Are The Heart Throbs Of
Dwight E. Sapp

Whose Untimely Death Occurred
Saturday Night

Following Surgical Operation
A Few Days Before

Was Prominently Connected With Large Affairs

And Was A Master Mind In Many Enterprises

The death of Dwight E. Sapp at the Mt. Vernon Hospital Saturday night was a great shock to the whole community.

Mr. Sapp had submitted to an operation for appendicitis on the Monday afternoon previous, and his condition from day to day following was entirely satisfactory, and when Friday had come it was the expectation that he would attain a recovery. Nothing of an untoward character developed until about noon Saturday when it was revealed that his heart action had become very weak, a condition that at once caused alarm, and as the afternoon passed on the alarming symptoms increased and by early evening it was evident that a fatal termination was close at hand. Death came at 9:20 o'clock.

The funeral service will be conducted at the home on North Main street Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Wm. E. Hull, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, officiating.

Dwight E. Sapp was born in Mt. Vernon Sept. 28, 1863 and his death is a distinct loss to the city in which he spent his life and during which he was a prominent and successful figure in several important business enterprises.

He was educated in the public schools of Mt. Vernon and at Kenyon college, Gambier, Ohio, and at an early age determined to equip himself for the profession of the law. While pursuing his study of the law, he was appointed county recorder to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Recorder Samuel Kunkle, and was afterward elected to the office for two terms, making his incumbency cover a period of over seven years.

Retiring from the public office mentioned, he having in the meantime been admitted to the bar, he opened an office for the practice of his profession and soon became a successful practitioner with a large clientele.

On December 5, 1894, he was married at Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, to Miss Alice Thompson, who survives him, together with a son, Allen Sapp. He is also survived by his mother, Mrs. William Sapp, and a sister, Mrs. Wm. E. Fisher, both of this city.

While Mr. Sapp was an able and successful lawyer, the bent of his mind was for large business affairs. He possessed a wonderful mental faculty for grasping the situations involved and mastering the details. His clear perception, far-sightedness and sound judgment were factors that counted immensely in bringing success to the enterprises with which he was connected.

He was vice president of the New Knox National bank of this city, president of the Coshocton Gas company, secretary of the Louisa Coal company, director of the Millersburg, Wooster and Orrville Telephone company, and secretary and treasurer of the following four telephone companies: The Utica and Homer, the Sunbury and Galena, the Johnstown and Croton, and the Pataskala and Hebron. He was also identified with the project of constructing an electric railway from Newark to Mt. Vernon and Mansfield.

The deceased was a member of the several Masonic bodies of this city.

In his personal relations Mr. Sapp was a delightful companion. He possessed a marked individuality, was a man of extensive information, wide travel, and was a keen observer, and always an interesting and charming conversationalist.

With the death of Dwight E. Sapp, there passed one of Mt. Vernon's strongest characters and ablest citizens in many avenues of life, and a void has been created that will be difficult to fill.

Bar Association Meeting

Hon. H. H. Greer, president of the Knox County Bar association, has called a meeting of the association for Tuesday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the court room to take suitable action on the death of Dwight E. Sapp. President Greer has appointed a committee on resolutions, consisting of Judge J. B. Wright, Mr. H. C. Devin and Hon. F. V. Owen. This committee will report resolutions and an opportunity will be given the members of the association to express themselves on the life of Mr. Sapp.

BANK TO CLOSE

Owing to the funeral of the late Dwight E. Sapp, vice president of the New Knox National Bank, the bank will close at 12 o'clock, noon, on Tuesday.

SERVICES

At The Assembly Largely Attended On Sunday

A Splendid Recital On "Book
Of Job"

Given In Evening By Prof.
John Duxbury

The Annual Meeting Of The Ohio B. Y. P. U.

To Occur Tuesday Morning
In The Auditorium

Sunday was a great day at Hiawatha Lake assembly. The weather was extremely delightful throughout the day and evening, and the services were largely attended. The crowds were made up largely of religious people, and nearly every person who visited the assembly attended the services.

The Sunday school session at 9:00 o'clock was a great feature of the day and the lesson was presented in a most attractive way. At 10:30 Dr. Stucker of Ottawa, Kan., the assembly pastor preached an excellent sermon to a large audience. Dr. Lincoln Hulley of DeLand, Fla., arrived at the park Sunday afternoon just in time to fill his appointment at 2 o'clock. He preached on "The Elements of the Blessed Life," using the beatitudes as the basis for his remarks. This address was the first of the series that Dr. Hulley will deliver this week on "The Teaching of Jesus."

The auditorium was filled to its capacity Sunday evening, when Prof. John Duxbury of Manchester, Eng., gave his recital on "The Book of Job." The evening was opened with a most delightful service of song, led by Rev. Mr. Griffith of Zanesville, assembly chorister. Among the numbers used was "The Glory Song," which was sung with power and enjoyment.

Prof. Duxbury's recital was wonderful and impressive. He gave his voice and manner to each of the characters in this well-known story, and carried in a unique way to the great audience each word and thought of the book. It was much like a sermon, presented by the living characters, the Lord, the Adversary, Job, his wife and his friends. Nothing like this has heretofore been given a Mt. Vernon audience, and the Book of Job was given a new meaning to those who heard Prof. Duxbury.

On Saturday evening Mr. Duxbury recited Dickens's Christmas Carol most interestingly, placing before his audience old Scrooves, the banker-miser and the other characters in such a life-like way that the story will not soon be forgotten by those who had the pleasure of hearing it. He closed that recital with Poe's "The Bells," and "Old Farmer Gray." In giving "The Bells" the wonderful tonal qualities and the complete mastery of his voice were shown. The lyric musical quality of the poem was clearly brought out, and each word spoken by Mr. Duxbury was full of the musical rhythm of silver sleigh bells, golden bells of the wedding, the clanging fire alarm bell and the deep toned church bell tolling its message. Mr. Duxbury received applause at the close of each stanza, this indicating how well the selection was received.

Assembly Notes

"Dollars and Sense" at 8 this evening by Wiggam.

Supt. J. A. Leonard of the Mansfield reformatory comes Tuesday afternoon at 2. His subject is, "Why These Broken Vessels?" Every man, woman and child should hear this great address.

The health of the campers has been such that Dr. Maynard, the camp physician, has had but little to do. The campers have enjoyed every minute of their stay.

Senator Brown's address Saturday afternoon was heard by a fair-sized audience. As an attraction, the senator did not come up to expectations, and his effort was not as brilliant as was anticipated. However, it is thought by many that he was afraid to "let himself out" just as strongly as he might have done before a western audience.

The annual meeting of the Ohio B. Y. P. U. will be held Tuesday at 10:30 o'clock. This is the spectacular feature of the camp each year. Business will be transacted and banners awarded. For some reason or other the meeting was not scheduled in the program this year.

As this is the closing week, the question of next year's assembly is being taken up. The management does not want to leave Hiawatha, but there must be earlier assurances as to the park than was had this year. Owing to the uncertainty that prevailed until late this spring, many persons who would have come to Hiawatha went elsewhere. If the management can be assured of the sale of not less than 500 tickets next season, and if it is certain before Oct. 1 that the park can be had next year, the management will arrange to hold the assembly here. Otherwise a new location will be sought—or rather one of the dozen or more points that have been offered will be selected. Mt. Vernon cannot afford to allow these meetings to be taken away, but can well afford to hustle to keep them here and make them grow.

Among the New Lexington people registered are Zane Dupler, Paul Moody, Truman Moody, Mrs. C. C. Priest, Mrs. Margaret Stuckey, Leon Moody and Edith Priest.

Mr. Jay M. Craig of San Francisco, Cal., and Godine Hunter of Louisville, Ky., are in the camp. Mrs. J. Robert Campbell and S. Anna Tindall, both of Beaver Falls, Pa., are visitors here.

Newark is quite well represented. Among those who have registered are J. A. Bennett, John Strobel, Hazel Young, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Dodd, Lucille M. Dodd, Jane Craig Bennett, Alice A. Simpson, Mrs. J. B. Jones, Sarah Bennett, Helen Sanford and Sara and Margaret Bennett.

No Match
For a Woman
By SADIE OLCOTT
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Jacques," said the wife of Jacques Chaboulez, "I wish you would not be so intimate with Pierre Fabri. He has Italian blood in his veins, and I don't place faith in those people."

"Pierre is my best friend."

"And you will not be on your guard against him?"

"No. You women take sudden dislikes. Ten to one Pierre has not treated you with that deference or consideration a woman craves from all men."

"He has treated me with the utmost consideration."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Well, since I must either tell you or leave you to stupidly put yourself in his power I will do so. Know then that before I married you Pierre proposed to me."

"Ah! Well, if a woman loves a man that another woman loves she will to gain her ends resort to any trickery to dispossess the other. You are a woman, and you look upon Pierre through a woman's eye. I am not afraid of him."

This was in 1870, when the Prussians were marching into France. One day a party of French soldiers stepped up to Jacques Chaboulez and arrested him. They took him to headquarters, and the general ordered them to search him. In one of his pockets was found a tiny ball no bigger than a pill. It was carefully pulled apart and proved to be tinsse paper. On it was written the position and strength of the different French army corps opposing the Prussians.

"That is sufficient," said the general. "Take him out and shoot him."

There was no formality of a trial. Jacques, who was at a loss how to account for the paper being in his pocket, was taken out and was about to suffer death when a volley came from a wood near by. It was fired by a line of Prussian skirmishers, who had arrived just in time to save poor Jacques' life. His French guards took to their heels. Jacques was a true Frenchman, but he would rather live among his country's enemies than die among his country's defenders.

The territory in which Jacques Chaboulez lived was from that time till the end of the war occupied by the Prussians, so that he had no cause for fear that he would be shot for a spy. Both he and his wife knew that the paper which had convicted him had been put into his pocket by some one who was anxious to get him out of the way. Mme. Chaboulez suggested that it might be her husband's friend, Pierre Fabri. Jacques was very wrath with her for intimating such a thing.

One evening when Jacques came home he found no supper, nor did he find his wife. There was not even a fire in the stove. Astonished, he went out and inquired of the neighbors if they had seen Mme. Chaboulez. After many inquiries he learned that she, in company with Fabri, had been seen going toward the Prussian picket line. Then he began to lament and to curse and to swear, saying that no man could be sufficiently guarded against the duplicity of women. His wife had been endeavoring to prejudice him against his best friend, and now she had gone off with that friend.

Nothing was seen or heard of Mme. Chaboulez or Pierre Fabri, and the deserted husband assumed that to get rid of him or to be where he could not get at them to punish them they had gone within the French lines. As the days passed and he heard nothing of them he made up his mind that his wife, in order that he might be shot, thus rendering her a widow and enabling her to marry her lover, had put the paper in his pocket that had so nearly cost him his life. This falling, she had gone off with Pierre.

One evening when he was almost ready to kill himself through grief and anger at the treatment he had received of his wife walked into their home. His first impulse was to order her away. Then it occurred to him that if she had gone away with Fabri she would not have returned. But he had not long to wait for an explanation. She threw a piece of paper on the table. He picked it up and read on it a confession from Fabri that he had put the paper in her husband's pocket and then informed on him. Amazed, he asked her how she had obtained it.

"I told Pierre," she replied. "I had long regretted that I had not married him instead of you. Then I proposed that we go within the French lines and live together where you would not find us. So we went through the Prussian outposts and on into the French lines. On the way I told Pierre that I knew he had placed the paper in the pocket that was found there, that I forgave him because he did it for love of me and that if his ruse had succeeded we could have been married instead of living together illicitly. He denied that he had done this, so I refused to go any further with him until he admitted it. He did so, and I had little trouble later in getting that written confession."

"Where is Pierre now? I shall kill him!" exclaimed Chaboulez.

"Pierre is dead."

"Dead?"

"Yes. I served him as he served you. I put information in his pocket for the Prussians and then informed on him for a spy."

"Pouf! No man can be so big a devil as a woman."

And he embraced her.

Sunday

Jacob Gann died at his home in Brink Haven Sunday, July 31. His death was the result of a fall which he received Friday afternoon. Mr. Gann was engaged in putting hay in his barn and was standing on a ladder which gave way precipitating him to the floor, producing injuries which proved fatal.

Jacob Gann was born in Lycoming county, Penn., October 3rd, 1832. He was the second child and only son of George and Sarah Bridgen Gann, who were among the early pioneers of Knox county, having settled on what is known as the Gann Homestead in 1824.

The deceased spent all but two years of his entire life—nearly three-quarters of a century—on the old homestead where he died. He leaves a widow and two sons, John and William, to mourn his untimely death.
