The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church held a very pleasant meeting at the home of Mrs. J. M. Dean on Wednesday afternoon, October 12th. There were twenty-three members present and five visitors, four of whom joined the society.

A splendid program was rendered upon the topics for the month under the management of Mrs. Cassell. Miss Love gave a report of the District meeting at Homer and also read an original poem upon the trip which we think worthy of publication.

The poem is as follows:

Our Trip to Homer in Rhyme

There's a little town called Homer,
Not so very far away
Where the Mission District Meeting
Was held the other day.
And all the ladies of the District
That could arrange it so
Went for a time to hear and learn
Of the Missionaries' woe.
We have them here, we have them there,
We have them for away,
To foreign countries still they go
To teach and watch and pray.
And we at home should think of them
So brave and kind and true

Who left good homes, loved friends and all,
A Christian work to do,
So our little band must work right on
To make all that we can,
And do as the preacher said we should,
To help the other man.
Now we have almost forty members
Around town and country where
Our meetings are so pleasant
And our entertainment fair.
Some of our band worked in this cause
For many, many years,
And some are just beginning
With woeful thoughts and tears,
We had a Taylor in our band,
So straight and tall you know
She used to lead our meetings
Not so very long ago,
And we also had a Cassell
You all know her—most sublime
And the trip was very pleasant
For she chattered all the time.
Then a charming bride went with us
To join our little band,
And we felt so highly honored
As she is the noblest in the land.
Then another asked to join us
From near Cleveland, I've been told
She talked German and told stories
And her name is Madame Gould.
Then a preacher's wife was with us
She was in the carriage back
Most intelligent and witty
And we named her Mrs. Mc.
Then there was a lady with her
And she seemed so like a queen
Always ready and efficient
Some called her Lady Dean.
Then, too, was one who holds an office,
She keeps our books and money free
Always there where duty calls her,
Good and true is Mary E.
O, the day was fine, yes perfect
And the sky so blue above,
All expressed themselves delighted,
But best of all they had some Love.
Did we tell you about the dinner
That was spread before our eyes?
Chicken, gravy, sweet potatoes,
Light cakes, salad, pumpkin pie!
We could tell you more about it
If we only had the time
So will stop and study Persia
And not weary you with rhyme.

VITAL WASHINGTON NEWS

TAVENNER, "WRITER AND THINKER," GIVES US THE FACTS AS THEY REALLY EXIST.

(By Clyde H. Tavenner)

Washington, Oct. 19—Theodore Roosevelt's star of destiny is falling! While he was in the South dickering for the support of Republican delegates to the 1912 convention, a vigorous movement was started among the "genuine" progressives of the West and Middle West looking toward the withdrawal of all support from the former president.

Some of the leaders of the Congressional delegation of progressives quietly talked the situation over and decided not to permit Roosevelt to run away with the leadership of the national progressive movement. If necessary, to prevent the ex-president from using the progressive movement for his own personal advancement, these real progressives will publicly repudiate Roosevelt. They will direct public attention to the gross duplicity Roosevelt practiced on the people by proclaiming himself a progressive and then straightaway turning about and allowing the New York state convention—over which he had absolute control—to adopt a platform indorsing the Payne-Aldrich tariff jugglery and the reactionary Taft administration.

The New York platform squarely describes the Payne-Aldrich law as a fulfillment of Republican promises, because it states there was an average reduction of all duties of 11 per cent, which, if true, would constitute revision downward.

This is in contrast to the Wisconsin Republican platform which states unequivocally that "the Payne-Aldrich tariff is not a compliance with the pledge of the Republican party." LaFollette, Clapp, Bristow, Cummins, Dolliver are on record as saying the Republican promise of downward revision was not carried out. Therefore if Roosevelt was right, the progressives who declared otherwise are members of the Ananias club, which they emphatically deny, and which the public does not believe.

The Roosevelt-made platform contains still another paragraph which makes T. R. impossible as leader of the genuine progressives in 1912, to wit: "We enthusiastically indorse the progressive and statesmanlike leadership of William Howard Taft."

The genuine progressives "enthusiastically" do NOT indorse the Taft administration. Progressives like LaFollette condemn Taft for having filled his cabinet with representatives of the special interests; for having indorsed Cannon as another Lincoln, Aldrich as the greatest living financier and the tariff law as the best tariff bill ever passed; and last but not least, for having throughout his administration sought counsel from men like Aldrich, Guggenheim, Stephenson, Dalzell and Fordney, while at the same time refusing to give even respectful notice to the suggestions of progressive Republicans.

Through indorsing the tariff and Taft, Roosevelt has queered himself with the progressives. They will not permit him to enter the 1912 progressive movement, much less to bring in with him Mr. Taft and Elihu Root, the messenger boy of Wall Street.

"I have no defense to make of the Payne law because it needs none," says Mr. Cannon. We move to amend by substituting "admits of" for "needs."

Champ Clark will have no opposition for the Speakership. The prospect of beholding him driving a pair of Missouri mules down Pennsylvania avenue has unified the Democratic membership of the House of Representatives.

Roosevelt beat Jim Sherman for chairman of the New York Republican convention, but if Jim will keep cool and watch he will behold the most inspiring collapse of political furniture in November that New York eyes ever gazed upon.

"Some men have said we passed a good tariff law," said Senator Cummins recently. "I don't think so. Leaders of the Senate and House deliberately repudiated the Republican platform and revised the tariff in the interest of the manufacturers and big corporations and not in the interest of the American public. Whenever the American people have opportunity to pass judgment on the tariff bill they will consign the men who made it to eternal infamy."

The overshadowing question in this campaign is the cost of living. The workman, the clerk, the salaried teacher and the small tradesman can no longer bring up his family in reasonable comfort. Republican tariffs and policies of extravagance have increased the cost of food, clothing and shelter beyond endurance.

The Republican party has been in control of the government for practically fifty years. Just previous to every election in that time a favorite deception of the leaders was to inform the public that in the event of Democratic success, securities of all kinds would depreciate in the markets, accommodations would be withdrawn from the bankers of the country and disaster would surely follow. This trick has been worked for all that it is worth, and it can not be denied that it had its influence upon the voters, and many an election was carried thereby by the Republicans. Just after the recent election in Maine, when the Democrats carried the state by an overwhelming vote, all legitimate stocks, bonds and other securities at once rallied from sluggishness and depression and gained a notable appreciation. Not only the masses but the business interests now distrust the Republican organization. It has been clearly proven the Republican organization has been worked for almost half a century against the interests of the people in behalf of the money trust and Big Business. The Democratic party is not an enemy of the legitimate business interests, and the public as never before now realizes it.

"If our prohibitive tariff were made more competitive, if it were actually lowered," declares the Massachusetts Democratic platform, "more goods would be imported, prices would fall and yet the revenue would increase. We demand the removal of taxes upon foodstuffs and other necessities of life, a tariff low enough on all manufactured articles to prevent the control of our market by the trusts and to impose the check of competition upon inordinate profits of capital."

FARMS FOR SALE—50 acres, 3 1/2 miles from city, price $3,500. Also a stock and grain farm, containing 250 acres, has four producing gas wells. New 9-room dwelling. Price $52 per acre. Stream & Rimer. tf

Indispensible in Emergencies

THE sickness of a valuable animal on the farm demands prompt remedies.

It's a case for the veterinary—a case where minutes count. That's where the Bell Service shows its value to the farmer.

By means of the telephone the veterinary is reached, and he at once tells the farmer what to do until he arrives.

No far-sighted farmer gets along without the protection of the Bell Service.

He can never tell when it is going to save him from serious loss. Besides, he has daily proof of its usefulness.
