Double-Header Freight Crashes Into Excursion Train

No One On Train Returning With Picnickers From Celebration At Ligonier, Pa., Escaped Without Injury... Bodies Hurled Under Wheels Of Freight Engines And Ground Into Gravel And Cinders Of Roadbed... Many Children Among Victims

Latrobe, Pa., July 6.—Through a misunderstanding of orders, 21 persons were killed and several fatally injured on the Ligonier Valley road when a passenger train carrying picnickers was backing into Wilpen. The accident was caused by a double-header freight, which crashed into the rear coach of the passenger train, telescoping several cars. But one passenger on the train escaped injury. The coaches contained a large number of children who were being taken by Miss Mathews, a nurse at the home of George Sentz, president of the Ligonier Valley railroad, for a day's outing. All the children were either killed or sustained severe injuries.

Most of the passengers on the train were residents along the Wilpen branch, who were returning from Latrobe and nearby towns, after spending the Fourth. The train had more passengers than ordinarily, every seat in the coach being occupied. There were a large number of women and children.

BRYAN BACK HOME AND MAKES SPEECH

Lincoln, Neb., July 6.—Three thousand Lincoln people joined in a homescoming reception to Colonel Bryan, who told them all about the Baltimore convention in a three-quarter hour of an hour speech. He said: "I never deluded myself into believing that I could be nominated at Baltimore. In fact, I could have come nearer to being nominated at Chicago. At the national convention I tried to be a harmonizer, always insisting that compromise should be on the side of the progressives. After Taft had been named by means I will not describe and after Roosevelt's followers had placed him on nomination as their leader, I resolved that the only thing for the Democrats to do was to write a platform so progressive at Baltimore and to nominate a candidate so progressive as that Mr. Roosevelt could find no excuse for running. "Any other progressive than Wilson would have suited me just as well. But under the prevailing circumstances I do not believe that any other progressive could poll so many votes as would he. But if anyone thinks that I wanted the nomination, let him explain why it is that I am happier in supporting Mr. Wilson for that place than in making the race myself."

ROOSEVELT DENOUNCES THE ANTI-TRUST LAW

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 6.—Theodore Roosevelt repeated his attack upon the platforms of the two great parties, which he considers radically wrong. What his own platform is to be in the coming campaign, he says he hopes to be able to announce within a week or two. His utterance indicated a tentative return to "the new nationalism" and the familiar gospel preached at Osawatimie, Kan., two years ago.

In calling for a rigid enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law, Colonel Roosevelt took the Democratic and Republican parties severely to task. For his part, he said that he believed the law an unjust one, and one never meant to be enforced literally. Any endeavor to redeem their platform pledges by enforcing this law would end disastrously, damaging principally the farmer and other members of co-operative associations.

years," he said, "and although I denounced it in messages and speeches, I was the first president to enforce it because it was a law."

GIVEN A KNOCKOUT

Was Woman Suffrage In California

Federation of Clubs Turn Deaf Ear to Suffragist Appeal.

DECLARE TIME IS NOT RIPE

Mrs. Moore, Retiring President, Declares That Object of Organization is to Prepare Timid, Conservative Members of Gentler Sex For Duties of Coming Citizenship—Ohio Woman Secures Office at Close of San Francisco Meeting.

San Francisco, July 6.—At the final day's session of the Federation of Women's Clubs, woman suffrage was given a knockout blow. For several days the committee on resolutions has been wrestling with the suffrage resolution. Mrs. Charles Farwell Edson of Los Angeles, an eager suffrage advocate, learned that the committee had turned down the suffrage resolution. So she presented a strong resolution for equal suffrage from the floor of the convention and demanded that the convention endorse it.

At once pandemonium broke loose. The southern delegates clamored against it and finally, after great confusion, Mrs. Phillip Moore, the presiding officer, ruled that the resolution was out of order.

This ruling nearly caused a riot. Mrs. Frederick Nathan, a suffrage leader, demanded to know why Mrs. Moore made her ruling. The president replied:

"The indorsement of suffrage at this time would be a blow to the general federation and also to suffrage, because the work of the federation has to do with the education of the timid, conservative woman, preparing her to accept the citizenship which is surely coming. If the conservative woman goes out of the federation now she goes out as an anti-suffragist and her work will be destructive."

Weep Over Resolution's Fate. Many women wept over the fate of the resolution and severely censured Mrs. Edson for her action in introducing the subject on the floor.

At the final session of the convention, after discussion of public health and pure food, Mrs. Frank N. Sheik submitted the report of the committee on resolutions and Mrs. Moore introduced the new officers. The selection of a place for the next convention went over until the meeting of directors in the fall.

Mrs. Percy V. Pennypacker of Austin, Tex., was elected president for the next two years. Mrs. Pennypacker won by a narrow margin from Mrs. Phillip Carpenter of New York. Other officers elected are: First vice president, Mrs. L. L. Blankenburg, Philadelphia; second vice president, Mrs. Samuel B. Sneath, Ohio; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry L. Keefe, Nebraska; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eugene Kelly, North Carolina; treasurer, Mrs. John Thredaway, Oklahoma; auditor, Mrs. Charles H. McMahon, Utah.

LOOKING WELL IN SUMMER.

Keep the Hair Neat and the Face Hygienically Clean.

One of the duties in summer is to look cool, and no woman can look cool if her face is a flame, her brow sticky and her nose peeling. Rosewater and glycerin and a bit of chamois and powder carried in the hand bag quickly remove shine.

Neat hair is a harder problem. The woman whose locks are flat and sticky in hot weather is to be pitied. She need not be a sight if she makes the best of the inevitable. Discard useless curling irons and adopt another style of hairdressing. Wash the hair once a week to keep it free from oil, brush hard to further check oil and use a net to prevent struggling ends. If at night the hair is wet, tied with filets and combed up between it will never be entirely flat.

Summer nerves are hard to conquer. Heat is enervating. It is uncomfortable to exercise, so the liver suffers, and, appetite failing, digestion is deranged.

One will feel much better by taking a moderate amount of exercise even on the hottest days. A walk early in the morning or after sunset can be taken without fear of prostration. Eat sparingly of nourishing foods and do not live oniced drinks and sweets.

Excessive perspiration is a sign of physical weakness and should be checked. An ordinary amount is not dangerous, but can be made endurable by the use of talcum powder and sponging with alcohol. Powdered borax will help.

Water For Nervousness.

"If people would only drink more water they would not be so nervous," say physicians and trained nurses.

Nearly all doctors will recommend one who is suffering from nervous prostration or nervous exhaustion to drink lots of water between meals. Those who need not come under the care of a physician would look and feel better if they would drink at least a quart of water during the day.

Those who know say that water is a nerve food and that it has a distinctly soothing effect when sipped gradually. Water drunk slowly and gradually has somewhat the same quality as deep breathing.

About Women.

Women, says de Maulis in Claviere, are not so frail as people are pleased to say. They are frail only when they wish to be.

It was in the manufacture of textiles that woman first appeared in industry outside of the home.

In China women carry their children from baskets that hang from a bar that crosses the mother's shoulders. Twines are desirable as preserving the balance of weight, if not for other reasons.

Green Pea Cakes.

Heat and mash two cupsful of peas that have been cooked tender. Season with butter, salt and pepper. Let the peas cool, then add two eggs well beaten, a small cupful of sweet milk and half a cupful of sifted flour well mixed with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Fry on a hot griddle well greased.

The Latest Development.

Kansas City is to have band concerts with speeches on suffrage in the intermissions on the programme.
