Palace of Chance Is Planned In Retaliation for Agitation—Juarez Merchants to Take Up Fight.

With renewed action of the El Paso Merchants' league against keno gambling, comes the report that one of the most valuable properties in Ciudad Juarez may be leased for the erection of a keno palace, and also that Juarez merchants are to organize against the "pokers' game." An Alderete, said to be Benigno Alderete, father of Isaac Alderete, clerk of the El Paso district court, is bidding for a property at Avenida Lerdo and Calle Comercio, owned by George G. Sauer, of El Paso.

New Lodge Organized With a Membership Close to 200 El Pasoans.

WILL HAVE CLUB HOUSE SHORTLY

El Paso has a lodge. The Independent Order of Beavers is now represented by a lodge with 151 charter members, all representative citizens. Of this number 134 were initiated Friday evening. The order is patterned somewhat on the lines of the Elks, is fraternal and social, and has for its principal objects the purity of the home, patriotism and a higher American citizenship, and the perpetuation of the white race unadmixed with any other blood. One of its tenets is the care and protection of widows and orphans and the preservation of the purity of the home.

Although hotels have often been built of hot air, the New Sheldon will have cold air as a special feature. Cold air is very desirable in summer, especially in a dining room, and the New Sheldon will have lots of it.

AIR TO BE FORCED THROUGH THE PIPES

A three-cornered cooling plant is being built. It will cool water, cool food and cool air. The new hotel not only will have its own ice making plant, the most modern in the state, but will cool water by the artificial route and cool air, as well. The refrigerators will be supplied with ice, the drinking water will run through cold pipes, and the air will be pumped into the big dining room through an ice shaft.

Complexion of Congress.

At present there are 291 members in the lower house, of whom 217 are Republicans and 74 Democrats. Owing to the growth of insurgency, which the Democrats claim has caused an irreconcilable split in the ranks of the Republican party, and the alleged dissatisfaction which exists throughout the country over the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, the Democratic leaders feel confident of overcoming this majority. To this end they have directed their fire to a number of the so-called pivotal states, such as Indiana, Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa and Maryland. Should they succeed in capturing the doubtful districts in these states, they would undoubtedly be assured of a majority. Their confidence in doing this is due in a great measure to the early fall elections held in the down east states, and the special congressional elections, which were held to fill vacancies in the house.

BALLOON BURNS AT THE FAIR

When the big balloon was inflated and ready to soar Friday afternoon, the flames from the fire which filled the balloon with hot air, set fire to the cloth of the air craft, and before it could be extinguished the big bag was burning in midair. One of the anchor ropes was made fast and the balloon brought to earth and the fire smothered out in the folds of the big sack. But there was no ascension.

TUESDAY THE VOTERS CHOOSE BETWEEN THE TWO GREAT PARTIES

New York, Nov. 5.—Will the 62nd congress be Democratic or Republican? is the most important question to be decided at the elections to be held throughout the country on Tuesday next.

All the rigors of the campaign are now over, and the candidates are anxiously awaiting the results of their efforts. What the outcome will be is, of course, problematical. Not since the famous free silver and gold campaign of 1896 have political forecasters been so completely in the dark.

Democratic leaders all over the country are highly jubilant, and wear an air of unusual confidence. They not only claim a majority in the house of representatives, but also express the belief that sufficient Democratic legislatures will be elected through the country to insure a majority in the senate.

Complexion of Congress.

At present there are 291 members in the lower house, of whom 217 are Republicans and 74 Democrats. Owing to the growth of insurgency, which the Democrats claim has caused an irreconcilable split in the ranks of the Republican party, and the alleged dissatisfaction which exists throughout the country over the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, the Democratic leaders feel confident of overcoming this majority. To this end they have directed their fire to a number of the so-called pivotal states, such as Indiana, Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa and Maryland. Should they succeed in capturing the doubtful districts in these states, they would undoubtedly be assured of a majority. Their confidence in doing this is due in a great measure to the early fall elections held in the down east states, and the special congressional elections, which were held to fill vacancies in the house.

Notable Precedent.

The most notable of these was the election in Maine, where a Democratic governor was placed in office for the first time in 30 years. The Maine Democrats also elected majorities in both houses of the state legislature, insuring a Democratic successor to senator Hale, and two out of the four congressmen. The election in Vermont, which is called the political barometer of the country, also showed a substantial falling off of the Republican vote. At the special election held in the gross to be selected in New York state. At the present time the Republicans have 25 in the lower house, while the Democrats have 12.

New England Parties.

In Massachusetts the Democrats appear to have become somewhat demoralized. They were unable to select a candidate at the convention and Eugene Foss, congressman for the fourth district, was finally picked by the state committee to head the ticket. Eugene Draper, the present incumbent, is again at the head of the Republican ticket.

The Democrats of Connecticut have nominated a strong candidate in judge Simeon E. Baldwin, who is being opposed by Charles Goodwin. The Republican organization in this state, however, is very strong, and controls the four congressional districts, as well as the congressman at large.

Taft's Home State.

The fight in Ohio presents another interesting situation. Here governor incumbent is being opposed by Warren G. Harding, the Republican nominee. Both men have conducted vigorous campaigns. Ohio will also elect 21 congressmen. At the present time

DAN PATCH IS THE DRAWING ATTRACTION

Dan and the Other Fast Savage Horses Appear Before El Paso Audience.

JOCKEY IS THROWN; HIS LEG IS BROKEN

Minor Heir Throws a Shoe, But Still Makes a New Track Record at Park.

A grand day, a great crowd and some splendid racing made Dan Patch day Friday by far the biggest day at the fair and the biggest event since The Herald had Charles K. Hamilton's fly out over the mountains and across the international border in his golden airplane.

It was a three-ring circus effect that was obtained by the Fair association. Beginning at 1 o'clock, the baseball game between Douglas and El Paso was played to a 10 inning tie, the harness events were run on the half mile track, a polo game was pulled off in the infield and enough varied attractions were going to keep the crowd looking half a dozen different ways at once.

Dan Patch, the king of all harness horses, was the biggest attraction of the day that had been named in his honor. All day Friday the old campaigner had held a reception in his improvised box stall on the colonnade. A 3 o'clock he headed the parade of Savage stable winners hitched to a white four wheeled speed wagon and driven by Charles Plummer. The driver of the grand old horse with a mark of 1:55 wore an all white suit, and Dan seemed to appreciate the ovation which was given him as he led the procession down in front of the grandstands. He was followed by Minor Heir, driven by Harry Hersey, the crack driver of the Savage stables; Lady Maud C., handled by driver Erwin, also of the Savage string, and George Gano with Dick McMahon up. Hedgewood Boy, who was unable to appear as the fourth horse in the match race, was led past the stand and received as much applause as the other prime favorites.

The Big Race.

Judge Hunter then sent them away the first time to a flying start with Lady Maud C. a slight lead to the good, George Gano second and Minor Heir, the little favorite, last. The heir to the honors of Patch threw a shoe as the word was given and finished the race only three-fourths ahead. Lady Maud C. continued to lead for the first half mile. At the five-eighths Hersey gave the little performer its head and the space of blue sky was closed up before the final turn for the stretch came. The Minor Heir seemed to show a burst of speed which put the wire of the Savage stables under the wire a nose ahead of Lady Maud C. The time of the mile was 2:06 1/2, which is three seconds faster than the track record at the fair grounds and one of the fastest miles ever made in the state. Dan Patch and his family gave entire satisfaction and the appearance of the pacers was the biggest feature of fair week.

The 2:24 Trot.

Wild Girl, owned and handled by J. C. Wallace, won the 2:24 trot, which was for a purse of $500. Wild Girl took each of the heats from Exponent and Capt. Hunt, who finished in second and third positions, with W. F. O'Brien and Dick McMahon up. Don, owned by E. Perry, took the three heats of the freeforall pace, the second number

John K. Tener, Former Elk Chief, In Hard Race In Pennsylvania

W. H. BERRY, Democratic Nominee for Governor. JOHN K. TENER, Republican Nominee for Governor. Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 5.—The political pot has seldom boiled so fiercely in Pennsylvania as this year. Mud slinging has been in evidence throughout, including charges of incompetency and lack of fidelity to office on the one hand and charges of fraud on the other. John K. Tener, an ex-baseball player, was made the Republican nominee. Opposed to him is W. H. Berry, former state treasurer, as Democratic candidate. Both men are well known throughout the state. Back of Tener is senator Penrose, who has for so many years dominated Pennsylvania politics. Two years ago president Taft carried the state by plurality of 297,001. In 1906 governor Stewart carried the state for the Republican party by a plurality of 48,455.
