MODERN "MOUND" BUILDERS ARE BUSY AT OBAR

Many Cement Walks Are Being Constructed—News Notes and Personals.

Obar, N. M., Jan. 29.—The "mound builders" have been at work in Obar.

They have built a row of mounds on each side of Circle Bar avenue, for a distance of six full blocks from the Rock Island tracks south.

The "mounds" are composed of sand and gravel for the eight feet cement sidewalks which are now being laid through the business part of the town.

The work of laying the walks is being pushed rapidly. The first walk was in front of M. L. Campbell's general store on the east side of the street.

Contractor Rowe's brother-in-law, M. E. Dessem, is in charge of the work.

Mr. Dessem located in Obar a few weeks ago, coming from Lehigh, Ia., where he was superintendent of a big factory.

Mr. Rowe is also working a force of men on his concrete building to be used for manufacturing cement blocks. These will be used in the new depot, and in stone buildings. Two of the latter are now under contract and work will begin as soon as the block factory is ready.

Meanwhile, the mound builders are still building those nice, white mounds along the business street.

New Member Of Peerage and Young Bride a Popular Couple

The succession to the peerage of the Hon. Robert Collier as Lord Monkswell has attracted the attention of the English to this popular young man who joined the dignified body at a moment when it is most actively engaged in convincing the country that it is a necessity.

The new Lord Monkswell and his pretty and charming bride are likely to take a prominent place in London as well from their own social talents as the prestige of the late Lord Monkswell, whose death a fortnight ago led to the succession of the third holder of the title.

The father of the present Lord Monkswell has bequeathed his eldest son a claim for consideration from the British by public service of many years. He was under secretary of war at one time, a member of the London Council of the establishment in 1889 up to two years ago, and was its chairman for two years. He had also been conveying counsel to the treasury and official examiner of the high court of judicature.

CADET COMPANY B. WINS HONORS IN DRILL

Institute Awards Sweaters to Football Players—No Parade at Post.

For some time the three companies of cadets at the El Paso Military Institute have been contesting for a drill medal, but Friday they drilled for the glory of the thing, and that means more. It was visitors' day at the big boys' school, and fathers and mothers galore stood along the campus and watched the student soldiers do things.

Graded according to height, and on the average that means the same as age, are the three companies of cadets. And yet company B, whose men are not so tall or old as company A, nor so small and young as company C, carried off the honors of the day. Two regular army men, J. J. Miller and C. W. Whitson, both first lieutenants of the 19th infantry, who acted as judges, said that company B was the best. They figured it out according to points on a piece of paper, and there is no question about it.

After the test company drill, containing all the common manual of arms, and maneuvers, the three companies formed in review, and the institute military band showed what it could do in the way of music and marching, both at the same time. After the martial array was formed in front of Capt. Thomas A. Davis, commandant of the institute, the cadets stood in a hollow square before the assembled fathers and mothers. Then an important ceremony took place, the awarding of school sweaters to those who had distinguished themselves on the football field, the real battle ground of the student soldier.

The winning company was commanded by Capt. Clifton Elliott, assisted by first Lieut. Walter Jenkins, and second Lieut. Dan Kenan. The members of the company were:

First sergeant, Ruskin Johnson; second sergeant, Willard White; third sergeant, Cuthbert Baldwin; fourth sergeant, H. E. Harris. Corporals, F. Love, R. Geiger, E. Sambrano, A. Porter, L. Pomeroy, J. Broyles; privates, J. Ball, W. Taylor, W. Reed, J. Cox, R. Brett, H. Bauwgartner, L. Hindman, C. Milliron, L. Milliron, E. Alstare, E. Pagan, J. Drew, W. Anderson, K. Graves.
