Latest Developments In Newark's Sensational Case

(Newark Advocate)

The body of Mrs. Jessie Fremont Gaver, which has been buried in Cedar Hill cemetery since Nov. 7, was exhumed at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon by direction of Coroner W. E. Wiyiarch, who is investigating the circumstances previous and subsequent to the death of Mrs. Gaver, for the purpose of ascertaining what truth is concealed in the various conflicting statements made by Dr. J. H. Rheamont, and those associated with him.

Accompanied by an Advocate and Coroner Wiyiarch went to the cemetery, where under the direction of Andrew J. Crilly, the superintendent of the grave had been opened.

Coroner Wiyiarch and Dr. J. N. Wright, the latter having attended Mrs. Gaver during her illness, performed the operation of removing the stomach. In addition to the Coroner and Dr. Wright there were present Dr. D. M. Smith, Dr. S. Richards, Dr. J. T. Harbottle representing the city solicitor, Dr. Homer Davis, Mr. Basil Wiyiarch and George D. Upson of the Advocate.

The removing of the viscera was completed at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon after which it was placed in a glass jar. The corpse was well preserved considering the length of time which it had been buried.

After the removal of the stomach the body was reburied and Coroner Wiyiarch took an Ohio Electric car for Columbus, carrying with him the viscera which he turned over to Chemist Howard for examination.

The examination and tests to which the contents of the stomach will be subjected to are very exhaustive and will require at least two days and it is probable that it will be Monday before the results of the inquiry will be announced.

HORSES

Wear Blue Trousers Out In Kansas

Medora, Kan., Nov. 23.—Any one can see a novel sight by visiting the farm of John Heden, two miles south of Medora, or by happening to be here when the farmer comes to town with his butter, eggs and other produce.

Following a custom established 25 years ago, Farmer Heden's horses all wear trousers. These garments are not elaborate or expensive; merely the blue duck overalls, such as Mr. Heden himself wears.

"Yes, the horses wear pants the year round," Mr. Heden told a party of automobilists passing this way recently. "And what is more, they have been wearing them on my farm for 25 years. I don't discriminate as to sex, either, for 'Colonel,' 'Nance,' 'Maude,' and 'Kate' all wear pants."

One of the morning chores of the harvest hand who hires out at the Heden farm is to put trousers on the "Colonel" before he takes him to the watering trough and then to the field.

Through the high-waisted, bell-bottom period of trousers, down through the skin-tight years, on through the peg-top decade and now to the tight-fitting English lines, the Heden horses have worn their trousers just as men have done during all these years.

It is a startling spectacle to strangers to see a team of horses, clad in neat blue overalls, come trotting down the street, but that is the way Farmer Heden and his horses come to town with the spring wagon, with eggs and butter to market. Of course the horses' trousers are not creased so often as many men are accustomed to have theirs pressed, but then they are not such sticklers for style out here in the wheat belt.

When Mr. Heden buys overalls he buys three pairs, one for himself and two for his horses. The horses are not hard on their trousers; a pair will last them more than a year.

"People laugh at my horses wearing pants, but let them laugh; the horses like it," said Mr. Heden. "In the summer time they will raise an awful fuss if they have to go without their pants. It may look funny, but it keeps the flies from pestering them while they are standing still. Let the people laugh; my horses are happy."

WITNESS WAS GUILTY

Of Perjury The Charge Made By An Attorney

Who Immediately Withdrew From The Case

Exciting Scene In Common Pleas Court Room

The Smith Will Has Been Filed In Probate

Other Notes Of Interest From The Court House

Quite a sensational circumstance transpired in the common pleas court room Friday afternoon which brought the case of Johnson & Crowell vs. Elva Loney to a sudden termination and the returning of a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $277.41.

The sensational feature of the afternoon was the withdrawal of Lot C. Stillwell, who was the attorney for the defendant. Mr. Stillwell withdrew from the case alleging that his client, the defendant, was guilty of perjury.

The case was commenced in the morning and immediately after court had convened in the afternoon Mr. Stillwell withdrew from the case and asked that the court instruct the jury to return a verdict for the plaintiffs for the full amount. This was done.

It appears that during the noon hour, Mr. Stillwell made an investigation and came to the conclusion that Mr. Loney had been guilty of perjury while on the witness stand in the morning, hence his withdrawal from the case.

Immediately after the verdict had been returned by the jury, Columbus Ewalt, one of the attorneys for the plaintiffs, asked that Judge Seward direct prosecuting attorney to bring criminal proceedings against Elva Loney for perjury. The court informed the attorney that it was not his duty to instruct the prosecutor, but that any persons interested in the case could request the prosecuting attorney to take such action.

Prosecutor Cromley when seen Saturday morning refused to make any statement at the present time concerning the matter, and it is not known whether any criminal proceeding will be instituted against Mr. Loney.

Should there not be sufficient funds to pay the above mentioned, then the legatees are to be paid pro rata and if any balance remains then the above bequests are to be increased pro rata. The testator directs that all his real estate be converted into money. H. H. Greer is named as the executor of the will, which was signed May 29, 1911, in the presence of H. H. and R. M. Greer. The codicil, which revokes the bequest to the church, was signed August 16, 1911, in the presence of L. T. Cromley and H. H. Greer.

"SHOP EARLY" IS SLOGAN FOR MT. VERNON PEOPLE

"Shop early" is the slogan that will become city wide within the next few weeks, a general resolution having been made by Mt. Vernon women to do their buying early, help merchants and clerks eliminate to as great an extent as possible, the tired Saturday night.

It is not too early to begin now. If a trifle too early to begin buying, at least not too early to begin thinking, that shopping may be properly detailed and done in a systematic and pre-meditated manner. Those who will take the slight trouble will find that they can begin at most any time and will, in addition, be greatly benefited.

After all procrastination is as imprudent as it is inconsiderate and selfish. Within the next few weeks the stores will be laden with Christmas articles, the most tempting and attractive of the season. There is a great advantage in making out an early list and filling it at an early date for there is a greater variety to choose from and the stock has not become worn and soiled from the handling of the great influx of later shoppers.

Then there is no more delightful time to shop than during the morning hours. Of course it is the best time of the day so far as home duties are concerned, but according to the merchants there has been an unusually large per cent of morning shoppers this fall, the bright pleasant mornings proving an irresistible temptation.

The early shopping movement is purely an unselfish one and reflects credit to a few thoughtful ones whose original undertaking has reached practically every city in the country and effectually stirred the conscience of the feminine element to a recognition of what the attitude of the buyer should be to the merchant and clerk.

Christmas time is a season of great rejoicing and is generally regarded as the happiest time of the year. There should not be a cloud whether spiritual or material to mar the festivity of the day. However, the wild scramble for gifts to fill an unorganized list at practically the last hour, and the worry of the last few days because of procrastination means that Christmas morning dawns with a cloud. A tired body and mind, a sense of duty not properly faced, and a remembrance of the clerk who tied the last parcel weary, worn features tired and figure sagging, expressing an exhaustion beside which the weariness brought on by one's own tardy activities, pale in comparison and remembrances of which spoil the pleasure of giving and receiving.

What is to be the attitude of Mt. Vernon toward Christmas shopping? "Take 'shop early' for your slogan and you will benefit and be benefited."
