

Banderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes:
"As a result of using Banderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp, as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Known to the world as a hair restorer, Banderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

SUPREME ALLIANCE COUNCIL HOLDS BEAUTIFUL MEMORIAL SERVICE

Morelos Lodge of El Paso to Entertain Delegates Fri- day Night—Brown Has Been President for Nine Years.

In solemn memorial convocation, the supreme council of the Alianza Hispano-Americana is today honoring the dead of the order. Memorial day is an event of importance at each of the supreme council sessions of the alliance, just as a death of one of the local lodge members is the occasion for the gathering of the lodge in a body over his bier to pay its respects to the deceased brother.

Sacred Concert.
Commencing with a sacred concert in the Fraternity Brotherhood hall this morning by the municipal band, the greater part of the fourth day of the council session has been devoted to the reading of resolutions of respect and the delivering of memorial addresses for the deceased members of the supreme council and the national lodge. This afternoon from 2 to 5 p. m., special memorial services were held in honor of the three members of the grand lodge who have died since the last supreme council session. These are M. J. Samaniego, past president of Tucson, Ariz.; M. T. Corrallo, past treasurer, of Tucson; E. Gonzalez, past member of the supreme lodge, of Phoenix.

Morelos Lodge to Entertain.

Friday evening in the quarters of the Mexican club on Stanton street, Morelos lodge No. 22, of El Paso, will be the host to the visiting delegates and members at a reception and supper. A number of prominent local speakers will address the meeting in Spanish and English and speeches of welcome and responses will also be made by the members of the Morelos lodge and the supreme council. This will be the first of a series of entertainments that are being planned for the visiting delegates and a street car excursion and possibly a parade will also be given before the meeting adjourns Saturday afternoon.

The various committees are hard at work preparing their reports of the year's business in order to submit it to the council as soon as possible. One important matter that is receiving the deepest consideration of the supreme council is the revision of the bylaws of the alliance. A report is expected from the committee having this work in charge before Friday when definite action will be taken in the general meeting.

Chamber of Commerce Help.

The usefulness of a chamber of commerce was demonstrated to the visiting members of the alliance today. The tickets which were issued for the convention were limited to Jan. 22. An excursion to Chihuahua on board a special train was one of the principal features of the entertainment program.

It was arranged to leave here Saturday night and return Monday morning. To have this it will be necessary to have the railroads grant an extension of three days on the tickets of the delegates.

The good offices of traffic manager A. W. Reeves of the chamber of commerce were sought today and with the assistance of secretary Kinne and the other officers of the chamber it is thought that the extension will be granted as it was on the short of the tickets from down the Texas and Pacific to the El Paso Fair and Exposition last November.

President Brown.

Samuel Brown, supreme president of the Alianza Hispano-Americana is one of the most interesting of the fraternal leaders who are attending the convention. President Brown is from Tempe, Ariz., where they call him "Sam" for short. But that is not all he is in Tempe. Among other honors he is city marshal, was mayor of Tempe in 1904; went to the 20th territorial legislature as a representative of the normal school district; is now a member of the school board, is water commissioner and controls all of the sky juice that is dished out to Tempe folks for domestic and commercial purposes; is a member of the town board and goodness knows what else.

Mr. Brown was born in San Francisco in 1855, but he did not like the looks of the foggy city with the golden harbor so he moved to Los Angeles, where he lived, until he heard of Tempe. It was all off then. It was Tempe or nothing, so it was Tempe. For 20 years president Brown has hung his sixshooter over the bed post in Tempe and expects to continue doing it for at least 30 more.

President Brown has been the executive head of the A. H. A. for the past nine years. He has been intimately connected with the early history of the lodge since its organization, 16 years ago, and he is considered the greatest authority on fraternal matters connected with the alliance. President Brown has consented to write a sketch of the order for The Herald.

Arizona Editor.

Another interesting visitor to the city and enthusiastic delegate to the supreme council is C. I. Velasco, of Tucson. Mr. Velasco was the first president of the alliance after it was organized, largely through his efforts. He has been a member and officer since it was organized. In addition to his activities in the fraternal field Mr. Velasco is the owner and publisher of the "Frontier," a Spanish publication which he has been editing for the past 32 years at Tucson. His knowledge of the early history of Arizona is boundless and his reminiscences of the indian days in the territory, in the old pueblo, would make an interesting volume.

Other Delegates.

Juan Wilson, delegate from Yuma, has the distinction of being the last delegate to arrive. But everyone was glad to see Juan and he was excused as he could not think of leaving Yuma until it was necessary.

Antonio Sedillas, of Albuquerque, is attending the convention. Mr. Sedillas is a leading lawyer of the state city. S. C. Moreno, supreme secretary, has been supreme secretary so long he knows every member of the national organization, their names and initials. He has been the S. S. for nine years now.

P. Moreno, president of Washington lodge No. 22, of Las Cruces, was down Wednesday to visit with his lodge brothers. His business in Las Cruces called him back again for the Chihuahua excursion and will bring a delegation to go along.

THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE

The Armstrongs left for California, and Arnold's persecutions began anew. He was furious over the child's disappearance and she was afraid he would do her some harm. She left the big house and went down to the lodge. When I had rented Sunnyside, however, she had thought the persecutions would stop. She had applied for the position of housekeeper and secured it.

That had been on Saturday. That night Louise arrived unexpectedly. Thomas sent for Mrs. Watson and then went for Arnold Armstrong at the Greenwood club. Anne had been fond of Louise—she reminded her of Lucy. She did not know what the trouble was, but Louise had been in a state of terrible excitement. Mrs. Watson tried to hide from Arnold, but he was ugly. He left the lodge and went up to the house about 2:30, was admitted at the east entrance and came out again very soon. Something had occurred, she didn't know what; but very soon Mr. Innes and another gentleman left, using the car.

Thomas and she had got Louise quiet, and a little before three Mrs. Watson started up to the house. Thomas had a key to the east entry, and gave it to her.

On the way across the lawn she was confronted by Arnold, who for some reason was determined to get into the house. He had a golf-stick in his hand, that he had picked up somewhere, and on her refusal he had struck her with it. One hand had been badly cut, and it was that, poisoning having set in, which was killing her. She broke away in a frenzy of rage and fear, and got into the house while Gertrude and Jack Bailey were at the front door. She went upstairs, hardly knowing what she was doing. Gertrude's door was open, and Halsey's revolver lay there on the bed. She picked it up and turning ran part way down the circular staircase. She could hear Arnold fumbling at the lock outside. She slipped down quietly and opened the door; he was inside before she had got back to the stairs. It was quite dark, but she could see his white shirt-bosom. From the fourth step she fired. As he fell somebody in the billiard-room screamed and ran. When the alarm was raised, she had had no time to get upstairs; she hid in the west wing until every one was down on the lower floor. Then she slipped upstairs and threw the revolver out of an upper window, going down again in time to admit the men from the Greenwood club.

If Thomas had suspected, he had never told. When she found the hand Arnold had injured was growing worse, she gave the address of Lucien at Richmond to the old man and almost $100. The money was for Lucien's board until she recovered. She had sent for me to ask me if I would try to interest the Armstrongs in the child. When she found herself growing worse she had written to Mrs. Armstrong, telling her nothing but that Arnold had injured her and that she was dying; and imploring her to recognize him. She was dying; the boy was an Armstrong, and entitled to his father's share of the estate. The papers were in her trunk at Sunnyside, with letters from the dead man that would prove what she said. It was she who had crept down the circular staircase, drawn by a magnet, that night Mr. Jamieson had heard some one there. Pursued, she had fled madly, anywhere—through the first door she came to. She had fallen down the clothes chute, and been saved by the basket beneath. I could have cried with relief; then it had not been Gertrude, after all!

That was the story. Sad and tragic though it was, the very telling of it seemed to relieve the dying woman. She did not know that Thomas was dead, and I did not tell her. I promised to look after little Lucien, and sat with her until the intervals of consciousness grew shorter and finally ceased altogether. She died that night.
