

Intense Suffering From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A New Discovery, But Not a Patent Medicine.

Dr. Redwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable case of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: "The patient was a man who had suffered, to my knowledge, for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create gases in the stomach. He had pains like rheumatism in the back, shoulder blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of flesh, the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night."

"I gave him powerful nerve tonic and blood remedies, but to no purpose. As an experiment I finally bought a 50 cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given and a few days later he had used four boxes he was as well as appearance fully cured."

"There was no more acidity or sour, watery risings, no bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous and he has gained between 10 and 12 pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh."

"Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores, yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids or in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but fruit and vegetable essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal."

"Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach, however slight or severe."

BULGIN GETS SUBSCRIBERS FOR HERALD

Pledges 21 to Take Paper at Night and Eleven in the Afternoon.

SAYS ALL MUST GET IN POLITICS

Evangelist Bulgín talked circulation at Tuesday night's meeting in the tabernacle. Hearing that two subscriptions to The Herald had been stopped, he addressed the audience on Christian Science, the evangelist asked his hearers for 10 times that many subscriptions. Without any hesitation 21 persons stood up, pledging themselves to subscribe. At the afternoon meeting 11 made pledges.

Besides the ban being tightened on the devil at last night's meeting, the official kibosh was passed on the dog. During a musical number one small dog "also sang," and the voice was not in harmony. So George L. Rose, musical director, asked that no more family dogs be brought to church.

"Bring all the babies," he said, "but leave the dogs at home. This interruption has occurred before."

Preaching for Money. Denial that the evangelist had come under promise of a bonus was made by Rev. Frank W. Otto. "This rumor is a lie, and a concoction of the devil," he said. Also the evangelist said that an effort was being made to tear down the tabernacle. It was explained that a small portion of the building was on city property, where the city wanted to build a sidewalk.

"They do so much talking about preaching for money," said Bulgín. "But they will pay the lawyer and pay the doctor."

Parable of Seven Cows. The evangelist preached on the parable of the seven lean cows and the seven fat cows, Pharo's dream. "I believe in dreams," said the speaker, "that is I believe people have dreams. Dreams may come from God, and may come from a disarranged stomach. How closely good is associated with bad, in the same meadow! It is the same all through life."

Bulgín named each of the fat cows, starting with the Business Cow, and saying much of hopefulness for the age of progress. Next he landed on the Cow of Avarice. He said the greatest sin of the nation was human selfishness. Right there the speaker rapped Harriman and praised Roosevelt.

Man Who Defends Gambling. Speaking of children he said: "Every little boy is somebody's little boy, and you who defend gambling and the saloon for business reasons are dirtier than the gambler and the saloonkeeper."

"A fool can make money, and it takes no character to become a millionaire," he said in dwelling on the Ambitious Cow.

"Get Into Politics." "Every Christian man ought to get in politics," declared Bulgín when he arrived at the Political Cow. "And the preachers ought to preach it," he added. "Then El Paso would not be the same in the future as it has been in the past. They tell me you have a population which is 50 percent Mexican. On one side is the saloon and the church and on the other the people. The Mexican will follow the Catholic priest. Bury your Democracy and Republicanism. The initiative, referendum and recall is a good thing, and Bulgín is a good thing. God needs a wind bag to let these things out."

The Mexican Problem. Bulgín spoke of the Mexican problem as being El Paso's problem. He said that the Mexicans could not be blamed, being under a "flag, semi civilized." This border town needs a higher standard. Educate the Mexicans and use them as a power for good," he advised.

AMUSEMENTS

"LITTLE MINISTER" - CRAWFORD. For the last time tonight, the Crawford offers "The Little Minister," the play made famous by Maude Adams. The play is given for Thursday of next week, and for Sunday, Dec. 13. Thursday night "The Great Divide" will be given; Sunday matinee, "Ten Nights in a Barroom" for Thursday of next week, and for Sunday, Dec. 13. Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks." This will be the last appearance of the Glass-Gagnon combination in El Paso.

Trump, Rogers and Marvin, Smiley and Walker, and the pictures making the strongest vaudeville bill ever given in the city, he says at popular prices. The show will be two shows nightly—7:30 and 8:45. The prices will be 10 and 25c.

"MAN OF THE HOUR." Seats go on sale Friday morning at a clock at the Crawford theater for "The Man of the Hour," which comes to the El Paso theater Sunday night.

TOO MUCH SMUGGLING OF CHINESE ON BORDER.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—The first of what promises to be a series of changes in the immigration officials along the Mexican border became known when Charles T. Connell, an inspector at Tucson, Arizona, was appointed to take charge of the district with headquarters at Los Angeles, Cal., in place of A. C. Ridgeway.

Assistant secretary Cable, of the department of commerce and labor, who has been giving personal attention to the allegations of smuggling of Chinese across the Mexican border, has come to the conclusion that an illicit traffic exists there, and a reorganization of the system in that territory will result.

Mr. Cable declares that Ridgeway's resignation is an account of ill health.

WATCH THE DATE ON THE YELLOW LABEL

Mail subscribers should watch the date which follows their name on the yellow label pasted on the wrapper of first page of their paper. The date there shows when the subscription expires. When a remittance on subscription is made, this date is changed. If it is not changed soon after remittance, allowing, of course, a reasonable time to reach El Paso, the subscriber should call the attention of this office to the oversight. By doing so when the matter is fresh in the minds of all concerned all further trouble and inconvenience will be avoided.

HERO IS BURIED IN SNOW BY LANTERNS

Body of Gen. Merritt Laid to Rest in Storm—Had Great Career.

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 7.—The body of Maj. Gen. Wesley Merritt, U. S. A., retired, 21st superintendent of the United States military academy, was buried here last night by lamplight with the military honors of his rank. His body was laid beside that of his first wife in the military reservation cemetery. The special car bringing the body from Washington was delayed by the storm and the hour was so late it was deemed best to make the ceremonies as brief as the due dignities would allow.

The fife and drum corps, followed by the cadet corps, fell in at the front on the appearance of the coffin. The fife corps' breath froze on their instruments as they shrilled the slow measures of the dead march. Behind them clanked the escorting battery. Then came the coffin, draped in the colors, followed by the pallbearers, mourners and attending civilians. The funeral procession moved through the darkness, the flash of the minute gun glared for an instant across the shrouded fields and the dull jar of the report sounded solemnly across the river. Thirteen guns were fired.

Lanterns guided the procession to the grave, and there, while the mourners stood bareheaded in the snow, the coffin stood bareheaded in the snow, the coffin of Gen. Merritt was laid to rest in the volunteer service and the regular army for gallantry and meritorious conduct on the field of battle during the civil war.

He was mustered out in 1866 with the rank of major general, and took rank in the regular army as lieutenant colonel. In 1876 as a colonel he saw service in the Indian campaigns at Slim Butte, S. D., and at Indian Creek, Wyo. From 1882 to 1887 he was superintendent at West Point, when he was promoted to be brigadier general, U. S. A. In 1885 he was made a major general. He commanded the first American army in the Philippines. He was twice married and a soldier survivor.

Gen. Merritt graduated at West Point in 1860, just in time to go in training for the second dragons and at once attracted the attention of Col. Philip St. George Cooke, with whom he served as aide until the close of the peninsular campaign, when Gen. Cooke left the army in disgust.

Merritt remained with Stoneman and took part in the Richmond raid in 1862, in which he commanded several raiding parties, but his great chance came at the battle of Beverly Ford, where, as commander of a regiment, he led a brilliant charge against Stuart's cavalry, and, as a recognition, was made a brigadier general.

From then on Gen. Merritt's advancement was rapid. He was one of the three officers appointed by Gen. Grant to carry out the terms of the Appomattox treaty.

At the close of the war, Merritt was 28 years old. He had risen from captain to major general and commander of 10,000 cavalry in two years. Up and down the Shenandoah valley and from the wilderness to the Appomattox, his name is written in the history of every battle. It was at Winchester, when a charge against Breckenridge's division drew the remark from Sheridan, "I claim nothing for myself, my boys; Merritt and Custer did it all."

After the civil war, Gen. Merritt served for many years on the frontier in Indian campaigns. In these he executed what has since become a historic march from Rawlins to Milk Creek, Colo., covering with his command 170 miles in 66 hours without losing a man or horse. He was going to the relief of Maj. Thornburg, who was attacked by Ute Indians. His later service in the capture of Manila is well known.

SWEDISH WEST INDIES WOULD BECOME AMERICAN.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Dec. 7.—The agitation of the sale of the Swedish West Indies to the United States has been renewed by the Islanders and Tuesday the government received an address in which petitioners ask that negotiations to that end be opened. The cabinet is not likely to take the initiative in the matter, because although the ministers are not particularly opposed to such a sale, the government is taking no chances of a rebuff.

SECOND LIFE SENTENCE FOR THE SAME MURDER.

Globe, Ariz., Dec. 7.—Murder in the first degree and sentence of life imprisonment was the verdict rendered by the jury last night in the case of William Stewart, charged with the killing of Fred Kibbe. Kibbe and Alfred Hillpot, Globe business men, were murdered September 12 while on a hunting trip, and a verdict the same as that of last night was brought in last week in the case of John B. Goodwin, alias Steele.

The English Elections

THE people of England are about to tell the world, through the medium of a general election, whether or not they really do "dearly love a lord." The elections in December will decide the fate of the House of Lords, the only remaining legislative body in the English-speaking world whose power is based solely upon the accident of birth.

If the Liberals win, the House of Lords will be virtually abolished as far as its law-making power is concerned.

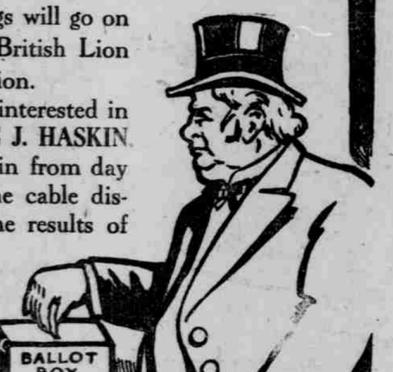

If the Conservatives win, the House of Lords will be "reformed," but the aristocracy still will dominate it and its powers will be extended.

If the Liberals win, Ireland will have Home Rule, Wales will have a free church, England will have free common schools under state control, and the British democracy will be completely triumphant over the English aristocracy after a thousand years of fighting.

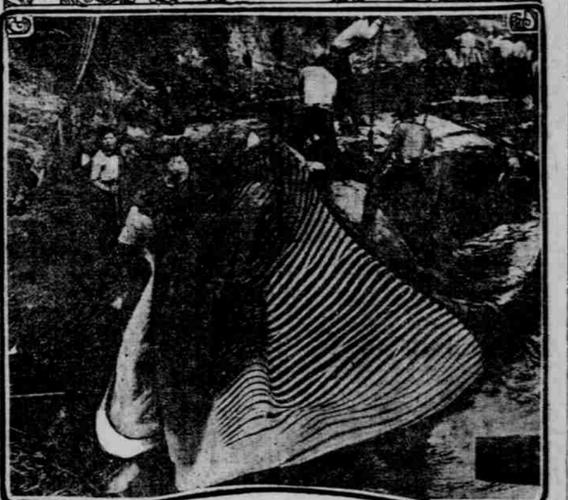

If the Conservatives win, things will go on much as they are, except that the British Lion will roar in a more imperial fashion.

Every reader will be intensely interested in the series of articles by FREDERIC J. HASKIN in this newspaper, which will explain from day to day the real significance of the cable dispatches from London telling the results of the pollings. The articles will begin their daily appearance on THURSDAY, DECEMBER 8.

Two Of the Largest Whales Ever Captured

Photographs of two of the largest whales ever caught and the skeletons of which will be mounted and placed in the Museum of Natural History, New York. Above is a picture of a 70-foot Fin Back captured by professor Andrews in North Japan and below Mr. Andrews can be seen standing by the head of one of his prize catches, a 60-foot sperm whale. This whale weighed 75 tons, the head alone tipping the beam at 26 tons. After a journey covering more than 38,000 miles in search of specimens of the whale family, Roy C. Andrews, of the Museum of Natural History, returned to New York recently with skeletons of eight of the largest whales and porpoises ever taken. This is the largest collection ever brought to the United States by a single expedition.
