

INJUSTICE TO FRANCE.—In speaking of the case of our friend Testard, the other day (who is now a prisoner of the French Government in Bordeaux,) we had, but meagre groundwork for an argument, and as frequently happens—"the wrong end of the case."

The government of France is right and Testard, is wrong. A letter from that government to the French Consul resident in this city—Monsieur L. Bonneau—states the case of Testard, in very brief terms, thus; when Testard left his native country, he was a Conscript—had passed the ordeal of the ballots, and had drawn the black ball. He had two years to serve when he came here on furlough. Of course, by virtue of his birth, his government has a recognized right to claim the unexpired term of his service, and even to treat him as a deserter.

AMPUTATION NECESSARY.—As noticed yesterday, by the collision of the Carrollton cars, with the Lake Express train on Jackson street New Orleans, the other day, Mr. Amedee Choppin received a compound fracture of the leg, which rendered amputation necessary. This operation was performed on Tuesday, by Dr. Schuppert, with whom Dr. Choppin is associated. The leg was taken off just below the knee. Mr. Choppin was suffering great last night, but there is no anticipation, that there will be any worse result.

The Bee says: The engineer has succeeded in evading arrest up to the time we write. It will be a pity should he be able to make away from the punishment he so justly merits, and which it is so desirable should be meted out to him.

THE PRESS.—The newspapers absolutely groan under the weight of profound speeches and campaign documents. There is little afloat to-day worth setting up. There is however "A Diabolical Outrage in East Tennessee," and "Another Tragedy in Cincinnati;" but they have no new and attractive features, hence we allow them to pass.

ANOTHER WISE LETTER.—It is announced by telegraph, that Gov. Wise, has addressed a letter to the Very Old Democratic Jackson Club of Boston. It is a two column apology, of reasons for being constrained to decline an invitation to take dinner in Boston on the 19th proxo.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL.—A new chapter in the Eleusinian mysteries has just been opened to the day. On the 23d June the excavations which have been for some time in progress at Eleusis, were brought to an end. The Temple of Ceres has been completely uncovered, and with the temple an infinite number of interesting architectural remains. The most remarkable of these are the propylae, described by Cicero in his letters, and a superb statue of Adrian's favorite Antinous, lacking only the left arm. This is the only life-size statue, and probably therefore the only accurate portrait of this famous type of masculine beauty which has yet been found.

ACCIDENT ON THE GROSSE TETE RAILROAD.—Two box cars on the Grosse Tete Railroad run off the track on Monday and were smashed to pieces. Young LeBlanc, son of Mr. A. LeBlanc, of West Baton Rouge, had his leg broken below the knee in two places by the accident. Several negroes were on the cars at the time, but none were hurt.—Advocate.

THE SPIRIT OF FACTION.

It is Mr. Thomas Carlyle, who coins the word "Shews"—a very expressive word, with his handling, which has not as yet, found its way to the lexicons. "The Shews of things" is not, their spirit or essence, as we understand it; but that material part not seen by the material eye, but which may yet be arrived at, by logical induction and explained. It is the unseen, though not less certain, cause of effect, which may, not only be analyzed but synthesized. Until we can raise off the top of the head of humanity and correct the rebellious and brutal organs whilst at work, the shews of things deserve attention. Let us discover, if we can why it is, that all people who have the wit to do it, prefer playing the Knave's part, to that of the true and honest man. Let this be done, and it may serve a very powerful and potent purpose, as auxiliary to the spiritual influence, which the church seeks to exercise. Let us analyze the spirit of faction and take the mob to pieces to see how and why it is that it becomes, the powerful—and controlling influence in the republic, and breaks out now and then like smothered volcanoes, in the monarchy. A writer in the Century, thus discusses on this interesting subject:

The exact nature and true spirit of faction have not, so far as I know, been fully analyzed. Perhaps the venerable author of the "Natural History of Enthusiasm," might find in the Natural History of Faction a topic very well worthy of his mature powers.

What is faction? What is its essential character and what are its necessary conditions? Party, faction, and mobs are all kindred in nature, and exhibitions of one and the same thing. The term of a mob, its true motive, and method of proceeding, or want of method, would, if analyzed, afford curious results. Party, also, for a definite purpose and a single day blends together opposites in a very strange manner. In a similar way faction is most singular in the combinations it works, and the unique in its ways and doings, without attempting a definition. I think I may be said generally that ambition and passion are the soul of faction. It casts a sinister look on authority, and has more or less a direct purpose to modify law or thwart its operation. Corporations which are the creations of law, are said to have no soul, and factions are still more brutish, inasmuch as they are lawless by the very terms of their existence. Faction is also destructive in its temper, and veils itself in some degree of secrecy, but cannot conceal entirely a certain ferocity of nature.

But when any class of men assume the purpose of breaking through established institutions, and reforming existing methods, they, of course, lay their designs so as to show well, and color them with fair colors. They show an ostensible outrage against justice or righteousness as their apology for violence. It is truth, or equality, or mercy that fires the heart and nerves the hand of faction always, if you believe it. The mobs of Paris, though urged on by passion and exceedingly cruel, had in their mouths the sounding words, "Liberty and equality!" And though soon going on to decapitate multitudes, they did it in the name of justice. Faction indeed is the helpless child of concentrated and exaggerated human passion, and is like a wave of the ocean which is tossed, wither soever the wind chooses. Of course, however, it is never without its apology offered to the reason. But it is important for us to observe that passion and not reason, caprice alone and not equity, are the ruling influences which it ever obeys.

Hence, if the history of faction teaches at all, it might be expected to show us the folly of committing to its keeping principles of truth and of morality. Liberty and equality disappeared, and were destroyed in the embrace of faction, which constituted itself their special guardian. Professing friendship, and shouting benedictions, faction was the instrument by which both these universal principles fell in France. As so, from the nature of the case, it must always be. Faction is altogether ruthless, and without a soul, does not know the meaning of innocence, yields itself to the impulse of enraged appetite, and, therefore, to commit to its keeping anything sacred or true, is to lose sight and possession of it.

The Convention of American Israelites assembled August 14th at the Cooper Institute, when about thirty congregations were present.

The Executive Committee state that they have collected and remitted to Sir Moses Montefiore the sum of $20,000 for the relief of the Morocco refugees. They call attention to the difficult negotiation necessary to establish their rights under the treaty with Switzerland, and also to the fact that no provision was made for any privileges to citizens of Jewish faith in the treaties with China and Japan.—They refer to the fact that no Jewish citizen can hold office under the Constitution of North Carolina, and suggest the propriety of memorializing the Legislature of the State for the abrogation of this obnoxious provision.

A short time since the Baroness de Rothschild presented to the Society, for gratuitous distribution among the schools, 500 copies of the "Addresses to Young Children," written by the Baroness, and originally delivered by her eldest daughter to the children of the Bell Lane school London. These books will be distributed among the various schools in the United States, in proportion to their numbers.—The committee recommend a more thorough organization among the Israelites of the United States, and the compilation of reliable statistics of the congregations, members thereof, schools and pupils among the Jews of this country.

England declines to take an active part in the expedition to Syria.

COMMUNICATED.

Dear Comet.—I learned through your columns, that on last Saturday evening, the public were invited to attend the address to be delivered by members of the "Sugar Bowl Debating Society," on the occasion of its anniversary. Here was a privilege I was long desirous of obtaining, for I have always felt a warm interest in the welfare of the Society; and have wished it every success. I went with the expectation of being entertained—I was not only entertained, but edified.

It was evident, however that there was a damper on the spirits of the members, and those present could not fail to sympathize with them. Where, Dear Comet, were the crowds of admiring friends, who were expected to come forward and by their presence encourage the young gentlemen in their praiseworthy undertaking? "Echo answers—"Where,"—an old quotation, but most applicable here. Not more than forty were present—Forty out of a population of four thousand. Are you not ashamed of Baton Rouge, Comet?—I am.

Where were the ladies, whose fair presence is always the proudest incentive to aspiring manhood. There were but few present, and to them we all give honor. Cogitating over the indifference shown to the Society—I come to this conclusion, that if in place of the intellectual treat which the members offered the people of Baton Rouge, on last Saturday night, they threw open the doors of Academy Hall and invited their friends to a festive entertainment—answer me, Comet.—Would Academy Hall be capacious enough to hold the gay galaxy that would assemble there? O, ladies, young ladies of Baton Rouge do not by your indifference throw discouragement on the Sugar Bowl Debating Society—ask yourselves if these gentlemen have not found in that society a safeguard from temptation. Better, far better for them to spend their evenings in the enjoyment of intellectual development, than to be exposed to the dangers of idleness!

But, despite the want of appreciation exhibited in the affairs of the Society by the people of Baton Rouge—It will prosper. The members might as well take for their motto—"Aid yourselves, and God will aid you."

It is needless here to speak of the merit of the addresses. Those who heard them acknowledged it. Be hopeful young gentlemen, your Society is still in its infancy. Ere long, the people of Baton Rouge will learn to estimate its importance, and honor your exertions as they deserve to be honored. Your next celebration will be crowned with success—but remember, you must learn— "To labor and to wait."

L'ESPERANCE.

THE ORIGIN OF SPECIES.—Dr. Darwin's book on this subject, is creating no little excitement among the scientific and literary men of the age. The Century says: The general opinion in England is that it is exceedingly "clever," but that the author's conclusions are not justified by his premises. Pictet of Geneva, closes an elaborate review of it by saying that "it will be of real utility to all naturalists, especially, if, while following the author in his deductive argumentation, they know how to stop in time, and do not allow themselves to be led away to deduce, with him, the dangerous doctrine that unlimited modifications can be the work of accumulations of centuries."

Pictet has also examined the first implements of the remote epoch when man first appeared on the earth. The more the question is studied by the aid of modern researches, the further does that epoch recede into the past. A paper read before the Geological Society, assigns a period of 60,000 years, while Pictet suggests that the existence of man on the earth at a period earlier than is commonly supposed, may be assumed from the extinction of some species of animals. If the elk, bear hyena and mammoth were destroyed by flood or change of climate, why were not certain smaller species which still survive, destroyed at the same time? The hypothetical reply is that the large animals were slaughtered by primeval who used the stone axes which we now find embedded deep in drifts of gravel.

Professor Anstet has given a lecture on The Antiquity of the Human Race; Professor Phillips, one on The Origin of Life; and a further report is soon to be published on the ancient bones and implements recently discovered in the cave at Brixham, Eng.

THE CENSUS TAKER'S EXPERIENCE IN THE COUNTRY.—A Virginia census taker writes: "I have opened 2000 to 2500 gates, let down 1500 to 1800 pairs of bars, and any number of fences; have got off and on my horse from fifty to eighty times a day, done any amount of talking in the way of explanation, made countless calculations, etc., etc. Thus far I have not had an unpleasant word with a human being, but my patience and temper have been severely tried."

The news of the vineyards of France "is excellent and the quantity now certain. The finer wines will be an average crop, but the ordinary wines extremely abundant." High quality will be scarcer, because the vintage is not expected before the 8th or 10th October, and it is rare that very superior quality is obtained in so late a season.

SALE OF NEW COTTON.—We hear of the sale yesterday of 21 bales good middling cotton, of the new crop, at 12c, and 5 at 11c. This, we believe is the first transaction in the crop of this season.—Savannah Republican 15th.

THE FIRST METEOR—VIEWS OF PROF. HENRY.

The Newark Mercury gives the following extract from a private letter, written by Prof. Henry:

"The aurora borealis is undoubtedly an electrical phenomenon, and it is now highly probable that the disturbance of the electrical equilibrium of the earth is due to magnetic inductions of the sun. From the latest observations it appears that the frequency of the aurora is subject to regular recurrences; and that the appearance of these coincides with that of a similar recurrence of the spots of the sun. The subject is now in process of investigation, but it will require a number of years before the facts can be approximately made out. The meteor was undoubtedly a body of considerable magnitude, coming from celestial space into our atmosphere, and possibly, though not probably, passing out of it again. The origin of these bodies is unknown and it is not improbable that they are portions of the original material of which the earth and the other planets were constructed. The deception in regard to the height arises simply from the fact that we cannot judge of distance alone by the mere sight of an object; we are obliged to take into consideration its size, its distinctness and other circumstances, and therefore when an object appears under entirely unusual conditions, the judgment we form of its conditions must be entirely at fault. If it be in reality a large body at a great distance, and we imagine it a small one, such as for example a skyrocket, it will appear at the distance of the latter. The error arises in applying the habitual judgement of things of which we have an abundant experience to those of rare occurrence."

THE CHIRQUI SURVEY.—The Herald's special correspondent at Washington, telegraphs the following:

By private advices from Norfolk it is ascertained that at noon on Monday (the 13th) the steamer sloop-of-war Brooklyn left Hampton Roads, bearing the Commission directed by Congress to survey the harbors and new railroad route contracted for by the Secretary of the Navy with Ambrose W. Thompson, Esq. The Commission consists of F. W. Eagle, U. S. N., as Commander; Lieut. Morton and his assistants are charged with the topographical surveys and charts of the harbours, and Dr. John Evans as geologist. Ambrose Thompson, Jr., accompanies the Commission to represent his father's interest and to guide the parties.

The Secretary of the Navy was charged by the President of the United States to organize this Commission from the ablest men of the army and the Navy—men whose ability and integrity should be a warrant for the faithfulness of the reports to be made to Congress at their next session. The chiefs and assistants number about twenty, while the whole force, including axe and mallet men, assembled on the ground will number about one hundred. The work is to be accomplished in three months. Great interest is manifested in this exploration, as, if successful, the route will, it is said, be the leading one for the commerce of Asia, and turn the chief portion of that commerce to the United States.

A meteoric stone weighing from 400 to 500 pounds, fell, or was supposed to fall in McAlisterville, Juniata county, Pa., on the 5th inst. A rumbling noise was heard by many persons at 5 P. M., and one old lady saw something falling rapidly into a field. Near the place indicated by her this stone was found; having been examined by a geologist, he made this report: That it resembled limestone, that it is circular in form, three feet four inches in diameter, eighteen inches thick.

The more peaceably and quietly we get on, the better for us and others. In nine cases out of ten, the wisest policy is if a man cheats you, quit his company; if he slanders you, take care to live so that nobody will believe him.—No matter who he is, or how he misuses you, the wisest way is generally to leave him alone, for there is nothing better than this cool, calm, quiet way of dealing with the wrongs we meet.

The present year is the extreme outer limit assigned by astronomers for the re-appearance of the long expected comet of Charles V. The uncertainty of its return arises from the very vague and general descriptions of its course in 1264 and 1556, from which the data were extracted for modern calculations.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.—THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL CONTAINS A REPORT OF THE PHOTOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY, WHICH INCLUDES AN ACCOUNT OF A NEW AND MARVELLOUS PROCESS, BY WHICH PHOTOGRAPHS MAY BE PRODUCED AT THE RATE OF 12,000 AN HOUR, FROM A SINGLE NEGATIVE.

The importance of this discovery cannot be over-estimated. For the purpose of book illustrations alone the new process will be invaluable, as 2500 impressions can be made in a single hour, a speed impossible to the ordinary manipulations of lithography or plate printing.

A New York "paper stainer," describing the Winsor's steamship, says "the exterior is so built that in a gale it may be hermetically sealed, and, in event of rolling bottom-up, her hull would still go screwing through submarine depths, frightening dolphins, and scaring small sprats into spasms, while her passengers would be as snugly comfortable and as well preserved as sardines in a box."
