Rev. Edward Eggleston recently wrote: "It is indeed a wonderful story, needing no aid to the imagination to make it one of the most curious in human history."

For $2.50 extra, the two richly bound volumes of last year may be had in connection with a year's subscription. Booklet sent every where, or the publishers, Scribner & Co., 7 Broadway, New York, will apply the number and volumes.

Crawford County, Pa., City of Titusville. Personally appeared before me Peter Phillips, who, being sworn according to law, deposes and says: That he has been affected with Rheumatism, more or less for the past four or five years. That the pain was excruciating, and he could only move about in his own room, by taking hold of something for support. When the disease was in its most acute form, and the pain almost unbearable, he took a dose of Wilson's Lightning Remedy, which caused immediate relief, and the second dose, taken five hours after, made a perfect and permanent cure, and that since taking the two doses he has been free from the disease, or any symptoms thereof. Peter Phillips. Sworn and subscribed to before me this 9th day of July, A. D. 1880. John O'Neill, Notary Public. For sale by Swift and Thurber. It

A HEMLOCK. We do not believe there is a greater bumber than that of civil service reform. No party believes in it, and whatever may be said of the evils of party rule, politics are a necessity in a country like ours, and we should very much rather have it in the hands of our officials than in the hands of the people. We think a great deal too much is made of the necessity of taking men accustomed to position to be the head of any one department. The fact is, the work is done by subordinates, and the majority of them remain in office, whatever change there is in the administration, while there are scores of good men to fill any place the government has as now occupy such positions. It may be a pernicious sentiment, "to the victor belong the spoils," but as long as parties rule, so long will this principle prevail. The doctrine of civil service is simply a hobby for the independent press to make editorial use, and for parties to make high sounding platforms from. What we need are issues that can be made serviceable from their practicality, leaving these Cyprian ideas until the roses of the millennial may shall bud.

The dramatic modesty of Mr. Morse's Passion Play is redoubled by no trace of literary merit. Where it departs from the very words of the Gospel is pure, unadorned drivel, and when it drags the language of Scripture it is only to travesty the simplicity and the significance of the text. The other night, about a hundred persons seem to have sat patiently through what must have been to any intelligent auditor a grievous infliction. Apart altogether from the painful burlesque of sacred mysteries which such a representation would have involved, it is inconceivable that any adjuncts of scenic effect or dramatic interpretation would have redeemed the play from the stigma of insufferable dullness. The manager who "allowed to public opinion" in withdrawing it from the stage undoubtedly saved himself from a disastrous and disgraceful failure.

Will there ever be an end to the Democratic endeavor to explain their defeat? They have ascribed it to Tilden's lukewarmness and Kelly's treachery, to Barren's blunders and English's unpopularity, to Republican colonization and the Federal marshals, and still they remain just as much in ignorance as to what did it as the colored man was in regard to his misfortune. He was stooping over to get a drink from a creek wholly ignorant of the presence of a mischievous gnat, and in a moment found himself sprawling in the water. When he crawled out and was asked how it happened, he answered: "I dunno, 'sactly, boss; but 'pears to me as if de shore kinder 'hysted and froved me." The Democrats had better give up the attempt to explain the defeat of their party, and conclude that the country just "hysted and froved" it.
