

Stunning Fall Suits

at $22.50 and $25.00

Beginning tomorrow, we make a display of stylish suits at a nominal price, the like of which has never before been seen in El Paso. We invite you to see this showing of suits, knowing it will please you. The mannish simplicity of the garments, their perfect tailoring and the good taste that characterizes every model will appeal strongly to you.

These suits show the correct coats of the season—semi-fitting, ranging in length from 32 to 36 inches. Skirts in the new plain gored effect, as well as the always new and smart pleated styles.

These suits will be shown in the new shades of gray, brown, tan, blue and green. Although we have hundreds of suits at a higher price range, we feature specially the balance of the week suits at the nominal prices of $22.50 and $25.00.

New Veils

Chiffon veils, in a great variety of styles, are specially featured the remainder of this week. Automobile and all other late styles and patterns are shown. The color range is complete. Prices on veils range from $1.00 up.

Neckwear

Tasteful assortments are now shown of "Kaiser" Jabots, Collars and Stock Ties in all the staple as well as the new Persian effects. Indeed, all the latest New York ideas in neckwear will be displayed here the balance of the week.

The Newest Thing In Bags

The present season has brought out more new ideas in bags than any previous year. We show the best interest of all the late novelties that are on the market. The chaine sets show mesh purse with chain attached piece—the coin purse, pencil, memo tablets and vanity bag. The leather bags are showing this year have more elaborate fittings than ever before. The underlying idea is to give added convenience to a woman's shopping or traveling trip.

Hand Embroidered Waists at $3.75

Another special feature for the balance of the week is a showing of newest style hand embroidered waists. These waists are made of a soft quality linen, and are hand embroidered in beautiful floral designs. They have stiff collars and cuffs. A special lot will be featured at $3.75

New Hose at 50c

The circular exhibition case at our Main Entrance gives you a splendid idea of the new styles in black hose for fall. These hose are variously embroidered in colors, and we note for the balance of the week selections at 50c per pair.

JOHN FISHER GETS THE LOOK HOTEL

Will Have Small, Uptodate Place, With Restaurant Attached.

John Fisher has leased the hotel in the brick building and will open it as a commercial hotel as soon as it is completed. The lease was signed Tuesday and the finish is now being added to the Look building, the second and third floor of which will furnish the rooms for the hotel. The lobby will be on the first floor opening onto West San Antonio street with a second lobby on the second floor. An elevator is now being installed and the main stairway building. The hotel will have 42 rooms, each of which will have a bath and telephone. Sample rooms are being built for the commercial travelers, and an archway will connect the main lobby with the dining room. The lobby will also be connected with the basement by a stairway allowing access to the bowling alleys and pool tables occupying the entire basement. A leaded glass entrance is now being built onto San Antonio street and the woodwork of the building is to be mahogany with heavy brass trimmings.

ANOTHER NEW SITE OFFERED FOR HOTEL

Corner of West San Antonio and El Paso Streets Is Placed on Market.

Another site for the proposed new hotel is being favorably considered by the men who are in charge of the hotel campaign. The site is on the corner of El Paso and West San Antonio streets, and includes the building now occupied by the Happy Hour theater, Kohberger's cigar factory and store, and the Guarantee shoe store. This property is considered one of the best in the city for a hotel site and the owners of adjoining property have offered to take a large block of stock in the company should this corner be selected for the El Paso hotel.

GUADALAJARA RESIDENT MAY LOCATE IN EL PASO

E. J. Callahan, a prominent business man of Guadalajara, Mex., is here for a few days' visit with R. A. Moore and other friends before leaving for Los Angeles. Mr. Callahan has disposed of a large part of his interests in the republic, and is planning to locate either in Los Angeles or El Paso.

WALK SIDEWALK FINISHED.

The going is good again on the El Paso street sidewalk. The new walk in front of the W. G. Walk store has been completed and the barriers have been removed.

NO MEXICANS ARE IN COURT TUESDAY

Only Americans Appear Before Police Judge Lea for Daily Medicine.

No Mexicans were among those who appeared in police court Wednesday morning when "Dad" Burnham marched the "children," as Judge Lea persists in calling prisoners, into the court room. This is an occurrence which has not happened before in many moons.

Of the four prisoners, all Americans, one, J. J. Flynn, was there by mistake, having been given 20 days the afternoon before.

J. Shallenberger, the next man up, admitted that he was guilty of being drunk. Questions from the court drew out the fact that he was a New Mexico merchant, here on a visit, who had celebrated his arrival in the city rather freely. The court dismissed the charge.

K. Callahan, a big, good natured Irishman, who is an expert well driller, was up again for the second time within the month. The court fined him $5, which he paid, and left for Mexico, where he is employed.

Notwithstanding the fact that C. F. King, the last man arraigned, raised his hand on the witness stand and swore by high heaven that he was not guilty of "moochin," which is police court parlance for begging, other witnesses testified to the contrary, and the court assessed a light fine.

INFIDELS GO TO THE CHURCHES TO GET WIVES, SAYS PREACHER

Rev. Mr. Head, at Baptist Revival, Scores the Worshipers of Mundane Things; Special Music.

Another large crowd attended the tent meeting Tuesday night at the corner of Florence and Montana streets. Rev. Head's subject last night was "Idolatry," and he took occasion to tell how people made worldly things their idols instead of God. "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," was the text taken and for 20 minutes the speaker scored them for breaking this commandment and then admonished them to change their ways.

"I know of a man in Kentucky," said the speaker, "who made horses his gods. He had one thoroughbred of which he was especially fond and to which he willed everything he had at his death. He ought to have been a horse himself."

During the course of his remarks Mr. Head took occasion to say something about infidels. "Why is it that these fellows who hoot at the church and religion always come to the churches to get their wives?" he asked. "They feel sorry for our lovely christian women who tie themselves up for life with one of these men who make their religious life miserable until the end and then begin to call on God when they see they are about to pass away."

The music last night was fine and the congregation entered in the singing. Before the sermon Mr. Jolly sang "No Silver Nor Gold." On account of a cold Miss Pitts was unable to sing, but will sing tonight.

Donald Young, son of attorney R. L. Young, of Las Cruces, is here on a brief visit. Donald has completed his course at the Agricultural college and is preparing to enter the Yale law school this fall for a complete law course.

EL PASO WOMAN SHOWS HER GRIT

Covers Negro With Revolver and Forces Him From Neighbor's Home.

The story of an El Paso woman who saw a negro ransacking the room of her neighbor and immediately proceeded to cover him with a revolver and summoned the police, came to light yesterday in the arrest of E. C. Higgins, a negro. Mrs. Inez Vincent, of 513 Florence street, is the woman who tackled the burglar single handed, and Mrs. John Harris, of 509 Florence street, is the woman to whose aid she went.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Vincent was not successful in her effort to hold the prisoner, who picked up a gun belonging to Mrs. Harris and ordered her out of the way. Mrs. Vincent's gun had one load in it, and as the negro ran, she tried her best to take a shot at him, but could not make it fire. Her interference, however, forced the negro to leave behind his hat and shoes. It was through these that the police arrested Higgins. Mrs. Harris declared that Higgins, who was at work on the Mills building, was the right man, the police say.

The right name of the negro, arrested as Liggett, is Ed Watkins, says chief detective Stansel, who says that he arrested him more than a year ago, at Texline, on a charge of burglary. He was tried in the county jail, and had to be tied before he could be brought in. Detective Stansel says that he recovered from him a quantity of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Michaelson and her sister, who lived on Texas street. They left here for New York before the negro was tried, and the case was dismissed.

KANSAS STREET WILL OPEN IN TEN DAYS

Work of Demolishing Buildings Progresses and the Grading Will Start.

Within 10 days Kansas street will be opened from Mills street to Myrtle avenue, a step which the progress of the city has long demanded, and for which preparations, through the voting of bonds, were made several months ago. Alderman Percy McGhee is authority for the statement that within the time named the work will have been completed.

Following the wrecking of the buildings, the city will proceed at once with the grading and paving of this street, which will become one of the most useful and most traveled in the city, giving as it does direct connection with Myrtle avenue and Texas street from across the tracks, and relieving the congested condition which has prevailed on Stanton street, because of the lack of facilities on Kansas street.

In accordance with the understanding at the time, bonds were voted to meet the expense of opening Kansas street, and West San Antonio street, the wrecking of the buildings in the path of the proposed street will be at the expense of the owners of the property. The bonds were for $110,000, of which $50,000 was spent on West San Antonio and $50,000 in acquiring the property necessary to be condemned in opening Kansas street. This is about one-third of the actual value of the property, the other two-thirds having been borne by the property owners.

The opening of Kansas street will mean a convenience to thousands of citizens.

ROOSEVELT RECEPTION HEARTY EVERYWHERE

try and the crowds at many of the stations were small. As it was, however, almost everybody who lived near the various stations was on hand and at almost every stop there was a collection of farm wagons which had brought farmers and their families into town to see the traveler and hear his three-minute speeches. They stood up in their wagons and shouted with all their might. They came dressed in their work-day clothes, which pleased the colonel immensely.

Came in Work Clothes.

Many of the men had on blue flannel shirts and jumpers and the women wore bonnets. The scene at Sugar City, Colo., was a typical one. Sugar City is a little city not many miles from the Kansas line, where the people raise sugar beets. Perhaps 200 persons had collected at the small wooden station. On both sides of the railroad tracks the country-side stretched out in unbroken monotony to the sky line. Prairie dogs romped on the plains, and an occasional windmill and here and there a lone wooden building outlined sharply against the sky, were the only signs of civilization away from the little town, which clustered along the single track of the railroad. The noisy, enthusiastic crowd of men and women, their faces bronzed from exposure to the prairie storms, yelled with delight as the colonel emerged from his car. Half a dozen freight cars, drawn up on the siding, were crowded with farm hands who had climbed on top of them. The others crowded eagerly around the rear end of the car.

Glad To Be in West.

"It is good to be here, and to see you men and women of the west," said the colonel, his face beaming with pleasure. "I have been impressed in going through this region, with the development of your sugar beets and alfalfa. You have made the country blossom like the rose." He paused to take in the picturesque scene. In the crowd near him stood a farmer's boy of 3 or 10, wearing blue jumpers a good deal too large for him and a sombrero of such immense proportions that about all the colonel could see of his face was the treckles on the end of his nose. "Give it to 'em, Teddy," the boy shouted. The colonel's smile grew wider. He reached down to shake the boy's hand. He could not reach him and the colonel asked someone to lift him up. That done, he proceeded with his speech.

"Here I see an army button," he said, inviting attention to a veteran who stood a few feet from him. "You did pretty well to fight for this country. It is worth fighting for. There are plenty of things that can be made better and we will fight for them as you did in the civil war. We will fight against corruption. But remember, this country gives us average men that are superior to many of the people of the world."

As the train pulled out Col. Roosevelt grasped some of the hands that were eagerly thrust above the railing of his private car and then waving goodbye, shouted: "Thank you very much, and hurrah for the pretty girls." The "pretty girls" had listened to his talk with evident eagerness, the pretty faces being in many instances encased in poke bonnets.

Fruit Brought to Train.

There were similar scenes at a dozen places along the line during the day. Wherever he stopped, the colonel talked to the people about honesty and good citizenship, and was always cheered for what he said. The people of good watermelon and cantaloupes grown on the spot.

"I know you people out here, and you know me," he said to the crowds at Eads.

"You bet we do," the crowd shouted back.

"I trust you with all my heart," the colonel continued.

"And we trust you," the response came back.

The colonel wanted to speak longer, but just then the engineer blew his whistle, and the train started to creep down the long straight line of rails which stretched away into the distance until it came to a point at the horizon and disappeared.

Gifford Pinchot, former chief forester, and James R. Garfield, ex-secretary of the interior, traveled with Col. Roosevelt all day. Governor Stubbs, of Kansas, joined the party early this morning to go on to Osawatimie.

Dodges Bouquet.

The Roosevelt train stopped for a few minutes at Tribune, Kansas, and the colonel went out to make his bow to the crowd. Just as he appeared on the platform a woman hurled a huge bunch of dahlias at him. The colonel, who is near sighted, saw dimly the object hurtling through the air directly toward his head and dodged back while the crowd laughed.

As soon as he saw what it was, Col. Roosevelt picked up the bouquet and thanked the donor.

"I thought somebody was throwing a bottle at me," he said. The crowd clamored for a speech.

"Some kinds of government will succeed with almost any kind of people," he said, "but it takes a good grade of citizens to make a success of a government like ours."

Before he had a chance to complete his speech, the train pulled out.

Dr. Jerome Trioli, resident physician for the Lluvia de Oro Mining company of southern Sonora, has returned for a brief visit with his parents. Dr. Trioli was graduated from the Tulane Medical college in June and has been in charge of the hospital at the Mexican mining camp since that time.

NEW CALISHER BLOCK WILL BE HANDSOME

The final plans for the new Calisher block to be built on the corner of Stanton and Texas streets are being drawn by Frost & Frost. The building will be of reinforced concrete, five stories above ground, with a basement and a sub-basement, and a roof garden. It is estimated that the new structure will cost $100,000, and will be finished in white glazed terra cotta, with plate and art glass on the two street fronts.
