FIRE

Consumed Barn After Being Struck By Lightning

A large barn belonging to Mr. Hayes Wilson, located about five miles west of Fredericktown on the Columbus road was completely destroyed by fire with all its contents on Sunday evening as a result of being struck by lightning. At about six o'clock, the building was struck and before any one could extinguish the small blaze which resulted almost instantly, it had gained too much headway and nothing could be done to save it. The structure contained a great deal of hay, grain and a number of valuable farm implements, all of which were destroyed. Fortunately there was no livestock in the barn at the time, although a number of chickens were burned to death. Several weeks ago, the building was converted into a sheep barn and it was by the greatest of good fortune that there was not a large number of sheep inside at the time of the fire. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

The upper eye lid was badly cut and a deep gash was inflicted just over the eyebrow. The plug was blown out by a quantity of gas which had formed in the cask of cider, which had begun to ferment. Dr. J. F. Shrontz was called to render surgical attention.

HORSES

Burned To Death When Barn Was Destroyed

By Fire During The Electrical Storm

Sunday Evening About Five O'clock

A large barn, which had only recently been constructed, about one mile north of Brandon, belonging to Mr. John Colopy, the well known street car motorman of this city, was completely destroyed by fire with all of its contents, on Sunday evening as a result of being struck by lightning. At about five o'clock, a bolt struck the building on the roof and a fire started almost instantly and before sufficient help could arrive, it was beyond saving. The barn contained a large quantity of hay, the mows being filled, and a great deal of grain of various kinds, all of which was burned. The most fortunate part of the fire was the burning of two fine horses, owned by Mr. James Woodford, the farmer residing on the farm on which the barn stood. A futile attempt was made to lead the animals out to safety, but they were so terror stricken, that they would not move and as a result, they were burned to death. No one was injured in making attempts to save the property.
