

MOTHER'S DAY IN OHIO TO BE OBSERVED SOON

(Columbus Dispatch)

Governor Harmon will issue a proclamation designating the second Sunday in May as "Mothers' Day," and calling for a general observance of it. Mrs. Samuel L. Black, representing Columbus women interested in the movement to have such a day celebrated each year, called on the governor and secured his consent to issue the proclamation.

For the third time, the second Sunday in May—which this year falls on the 8th—will be observed as "Mother's Day."

Starting in 1908, at Philadelphia, the idea being that of a woman, Miss Anna Jarvis, it has grown with remarkable rapidity, until this year its observance will be nation-wide, and there is but little doubt that it will soon become an international festival date, observed by Christians the world over and possibly by Moslem and heathen—for it is the one subject on which all mankind can unite in common reverence.

Mother's Day is one day in the year set aside when every man is to perform some act honoring his mother, or her memory. He may wear a white flower of some kind, preferably a white carnation; perform some act of kindness to some person unfortunate; send a box of flowers to his mother, or give a flower to some other person or persons to wear. If it is impossible to send flowers, a letter may be written or a visit made. In some way, by some act of kindness or remembrance, tribute is to be paid to "the best mother that ever lived—your mother."

The day is not set apart for men in particular, however. Every man, woman and child is invited to join the movement; to observe it himself and to help promote the general observance of the day by getting some other person to observe it. There are no limitations of religion, denomination, race, color, age or sex; there are no boundaries. The entire world is invited to join in this movement, which in its short life has shown itself by its growth to be one which has appealed more quickly to the hearts of mankind generally, than any similar one originated in years.

Both mayors and governors have issued proclamations calling attention to the day; organizations have adopted resolutions binding their members to observe it, and the heads of some of the largest societies of the world have sent out special letters to lodges and members directing their consideration to this bit of sentiment and asking that the "mother's day" be observed—each man, from governor down, acting in memory of "the best mother that ever lived."

First observed in 1908, the first gubernatorial proclamation concerning the day was issued in 1909 by Governor R. S. Vessey of South Dakota. Other men in official positions who have officially honored the day are Governor Glascock of West Virginia, Governor Gilchrist of Florida, Governor Gillet of California, Governor Shellenbarger of Nebraska. Proclamations have been issued also by the following mayors of cities: Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, Mayor Means of Harrisburg, Pa.; Mayor Stoy of Atlantic City, Mayor Alexander of Los Angeles, Mayor Reburn of Philadelphia, Mayor McClellan of New York, the mayors of Omaha, Neb.; Hastings, Fremont and Council Bluffs, Iowa, and dozens of other cities.

Official recognition of the day has been made by the Modern Woodmen of America, with 1,000,000 members; Baraca societies, 500,000 members; the Grand Army of the Republic, the World's Sunday school association, and other large organizations, and the movement has been endorsed by William Jennings Bryan, Elbert Hubbard, Mark Twain, Rev. J. Wilbur Chappman, John Wanamaker, Bishop Whittaker, Dr. George W. Bailey, Joe Mitchell Chaple and others; and state organizations of Odd Fellows, Federations of Women's clubs, King's Daughters, Royal Arcanum and Young Men's Christian Associations.

Some will wear small flags in the coat lapel on Mother's day in memory of those mothers of the Civil and Spanish-American wars who gave sons or husbands in defense of their country.

In regard to wearing the flag the Mother's day promoters say: "We cannot decorate the graves of our heroic countrywomen, so, as a chivalrous and grateful tribute, every patriot is asked to wear the white flower and display the country's flag from home or business on Mother's Sunday, and the Saturday preceding."

NOTES

Of General Interest From The Gas Field

(Utica Herald)

The Helsey company is drilling on the Phil Evans farm in Union township.

A derrick has been put on the Nelson Myers farm 1 1/2 miles northwest of Lock.

The Columbus Gas and Fuel Co. got but 1/2 million on the Rhoadback farm near New Way.

The Crawford company's well on the Jonathan Wright farm two miles east of Highwater came in with 1 1/2 millions volume.

The Frank Baird well, four miles east of Martinsburg, which was being watched as being a possible oil territory, came in as a good gasser.

The Logan company has made a location near Shell Beach, south shore of Buckeye Lake, as near as possible to the four million Solinger No. 2 of the Ohio Fuel.

The Buckeye State company got another fine well, last week, on its Frank Jones lease east of Utica. It was reported to five millions volume, but that was an exaggeration as it was tubed with two-inch.

The two good wells of the Ohio Electric company are not sufficient to operate the power plant at Hebron, and coal is used under a part of the boilers. Another well is being drilled on the right of way near Buckeye Lake. The rig is lighted by electricity.

Another big well was drilled in last week, some four miles southeast of Utica. It is the property of the Everett company and is on the Mark Edman lease (originally Jacob Stout farm) east of the Leman Thrapp farm and north of David Layman. Its volume is between five and six million cubic feet per day, and it was necessary to use three-inch tubing. The Utica Gas, Oil & Mining company's Phil Bear lease adjoins this on the east.

A few weeks ago a well which was said to be producing oil in considerable quantity was reported to have been drilled in by the Upham company between Hunts and Morgan Center. It was on the Armentrout lease. The estimate was about fifteen barrels per day, but it could be only a guess as it has not been operated for oil, nor tested. Since that well came in, one has been drilled by the same company on the Edwin Ewart farm in the same neighborhood, which is said to show about the same capacity as an oil producer. On the Walden Clutter farm not far distant the Mohican company has a well from which a good deal of oil was hauled a few months ago for use in heating the pipe for bending it, on the big pipe line. Mr. Clutter has plowed a furrow to keep the oil from flooding his field, and any visitor can see a couple of coal oil barrels filled with the fluid setting beside the well. Many of the well in that general direction and further south-east give a good showing of oil in the Clinton sand. In the Clutter well the oil was found at the very bottom of the gas sand, the well being a good gas producer.

Methodist Mission In Rome And Its Head, Rev. B. M. Tipple

Since the visit of former President Roosevelt and ex-Vice President Fairbanks to Rome the Methodist mission is a much talked of institution. The settlement, which is situated in the heart of the great Italian metropolis, is headed by the Rev. B. M. Tipple. Dr. Tipple entertained Mr. Fairbanks during his stay in Rome, which resulted in the ex-vice president's contemplated meeting with Pope Pius X. being canceled. When Colonel Roosevelt arrived in Rome Dr. Tipple's visit to the distinguished American caused so many wild rumors to be circulated that the ex-president refused to hold a public reception planned at the American embassy.

WHEELSMAN OF BOAT SAVES LIVES OF CREW

Toledo, O., April 23.—Staggering from exhaustion and barely able to resist the insidious fumes which had overcome his companions, Ben Hesselback, wheelsman of the fishing boat E. E. Hall, lone-handed, worked the vessel over an 18-mile course and brought the three unconscious members of the crew into the Ironville dock in time to save their lives. Overcome by the leaking of burnt gas from the engine, Steve Morgan, William McNunn and Jerome Earl were taken from the cabin of the boat in a serious condition. Hesselback was at the wheel and did not know the plight of his companions until he went to the cabin, when 18 miles out in the lake, and found them lying unconscious. Though affected himself, Hesselback was able to call assistance when he reached the dock.

Kills Child by Carelessness. Zanesville, O., April 23.—Mistaking a glass of colorless medicine for water, Watt Ankrum, farmer, of near here, handed it to his son, Ross Ankrum, who was suffering from scarlet fever, when he asked for a drink. The young man drank the stuff and died a few hours later. The father is prosecuted.

EAST LIVERPOOL LADY WRITES ABOUT SANATORIUM

Mrs. Thomas Anderson, a well known East Liverpool club woman, has written an excellent article in regard to the new tuberculosis hospital located near Mt. Vernon and tells in the following interesting manner of the workings of the institution:

Many people do not fully understand the nature of the work Ohio is doing for the prevention and cure of tuberculosis. Other states have done much more than Ohio. Pennsylvania, New York, Colorado, California and even Illinois, have been building sanatoria for many years. Perhaps, in time Ohio, too, will possess a public sentiment that will insist on more being done for these unfortunate people. Perhaps in time some wide-awake, public-spirited man will do for Ohio what Andrew Carnegie and others have done for Pennsylvania.

Just now the only place Ohio owns where patients may be received is in the sanatorium at Mt. Vernon. O. This is certainly a splendid location, the buildings are beautiful and well equipped for treating a limited number of patients. But a great many more might be received and a vast amount of good be done, if the buildings were complete.

They need a hospital, they need a doctor's residence, graded walks and burns; they need in fact a great deal. This all takes money, much money. But when you go to the sanatorium and see the good that is being done, and realize the greatness of the work you will know that it is money well spent.

The state of Ohio is very fortunate in having as superintendent of this sanatorium Dr. C. B. Conwell. He is a man of keen intellect and a kind heart. He understands the nature of the disease he has to fight. He is broad-minded, careful and attentive to his work. The citizens of Ohio certainly owe a great deal to Dr. Conwell, and ought in every way to appreciate his work, and give him their support.

The essential features of the treatment are rest, fresh air and diet. They don't promise any miracles, but they have accomplished some very wonderful results.

This sanatorium was built to teach Ohio citizens how to combat the disease called incipient pulmonary tuberculosis, and the need of such teaching. Its work is, therefore, partly educational. Secondly it was built to do some way by which the residents of Ohio may be cured of the disease without being compelled to leave the state. Many people do not know how to live; through the necessity of daily labor and business cares they neglect themselves, paying little attention to the body, the brain or the lungs. The body is a complicated machine; the proper management of it is one purpose of this sanatorium. Its work is then partly experimental.

If some way can be found, and I feel sure it is possible, by which Ohio residents can be cured in Ohio, the sanatorium will have accomplished much.

Let me call attention to the class of patients which, by law may be received into the sanatorium, viz., those afflicted with incipient pulmonary tuberculosis, which means the earliest stage of lung consumption.

This disease is divided by physicians into three classes or stages, first, second and third, the physical conditions of each being fairly well understood.

The state sanatorium is built and equipped for the proper care of those in the first stage only, with the understanding that district sanatoria will care for persons further advanced.

The law requires that certain men of acknowledged skill in the diagnosis of incipient tuberculosis shall be appointed official examiners and for such physicians the fee of $5 is only a modest sum.

This sanatorium is also, as has been suggested, a school, not an infirmary, and a charge of $5 per week is made of patients. The cost to the state per capita is of necessity high, good food being one of the foremost features of the treatment. So in simple justice those who are admitted should be willing to help the state to that extent, especially when their own good health or perhaps their very life is at stake.
