The Big Fair Assured

PLANS for the El Paso annual fair to be held the first week in November are now getting in good shape. A strong board of directors has been elected, the fair is fully financed, and the business men behind the enterprise are entering upon their work with enthusiasm.

It has wisely been decided to extend the fair this year over a longer time so as to include two Saturdays and two Sundays. This will undoubtedly increase the attendance from out of town as well as from the city.

The poultry association is taking the lead this year as it did last in organizing for the fair and completing its list of added trophies and premiums. The poultry exhibit last year was one of the most interesting on the grounds, although it was made up almost entirely from local sources, having only a very few outside exhibitors.

The fair is going to be a success in exact proportion to the amount of enthusiasm and personal effort the citizens of El Paso throw into it.

The man most addicted to practical jokes, generally takes one with a grinch himself. Don't deny a person a privilege that gives him enjoyment. For instance, many people who object to smoking in this world, have no assurance that they themselves will not smoke in the next.

Texas averages three homicides a day, year in and year out. Speaking of one of the recent killings a wag says, "Well, I am sorry for the dead man, but the killer is in no danger."

When You Get Your Money Back

YOU who go to the stores and call for an article and care nothing of the brand or where it is made, did you ever stop to think that when you get articles "made in El Paso," it is only a question of time until you get your money back?

Local enterprises pay out a large amount of money in a year to their employes, for taxes and improvements and all of this money remains in El Paso. They assist in keeping up the streets, in keeping the children in the schools, and as a rule they are always ready to assist in anything for the good of the town.

"Night falls but never breaks; day breaks, but never falls," says a wag. He'll be asking next if anybody ever saw a sidewalk, or a house fly?

Let the firecrackers crack and the bombs explode for the Fourth, but keep them away from the children and don't shoot them off downtown.

Responding to the query of Elizabeth A. K., who wants to know what to wear when she goes bathing on the coast, we suggest a bathing costume.

One trouble with some of our street work is that a job is not finished when commenced. A graded street when left without rolling and topping, will deteriorate very fast.

Taft's Conservative Policies

THE business interests of the country are now thoroughly convinced that president Taft's policies are conservative, and that he is wise enough and able enough to carry them out. Much of the new legislation has been carried through by the personal force of the president against the obstructive tactics of the powerful and conservative older members from eastern states and against the ill-considered radicalism of some of the newer men in both houses of congress.

There has been a marked change of sentiment throughout the country as the result of the work of congress during the last days of the session. President Taft is undoubtedly stronger today with the majority of the people in this country than he has been at any time since his nomination for the presidency. He has successfully lived down the disfavor that some of his speeches aroused and his successes in important constructive legislation have made friends for him in all classes, emphasizing both his conservatism and his absolute independence of thought.

The crop outlook, upon which financial conditions at this season mainly depend, is reported satisfactory, with steady improvement. The outlook is for big crops in nearly every line and good prices will prevail.

The situation in the money market at home and abroad is pronounced favorable by the financial authorities. Reserves are increasing and loans are contracting. Funds are accumulating abroad and interest rates declining. The banking situation throughout the west is improving steadily and it is expected that the demands for the crop movement will be met without difficulty.

UNCLE WALT'S Denatured Poem

MY LITTLE dog Dot is a sassy pup, and I scold him in savage tones, for he keeps the garden all littered up with feathers and rags and bones. He drags dead cats for a half a mile, and sometimes a long-dead hen; and when I have carted away the pile, he builds it all up again. He howls for hours at the beaming moon, and thinks it a Melba chore; and neighbors who list to his throbbing tune, rear up in the air and roar. And often I hand down this stern decree: "This critter will have to die."

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH BOYS AND MEN BUSINESS FROM THE TALMUD

The Talmud has been the most remarkably powerful book in the influence exercised upon the thought and life of the Jews. My Success readers may find in these lofty teachings, noble ideals and exalted ideas, a reason for the power for good the Jew has been in the world.

- Wrong neither thy brother in faith nor him who differs from you in faith. The laborer at his work need not rise before the greatest doctor. He who lives by work of his hands is greater than he who indulges in idle play. Too many captains sink the ship. The action of a fool cannot serve as a precedent. Not without reason goes the crow to the raven, but because it is of its kind. He laid his money on the horns of a deer. Keep partners with him whom the hour favors. If thy business doth not prosper in one town try another. The egg of today is better than the hen of tomorrow. Better eat onions all your life than dine upon geese and chickens once and then long in vain for more ever after. He that hires one garden will eat birds; he that hires many gardens the birds will eat him. Go to sleep without supper, but rise without debt. There is no greater evildoer than he who takes away the earnings of the poor. In the town where one lives the name will do, outside of it the dress must do. Live within your means; spend more on your clothing and most on your home. If thy friends agree in calling thee an ass, go and get a halter around thee. When the thief has no opportunity to steal he considers himself an honest man.

14 YEARS AGO TO-DAY

Colonel Locke returned this morning from Mexico City. He says the great change that has now completed, with the big tunnel under the divide. He also speaks of the need there is of a good American plan hotel with all the conveniences found in an American hotel. A dispatch from Peos says: "Walthal and Gillette were both nominated; El Paso delegation refused to vote; Buckler and Wallace declined to allow their names to go before the convention. George Austin, agricultural superintendent of the Utah Sugar Co., at Lehi, Utah, is in town on his way to Eddy, where he will help harvest the virgin crop of beets and also assist the owners of the factory in starting it properly. According to facts brought out at the meeting of music-lovers to discuss the coming festival, it will cost about $2500 to put it on. But the promoters are going through with it at any cost, and scores are working along financial lines.

Little Editorials By Herald Readers

STOP AND THINK. Might it not be a wholesome self-chastisement for complacent El Pasoans if they were to pause and reckon up the number of brutal murders committed in their city within the past very few years and further behind them than to the best of the writer's knowledge not one of the criminals, if an American, has been punished? What kind of a record is this to present to the best class of would-be citizens? Not only so, but if such an outrageous condition of affairs persists, are we not in danger of losing some of our long-established and valuable citizens, who may well feel that this is no place in which to raise a family, and may consequently leave El Paso to enjoy her boasted civilization, progress and skyscrapers. It is surely time that the border-town element and habits were abolished. As a starter, why not fine every "pistol-toter," man or woman, $500 with its equivalent of jail incarceration in case of failure to pay. Taxpayer.

NO WORK FOR HIM. El Paso, Tex., June 20, 1910. Editor El Paso Herald: I see an article in your paper, signed by a man with a wife and six children, asking you to help him to get employment. No doubt this man wants to earn an honest living—but how many more are there in El Paso in the same fix? You printed in your paper some months ago, that girl clerks get $1.00 a day and up, stating that of course $1.00 a day was for a new beginner, and that most girl clerks got from $25 per week and up and men clerks got $100 to $150 per month.

THE TRAVELED FROG. Editor El Paso Herald: A frog that had hopped extensively about the neighborhood prepared to return to its little puddle, and its neighbors arranged a great reception for it. A hundred voices joined in a bass chorus, and the crowd joined in making great sways in a maze of figures in honor of the returned traveler. The Traveled Frog had added a title to his name and proceeded to address his countrymen: "What you need," he said, "is to stop this race suicide." Here there was tremendous cheering. "Besides that, six and seven are thirteen, and a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." These profundities excited the admiration of the populace, who exclaimed, "He seems to know everything." The Traveled Frog continued: "What we need is to make the weaker frogs catch insects for the big ones." (Cries of cheer, hear, hear.) "I may have sounded like 'Bull Frog,' but it was really hear hear." This can be done by capitalizing the pool and distributing the

Army Maneuvers

EDUCATION FOR NATIONAL GUARDSMEN OF GREAT ASSISTANCE DURING WARS

MILITARY maneuvers were begun yesterday on the Gettysburg battlefield, just 47 years since the armies of Meade and Lee met each other at that place. The battlefield of Chickamauga also began to hear again the rattle of musketry, the occasion of the maneuvers on the two battlefields being the joint camps of instruction which are being held throughout the United States during the present summer and fall. Under the new policy of the war department, as such even year witnesses joint maneuvers by the regular army and the state militia, while in the odd years the National Guard is expected to take care of itself. These war games are planned and fought in order to give the officers of the regular army and of the National Guard that experience which cannot be had from the books or even in the actual practice of the army or in the handling of small bodies of men in the field.

The work of the present summer is in furtherance of a carefully wrought out plan to train and organize the National Guard as to permit it to be such even year witnesses joint maneuvers by the regular army and the state militia, while in the odd years the National Guard is expected to take care of itself. These war games are planned and fought in order to give the officers of the regular army and of the National Guard that experience which cannot be had from the books or even in the actual practice of the army or in the handling of small bodies of men in the field.

Under this plan there would be about eight army corps created, and the regulars and the militia would be so arranged that the regulars would be duty at once in the case of war. It is the intention of the war department, as soon as the necessary legislation and state cooperation is secured, to organize the country into about eight military districts, with a central army post in each district, and a post in each state. In this way the regular army may be used as the nucleus of a military organization composed of the full strength of the regular army and the National Guard.

This plan already has been tried in the case of the sea coast defense. Realizing that congress would not appropriate sufficient appropriations for the manning of all the sea coast defenses, yet aware of the fact that the defenses can be efficiently handled in case of war only by men of considerable training, the war department secured the consent of the governors of the sea coast states to have the soldiery of the National Guard detailed to assist in the manning of these defenses.

The idea of so arranging the mobile forces of the regular army and the National Guard that they will be fully organized for active service at all times is now being tried out. The New England states and the state of New York have been designated as the first field army district. The National Guard of these states and the regular army organizations quartered in their territory have been organized into the first field army of the United States, with the commanding general of the department of the east as its commander.

If the experiment with reference to the first field army works out as satisfactorily as the war department has reason to expect, similar armies will be organized in the other parts of the country. When these armies have been perfected the United States will find itself on a secure war footing, with no addition to the standing army.

The only thing necessary to the accomplishment of this purpose is that the governors of the states and counties shall give their cooperation to the project. It will involve no additional service of money and no additional service of the National Guard; all the advantages of a large standing army may thus be secured with none of the disadvantages incident to the maintenance of such a body of soldiers.

Under the new plan there will be stock among the capable. Then the owners can get their tribute because they will give work to the other frogs. This being accomplished, it will be necessary to organize armies not as men do. The insect catching frogs can be organized for the purpose of preventing themselves from rebelling and keeping the insects they catch. This is civilization.

The Traveled Frog swelled up with pride, and the pool rang with his praise. Susie Clarke. COUNTY ATTORNEY STOPS A FOURTH OF JULY FIGHT. Preparations under way for a prize fight on the county road near Washington park on the afternoon of the Fourth have been forestalled by county Attorney Bridgers, and the proposed scrap, or scraps, will not take place.

Notice had been posted on several bulletin boards in downtown cigar stores and cafes to the effect that corporal Atwell would go 10 rounds with Frank Moran in the heavyweight class, while there would also be a match for five rounds between two locals. County attorney Bridgers happened to read one of these chalked-up notices. "They don't allow prize-fighting in this state," he said. "The fight won't come off unless somebody wants to go to jail."

Saturday morning the following addition was made to the bulletin board: "This is a joke. The fight is called off."

YEAGER FINDS GOLD IN WHITE OAKS CAMP

All Mills in operation—The North Homestake Valuable Property.

Christ Yeager, who is developing the Silver Cliff and Miners Cabin mines, at White Oaks, N. M., has run his tunnel into the hill 80 feet and has struck a winze 30 feet, striking a nine inch streak of very rich gold. He says that the White Oaks district is bound to prove a great gold producer in the near future.

The Old Abe is milling plenty of good ore on the 26 stamp mill. The North Homestake is also running its 20 stamp mill night and day, and has shipped to the United States 100,000 pounds of gold since the last 60 days $60,000. The Rito mine, which lies between the North Homestake and the Yeager properties, is working six men and has struck some very rich gold ore.

Yeager has some samples of gold taken from the hill between him and the North Homestake, bristling with gold that will assay in the hundreds of thousands of dollars per ton. The camp, he says, is really livelier than ever before in its 25 years history.

AMUSEMENTS.

ROOSEVELT PICTURES AT CRYSTAL. Views of Theodore Roosevelt's visits to Cairo and Paris will be shown at the Crystal tonight. It had been planned to show his New York reception but through some mistake of the film exchange, the wrong reel was sent. Both sets of pictures are said to be good, those of Paris being particularly so. Other pictures will also be shown.

LAST NIGHT OF "PATSY'S VISIT." If you haven't seen the show this week at the Airborne all you mean go tonight, is manager Rich's advice, for every person who has seen the show is loud in praise of this clever production. Tonight is the last time. Tomorrow night the bill will be changed to "A Married Widow."

A MARRIED WIDOW. Tomorrow night the Airborne company will offer what admits to be one of the best offerings of the season. The skit is in two acts and is called "A Married Widow" and both acts are full of bright musical numbers.

AT THE HAPPY HOUR. Tonight and Sunday the Happy Hour will continue the bill which was given Thursday and Friday evening. Many who have witnessed the show pronounce it good. New pictures are being shown and the summer prices of 10c for general admission, 20c for reserved seats and 5c for children under 12 years of age still remain in effect. There will be a complete change of program Monday night.

DETROIT BASEBALL MAGNATE INTERESTED IN BISBEE MINE. W. H. Yawkey, also a multimillionaire, and Associates, Develop Promising Property.

W. H. Yawkey, a Detroit multimillionaire, and associates, are developing what promises to be one of the future bonanzas of the Bisbee copper district. The company is known as the Yawkey Extension Development company, and owns about 2500 acres of valuable mineral ground about nine miles northwest of the Bisbee camp, and six miles from Lewis Springs, on the El P. & S. W. railroad. Mr. Yawkey is owner of the Detroit baseball club, and although a comparatively young man, is one of the largest owners of iron mines in the peninsula state, as well as of a number of producing oil wells in West Virginia.

The Bisbee Extension company has been doing extensive development work, having drifted and cross cut over 2000 feet at the 400 foot level. At a depth of 125 feet a flow of water was encountered and a 500 gallon pumping plant became necessary, which has been installed. The management expects to reach the faults, toward which it is drifting, within the next 30 days.

Several analyses have been made of the water that is being pumped, which show that the solid matter carries 2.44 grains of copper sulphate in 17.58 grains of solids per U. S. gallon. This phenomenon is usual in the neighborhood of large copper ore deposits.

CHARGED WITH VAGRANCY. Ramon Dominguez, on a charge of vagrancy, was arrested by the police on complaint of S. H. railway watchmen, who claimed that he threw rocks at a fire-walker when the latter was at work. Also at others who were loading bricks from a brickyard. Dominguez formerly worked in the brickyard. Judge Lew in police court ordered a continuance of the case in order that the rock-throwing might be more thoroughly investigated.
