

TURKS FALL BY THE THOUSANDS

Sir Ian Hamilton Reports Terrific Slaughter.

MADE UNCEASING ATTACKS.

Hot Fire of Allied Artillery Shatters Foe's Ranks—Sir Ian Hamilton Officially Fixes Enemy's Losses in Four Days at 5,000 Killed and 15,000 Wounded.

London.—More than 5,000 Turks were killed and 15,000 wounded in Dardanelles operations from June 28 to July 2, according to an estimate made by General Sir Ian Hamilton, commander of the British forces, in a report made public by the official press bureau. The report says:

"About 2 a. m. (date not given) the searchlights of the destroyer Scorpion discovered half a Turkish battalion advancing near the sea, to the northwest of Krithia. The Scorpion opened fire, and few of the enemy got away.

"Simultaneously the enemy attacked a knoll which we had captured, due west of Krithia, advancing from a nullah in close formation in several lines. The attack came under artillery and unfading rifle fire, the enemy losing heavily. The foremost Turks got within forty yards of the parapet, but only a few returned.

"The Turks made several heavy bomb attacks during the night, our troops being twice driven back a short distance. Early in the morning we regained these trenches by a bayonet attack. They have since been strengthened. At 5:30 a. m. 2,000 Turks, moving from Krithia into a ravine, were scattered by machine gun fire.

"The operations reflect great credit on the vigilance and accurate shooting of the Scorpion. The Turkish losses in the nullah and ravine are estimated at from 1,500 to 2,000 dead.

"About 10 p. m. on June 30 the Turks again attacked with bombs a portion of the most northerly trench captured by us on the 28th. An officer of the Gurkhas being wounded (not dangerously, as it turned out), the men became infuriated, flung all their bombs at the enemy and then, charging down out of the trench, used their kukris for the first time and with excellent effect.

"About dawn the Turks once more attempted to attack over the open, but nearly the whole of these attacking forces, about half a battalion, were shot down, and a final bomb attack, though commenced, failed utterly.

"Prisoners brought in state that three fresh battalions were employed in the main attack, which was made by personal order of Enver Pasha, the Turkish war minister, who, as they definitely assert, was present in the trenches on June 29. This is confirmed by the statement of an intelligent Armenian prisoner captured on that date. According to him, stringent orders were recently issued that no further attacks were to be made, because if the Turks remained on the defensive the British would be forced to attack and would suffer severely, as the Turks hitherto had suffered, but Enver Pasha when he arrived in the northern section overrode the instructions, and orders were received by the prisoner's regiment that the Australians were to be driven into the sea.

"On July 2, after a heavy bombardment of our advanced positions by high explosives and shrapnel, lasting half an hour, the enemy infantry advanced, but were driven back to the main nullah, about a mile from our front, by the accurate shooting of the Scorpion.

"The Turkish officers could be seen endeavoring to get their men forward, but they would not face the fire and retreated in disorder after suffering heavy casualties. The ground in front of our trenches in every direction can be seen covered with Turkish dead. Patrols sent out at night report that the valleys and ravines are also full of them.

"After checking and counterchecking the reports from all sources I put down their total casualties between June 28 and July 2 at 5,150 killed and 15,000 wounded."

A GLIMPSE OF SWINBURNE.

Bayard Taylor Called Him Perverse, Willful and Unreasonable.
In all important respects except one I found him to be very much what I anticipated, writes Laura Stedman in the North American Review, quoting Bayard Taylor's impression of Swinburne. The exception is instead of being a prematurely wise young man of the world, he is rather a wilful, perverse, unreasonable, spoiled child. His nature is still that of the young Shelley, and my great fear is that it will never be otherwise.
He needs the influence of a nature stronger than his in everything but the imaginative faculty—such a nature as Byron's was to Shelley. * * * He has a weak moral sense, but his offences arise from a colossal unbalanced affection. This, or something like it, is a disorganizing element in his nature which quite obscures the organizing—that is artistic—sense. What I admire in him, yet admire with a feeling of pain, is the mad, unrestrained preponderance of the imagination. It is a godlike quality, but he sometimes uses it like a devil. He greatly interests my intellect, but does not touch me magnetically.
He could have no power over me, but on the contrary, I felt that I should be able to influence him in a short time. I had a letter from him the other day which shows that he feels an intellectual relationship between us. Now, this is not a question of relative poetic power, but of a certain diversity of qualities, and I don't mean to be egotistic in saying that I might perform somewhat of the same service for him as Byron for Shelley. I feel that if it is not already too late I could help him to some degree of poise, of system, of law; in short, art.

In this sense he moves my deepest sympathy, for I see now the matter that might be molded into a splendid poet relapsing into formless conditions. It is sad. It is tragic, and if this fancy of mine be foolish, there it is, nevertheless. Without this sense of giving assistance a week alone with Swinburne would be intolerable to me or any other human being.

CRIMINAL SLANDER
Is the Charge Placed Against L. D. Colwell
L. D. Colwell of South Vernon was arraigned before Squire George S. Harter Monday afternoon on a charge of criminal slander, preferred by Mrs. Alice Beach. Bad feeling has existed between the two for a long period, according to Mrs. Beach, which culminated in insulting remarks on the part of Colwell. He pleaded not guilty and his hearing was set for July 22, at 9 a. m. Bond in the sum of $100 was given.

CLEANS LEATHER
A reader of the Christian Science Monitor writes: "I took my hand bag to a number of leather stores where they all told me it could not be cleaned, but I learned from a friend that a tablespoonful of oxalic acid dissolved in a quart of cold water cleans cowhide, pig skin and sole leather very satisfactorily."

Why Some Garments Keep and Others Easily Lose Their Shape.
Every one—in this country, at least—wears clothes. They have to. Consequently every one is more or less interested in the question of clothes.
It is not so easy to know good cloth as it seems. Many people, depending on texture, feel, weave and so forth, think that they are judges of cloth. And when, after buying what they believe to be a good piece of cloth, it does not wear well they are greatly surprised.
The durability of cloth depends largely upon the length of the individual fibers. If the fibers are long and curling they form a close and strong weave. The cloth does not crack or wear out at the seams or folds because of the length of fiber, nor does it rub as easily by surface wear because it is more springy or elastic. Short fibers, on the other hand, have much less binding quality because they do not intertwine.

The difference between two suits or dresses in "keeping their shape" is largely due to this same thing. A really first class cloth, properly made and fitted, hardly ever requires pressing. It is elastic, and if it is hung up after having been worn for a day or two it will go right back into shape. The constant sending of trousers to the tailor to have a "crease" put in is a sign that the cloth was not made of long fibers.
If you want your suits or dresses to wear well and to look well first make sure that the cloth is woven from long fibers.—New York American.

Dead Languages.
Dead languages are ones that once were in common use, but are now no longer spoken unless by scholars who have studied them. The ancient Sanskrit, Greek and Latin have been dead many centuries as common speech, although still used to some extent for religious, scientific and literary purposes. Coming down to more recent times, most of the Indian tongues, of which there were many when the white man came, are now dead. All languages have their periods of growth, maturity and decadence, followed by death.—Philadelphia Press.

Quick Change.
Critical Husband—This beef isn't fit to eat. Wife—Well, I told the butcher that if it wasn't good I would send you around to his shop to give him a thrashing, and I hope you'll take some one with you, for he looked pretty fierce, and I didn't like the way he handled his big knife. Husband—Humph! Oh, well, I must say I've seen worse meat than this.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Only the Truth.
"Poor Maud! She thought she'd captured a rich stock dealer."
"What gave her the idea?"
"Why, she heard that he helped to send wheat up last week."
"And did he?"
"Yes; he works in a grain elevator."
—New York Post.

Wanted a Sleepy One.
"Mother, must Fred and I have a chaperon for tonight?" asked the sweet young thing.
"Certainly, dear," replied the mother.
"Well, mother, please don't send Aunt Helen as a chaperon because she's got insomnia."
—Yonkers Statesman.

Dr. Johnson's Homeliness.
Samuel Johnson was himself—and this is a quality rarely found in "plain" men—under no illusion as to his personal appearance. Dr. Burney tells us that on one occasion while Miss Burney was examining his portrait he peeped over her shoulder and, with a ludicrous half laugh, exclaimed: "Ah, ha, Sam Johnson! I see thee—and an ugly dog thou art!"—London Times.
