

LEWIS THINKS THE MEXICAN TROUBLE NOT OVER

(Continued from Page 1.) when Diaz withdraws, resigns and sails away—perhaps—for France, some other leader or group of leaders may not take up the war?

Scientists May Make War. There are the Cientificos—a restless circle, a rich circle, an ambitious circle, of whom the heart and head is Limantour. These fine gentlemen have much to win, much to lose, and more—since most of them have been in power about Diaz and grown suspiciously richer, not poorer, with each descending sun—they have much to conceal. With these incentives to plot and strategize to assassination and open warfare, I cannot think that these Cientificos will allow Madero with his followers, military and civil, to carry the great empire of Mexico over to themselves without a struggle. They will, I believe, try money, try bribery, try bloodshed, before they abandon the field and confess themselves—like Diaz—beaten.

Diaz's Years Caused Surrender. It was his years, more than anything else, which defeated Diaz. And Limantour and his Cientificos are younger men. They have not fallen in the vale of years. They are young; they have gold without a limit. Were I Madero, I should watch these gentry and never place myself within their reach, never give them an opening through which to strike. Most Mexicans, even though they have been federalists, and fought against that leader on fields of battle and politics, have no fear of Madero. He is honest; they are honest, and Madero and they have but differed as men often differ; and he has won. Madero and these honest supporters of Diaz will find no difficulty in coming peacefully together. They can trust one another. Their purpose was and still is the same—Mexico, and the liberty and betterment of her people. They have as stated, differed, but only as to a method, never as to an aim.

Madero and the Honest Men. Madero can agree with these honest opponents. Today, in proof of it, he releases Navarro and all his officers and makes them as free as himself. But Madero cannot proceed on similar lines of frankness and honorable trust with the Cientificos. If half be true that's told, the first act of the Madero government will necessarily be to collar and punish this circle, not for opposing him, Madero, in the field and at the cabinet table, but for what pillaging they have been guilty of against the people at large.

Madero knows this; the Cientificos know this. And because of that mutual knowledge, the Cientificos in my opinion, will begin making trouble within a week. Villa To Lower California. Villa, now at Casas Grandes, will go to Lower California to wipe out Mason and his red socialists. There are two reasons for sending Villa after the ebullient Magonistas. He is a fairly good scrapper for one thing, and will make a success of that proposed wiping out. Then, too, his going to Lower California inferentially provides for his leaving this part of the world.

Villa is a strong leader, but not a safe leader. A congenial soldier of fortune, he is Mexican, though he is not. He is much safer in the northwestern States of California than he would be about Chihuahua or in Mexico City. Villa likes gold and those who have it. And who has more gold than the enemies of Madero and Mexican liberty?

Orozco will have military charge in Chihuahua, with headquarters not too far from the city of that name. Madero can trust Orozco. Billy Smith's Idea. Australian Billy Smith, once invincible as a middleweight prizefighter lives in El Paso. He long ago quit the ring to serve the public as a detective. He is propitious and because he is a detective, and has children, and is his own land-lord—happy. Speaking of Diaz and his troubles, Mr. Smith said: "Diaz is like many of our prizefighters. He got old, but wouldn't believe it. He stayed in the ring too long."

POSTAL SERVICE TO MEXICO TO RESUME

Juarez Telegraph and Postal Services To Be Operated Shortly.

Mexican mails and telegraphs will soon be handled through the Juarez offices the same as before the taking of the town. Mexican consul Tomas Torres has received instructions from the federal government at Mexico City to arrange for the delivery of all mail to the Mexican side, and postmaster Rodriguez, who was in charge of the mails at Juarez before the rebel invasion, has gone back to arrange for handling all mail addressed to that town. Heretofore the Mexican federal mail, including the letters of all government employes has been delivered to the Mexican consul in El Paso and the remainder sent to Juarez. Under the arrangement which is now being perfected, all mail will be delivered to the Juarez office for distribution. The Juarez postoffice, burned during the attack, is to be rebuilt at once.

The federal telegraph offices in the custom house will again be opened for business for the first time in several months. These lines will be repaired as rapidly as possible and communication reestablished with Mexico City and the cities to the south.

Orders have been given for the payment of all Mexican federal employes, including federal soldiers, custom house employes, guards and border riders, at the American immigration station. This is being done to relieve the Mexican consular of the congestion resulting from the rush of Mexican employes there for their money.

EL PASO ATTORNEY PLEADS FOR BANKERS TO STOP FINANCING REBELLIONS

W. H. Burges Addresses Lawyers of Missouri and Pleads for International Arbitration.

Kansas City, Mo., May 25.—W. H. Burges, of El Paso, addressed the Missouri Bankers' association here today on "International Commerce." Mr. Burges advocated more commercial treaties with foreign countries and urged bankers to be careful in backing enterprises that might not be of the right sort. He made a strong plea for international arbitration, and in conclusion said: "In your own great case of Missouri vs. Illinois, instituted to prevent the pollution of the waters of the Mississippi river by emptying into them the sewage of the city of Chicago, the supreme court of the United States said, speaking through Justice Holmes: 'It may be imagined that a nuisance might be created by a state upon a navigable river like the Danube, which would amount to a casus belli for a state lower down, unless removed. If such a nuisance were created upon the Mississippi, the controversy would be settled by the more peaceful means of a suit in this court.' "How infinitely better is the American way! The court has spoken. An infinitesimal part of the cost of a war is spent in establishing a purification plant. Science lays its restraining hand on contamination and consequent disease. There is no waste, no bloodshed, no suffering. The contending states, side by side, in undisturbed friendship and in the security of perfect peace, are working out their splendid destinies, as the mighty river flows unweaved to the sea.

El Paso's Case. "As I speak an international court of arbitration sits in the city of El Paso to decide the dispute between the United States and Mexico as to the location of the boundary line between them, in the city of El Paso. Immense property rights and titles to the homes of thousands of people will be conclusively decided by that award, but we know it will be honestly and intelligently made and all concerned, the high contracting nations and the citizens whose interests depend on it, will accept the result and carry out the judgment without question and without appeal.

"To The Hague! To The Hague! The longest runs are too short. The substitution of judicial proceedings among nations for the arbitrament of the sword will be the great achievement of the century in whose early morning light we are standing.

Financing Revolutions. "May I be permitted to suggest that American lawyers have offered the remedy and with every effort of heart and brain are working to bring about the result? May I be permitted to suggest that its accomplishment lies largely in the hands of the American bankers? Do you ask me how? I will tell you: Do not finance a war between foreign countries. Let but a few of the great nations of the world adopt this rule and the long struggle for peace has been won. An army, like a snake, travels on its stomach. It cannot fight and feed itself. Withdraw your credit, let the world know that not one dollar of American billions is available to a nation with an army in the field except in the execution of the judgment and decree of a court of international arbitration, and the billion of dollars spent annually in the maintenance of military establishments of the great nations will reach the world's banks for use in developing the material resources of the nations, educating the people and alleviating the suffering that centuries of war and its consequences have left upon us.

"Not one word of this is meant to apply to our own country, should war be made upon it. Should that time ever come when "The earth is full of anger, "And the seas are dark with wrath "And the nations in their harness "Go up against our path," the bankers of America will meet the situation as they have in the past, in a spirit of loftiest patriotism; but a different question is presented when you are asked to finance an aggressive war.

No War Bonds. "Make it known that not one dollar of American money will be invested in the bonds of a nation, issued to carry on an offensive war. Decline to deposit one dollar with any bank that handles such a bond. Let it be known to all men that not one dollar of the money you hold in trust can be had for the purpose of such war. Show the world that the bankers of Missouri live to build up, not to tear down, to develop, not to destroy. Let it be known that you have not one penny for investment in, nor commerce with any country which has not a satisfactory treaty of commerce with this country, and a treaty of universal arbitration. The reward will not be pecuniary only, but you will have earned the right to feel that your efforts have contributed to usher in that day "When the common sense of most shall hold the fretful realm in awe, "And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapt in universal law."

PARTNER OF SNAKE POOL CONVICTED

T. J. Andrews, formerly of El Paso, who, with "Snake" Pool, the opium smuggler, was arrested in Arizona for smuggling 4000 cans of opium across the border for shipment to Los Angeles, was tried and convicted in the United States court at Tombstone, Ariz., this week and sentenced to 16 months in the territorial prison and fined $100.

People who were arrested at the same time as Andrews, was put on a $5000 bond from the federal court of El Paso at the time and was afterwards returned here for trial, convicted and is now serving a term at the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

HARE LEAVES WAR ZONE FOR GOTHAM

James Hare, the war photographer for Collier's Weekly, left Thursday afternoon on the Golden State limited for New York. Mr. Hare has been in the southwest since the mobilization of troops at San Antonio started and has covered the revolution pictorially for his paper since Madero's army arrived outside of Juarez. His war pictures have been the features of each issue of Collier's since the trouble started and are considered the best groups of action pictures that have been made of the Mexican revolution and its attendant situation.
