

WRECK

On The C. A. & C. Railroad Near Bangs

Delayed Traffic For Several Hours

Traffic was delayed on the C. A. & C. R. between this city and Columbus on Tuesday morning by a defect in the track at Bangs. At about six o'clock, a north bound freight train was running on the side track at Bangs when several cars were derailed by a broken rail, which was not discovered before the attempt was made to take the siding, and as a result, the main track was blocked. The passenger train, leaving Mt. Vernon at 10:55 was held in that village until about 1:30 o'clock and the north bound passenger, due here at 8:34 was also held at that point for almost five hours before the track could be cleared. The debris was removed as soon as possible, however, and after 1:30 o'clock, the road was clear. No one was injured when the cars were derailed.

The early morning passenger train leaving here at 6:30, and which is made up in Mt. Vernon, did not make the usual run to Columbus Tuesday morning, but was run north to Cleveland, leaving here at 8:34 the time of the leaving of the north bound passenger train, which was held up near Bangs on account of the wreck.

South bound passenger train No. 502, due here at 12:35 o'clock was 20 minutes late in reaching Mt. Vernon and was able to proceed through to Columbus as the wreck was reported cleared away shortly after 12:30 o'clock.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by all dealers.

NEW HISTORY

Of Knox County Is Being Prepared

With Rev. A. B. Williams As Editor-In-Chief

It is but the span of a few years from the time of the hardy pioneers of Knox county to the present, yet what progressive strides have been made. In these days of great activity it is well to pause and take inventory and by comparison of the present with the conditions of a century ago, and see the changes that come to our attention and what has really been accomplished.

Such a work is now to be undertaken and Messrs. B. F. Bowen & Co., the well known publishers of Indianapolis, Ind., have been induced to become interested in the matter and have secured Rev. A. B. Williams as editor-in-chief, who will read, criticize and pass upon all chapters of the work. Other local men and women of prominence and recognized ability will contribute to the pages of the work.

Mr. Thomas G. Brown, representing B. F. Bowen & Company, is now in the city and will call upon a number of representative citizens for the purpose of presenting the claims of the proposed work.

ARGUES AGAINST RATE INCREASES

Attorney Brandeis Preaches Economy to Railroads.

SAYS $1,000,000 WASTED DAILY

Shippers Urge "Scientific Management" as Panacea For Ills of Which Traffic Interests Complain. Men Interested in Large Manufacturing Concerns Testify as to Value of System Before Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Louis D. Brandeis of Boston suggested to the heads of railroads that are seeking to increase freight rates that "scientific management" of their properties will answer the purpose of meeting advanced wages, higher cost of material and improvements. Mr. Brandeis, who was speaking before the Interstate commerce commission on behalf of the shippers, contended that there will be no necessity for increased freight rates if the railroad officials will only give this kind of management a trial. He declared the saving to the railroads of the United States would amount to $1,000,000 per day if their operation were based on this system.

In opening his statement for the shippers Mr. Brandeis said that the contentions of the railroads were substantially: That a greater net income is necessary in order that present dividends may be maintained or be increased; that certain additions and improvements are necessary; that the need of greater income arises from the fact that the ratio of the operating expenses to gross operating revenues has risen mainly by recent advances in wages. Mr. Brandeis said the shippers took issue with the carriers.

"Even if the railroads do need additional net income," said he, "it should be secured through greater efficiency and economy of operation instead of resorting to the dangerous expedient of raising freight rates." Mr. Brandeis referred to the statements made by President McCrea of the Pennsylvania and President Willard of the B. & O. as declarations of despair, involving a vicious circle of ever-increasing freight rates and ever-increasing cost of living.

Suggests Alternative.

Continuing, Mr. Brandeis said: "As an alternative to the practice of combining to raise rates and hence to increase prices, we offer co-operation to reduce costs and hence to lower prices. This can be done through the introduction of scientific management, resulting in greater efficiency and greater economy in operation. In so saying we offer a constructive policy of management, not personal criticism of those to whom the management of railroads is not entrusted. This greater efficiency in operation which will follow the introduction into railroads of scientific management must result in economies which will far more than compensate for all recent or expected increases in wages and other expenses."

Mr. Brandeis said that through experts and otherwise the shippers would show how scientific management when applied to the single operation of loading a car with pig iron increased the performance of the individual worker from 12 1/2 to 47 tons; when applied to coal shoveling, it doubled or tripled the performance of the shoveler.

"And finally," said Mr. Brandeis, "we propose to show the huge field for the application of scientific management in American railroad operation and the rich fruit in economies and improved service which may be expected to result, economies which in amount more than a million dollars a day."

Mr. Brandeis called to the witness stand the officers of two "model plants" and both told the commission in detail how they got things done in a scientific manner. H. K. Hathaway, vice president of the Taber Manufacturing company of Philadelphia, was one of the experts, and James Mapes Dodge, chairman of the board of directors of the Link Belt company, was the other.

A Joke on the "Old Man"

Old man Jones and his son John came to town the other day and sold their hogs. The man they sold to gave each of them a check on this bank for the proper amount. Now the old man was just a little too wise. "Say," said he, "if it is just the same to you I would rather have the cash," and asked John if he wanted the cash also. John said he'd just as soon have the check. John gave the check to his father to keep for him, but on the way home the old man lost his pocket book and although they looked high and low it could not be found. The money and check were both lost forever. But say, John came back to the man who gave him the check and told him about it and the man just gave him another check for the amount and notified this bank that if the old check turned up not to pay it—see? But he wouldn't give the old man some more cash. A CHECK ON THIS BANK IS BETTER THAN CASH.
