CHAVES COUNTY SELLS COURTHOUSE

The Anti-Saloon League Declares Against Special Election at Roswell.

Roswell, N. M., Feb. 24.—The old Chaves county courthouse and jail, a two story brick, built in 1890 at a cost of $25,000, has been sold to Rufus W. Smith, at public auction for $580, the purchaser obligating himself to raise the old building and have the site clear of all debris by April 15. Mr. Smith will use the material in putting up a business house 75 by 100 feet on the corner of Fourth street and Virginia avenue, about 275 feet east of the Citizens National bank, fronting the courthouse block.

The members of the Citizen's civil movement, a result of the Anti-Saloon league agitation, have published a notice declaring "our unalterable opposition to any effort on the part of any individual or body of individuals either in the capacity of an official body, or otherwise, to constitute a special election on the local liquor question in any form, prior to the regular city election, for the express reason that such an election is not recognized by the territorial law, and would be a farce and without any force whatever."

"Secondly, That we hereby refuse to participate in such so-called election for the above expressed reason, and we hereby warn those who may propose a matter that if they do press it, the only possible result will be high license, and bringing it upon themselves, they will be expected to abide the results of their own action."

"And furthermore, That in case such so-called election is held and the result is high license, it is our unqualified purpose to elect such men at the approaching city election as will pledge themselves not to issue a license to the saloon."

The Baptist Young People's union and the Epworth league of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Roswell have adopted forceful resolutions pledging the support of the members for the anti-saloon movement.

J. H. Boney, who lived in Roswell from 1882 to 1892, and who is engaged in mining 25 miles east of Las Cruces, is here on a visit with his brother, C. D. Boney and family.

DAMAGE SUIT OVER CATTLE IS REOPENED AT ROSWELL Roswell, N. M., Feb. 24.—Judge J. W. Armstrong, of Carrizozo, is here for the case of Capt. C. W. Merchant and sons, who have enjoined Williams and Christman from driving cattle from a range that has been inclosed into the "Merchant's range," which is now classed as "free," located in Eddy county.

The case was tried with a great number of witnesses last November and was decided in favor of the Merchants.

New comes motions to modify the court's November ruling. The case also involves the question of possessory rights to the public domain, which excites keen interest among many stockmen.

The plaintiffs' complaint alleges that if the defendants' cattle were turned into the Merchant's range, damage to the plaintiffs would amount to not less than $40,000.
