THE CASH INTRIGUE

BY GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER Copyright, 1909, By the BOBBS MERRILL CO.

CHAPTER XXI.

PHILLIP stood looking after him a moment, puzzled, and as Breed turned the corner Dr. Zephan came from a room opposite. He, too, looked at the retiring form of Breed and then turned his thick spectacles in Kelvin's direction.

"Did he borrow any money of you?" he asked abruptly, every hair of his flaming beard apparently pointing outward in indignant query.

"One hundred and fourteen dollars," replied Kelvin, smiling.

"I knew it," declared Zephan. "Don't let him have any more. The man has gone money mad. Every time he sees a dollar of cash he must have it. He borrows my salary from Mrs. Rensselaer, from Rollins, from Herbert, even from the servants, and every penny of it he hoards. When any of them protests he reluctantly pays it back by check."

"I did not know that he was so weak," said Kelvin, shocked. "I have been aware that the condition was growing upon him, but I had no idea that he had gone so far with his eccentricities."

"Eccentricities?" snorted the doctor. "He's crazy—crazy as a loon. You're all crazy, the whole crowd of you, victims of the American craving for what you call success. Breed is mad for money; Mrs. Rensselaer is mad for social position; her nephew is mad

'Cascarets' Best for Biliousness

The Millions of Cascarets users never know the misery of Headache, Costive Tongue, Sick Stomach.

You know when you need Cascarets. You feel a certain dullness and depression—perhaps the approach of a headache. You say, "I am bilious and I must take something tonight." But why do you waste the day? It is easy to keep at your best at all times if you'll do it. The way is to carry a box of Cascarets with you. Take one just as soon as you need it. Then the clouds rise at once.

The need for Cascarets is a natural need. Don't think that you are drugging yourself. You must get a laxative some way. If we don't get it through exercise and through proper food, we must get it otherwise. Cascarets are the next best way.

Ask your doctor about it. He will tell you that the day of the violent purgatives, such as calomel, pills, salts, castor oil and cathartics, is past. This is the day of the gentle in medicine, the natural, the pleasant. Cascarets act just as certain foods act—just as exercise acts on the bowels—on the liver. Get a 10-cent box and take one now.

"Possibly," agreed Phillip dryly. "No doubt, doctor, your work will be accepted as a standard. Five years afterward some other savant will write another four volume work upsetting all your theories, and five years after that somebody will mention your name to a noted alienist or student of neurotics and he will say: 'Zephan—Dr. Zephan? Um-m-m—the name seems a little familiar. Did he discover one of those exploded serum treatments or something?'"

"Bah!" snapped the doctor, and his beard, now beginning to streak with gray, seemed to turn redder from the redness of his face behind it. "Bah!" he repeated, but this time the exclamation was weaker, and Phillip as he went downstairs felt a prick of compunction at having hit the doctor such a vital blow.

Phillip found the library deserted and sat down with his back to the door to examine a volume on numismatics that lay open upon the table. Soft hands were suddenly clasped over his eyes, and Lillian Breed pressed her lips warmly to his. At the touch he crushed her in his arms and returned her kiss with something akin to fierceness. Then he thrust her away from him almost roughly.

"You are most indiscreet," he protested, looking at the wide open door. "Why not?" she demanded, laughing.

NO ONE KNOWS

In a Recent Letter, Mrs. Wilkerson of Lynchburg Says No One Knows What She Had to Suffer.

Lynchburg, Va.—"I am now feeling better than I have, for several years," writes Mrs. Ellie Wilkerson, of 406 Pearl St., this city.

"No one knows what I suffered, as a result of female weakness. "Since taking four bottles of Cardui, I feel stronger and better than I have in some time past. I shall always praise Cardui, to all of my suffering friends."

The strength-giving properties of Cardui are not the result of powerful druggery, but of its gentle, natural, building action, on the womanly organs.

Cardui is not a stimulant, but a mild and effective tonic remedy, that, through fifty years of success, has been proven to have a merit, that is all its own.

Cardui is prepared principally from the extracted medicinal principle of a plant grown in Southern Europe, not mentioned in the pharmacopoeia, imported direct by the manufacturers and combined with other ingredients, to form a scientific medicine, that brings results.

Try Cardui.

NOTE.—The Cardui Home Treatment for Women, consists of Cardui (31), Theodor's Black Draught (35c), or Veiro (50c), for the liver, and Cardui Antiseptic (50c). These remedies may be taken singly, by themselves, if desired, or three together, as a complete treatment for women's ills. Write for Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga, Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.

"If somebody stepped in upon us we should only have to make an announcement."

He winced involuntarily at that, and she saw it. There had been that between them which makes a woman fonder and a man more careless. For a moment she laid her hands upon her breast, but she was surprised to find that there came no hot retort, usually so ready upon her lips. Without effort, without exerting himself to do so, Kelvin had for the time being tamed the wild panther within her, and her only impulse she found to be one of conciliation. She smiled up at him, her swift wit settling upon the quick change of topic that might interest him in her mental qualities, but prompt as she was there came an interruption in the person of Dr. Zephan, who called Phillip peremptorily.

"I want to show you something," he said to Phillip at the door. "Breed is down in his vault dressed in all the gaudy mummery of a lodge initiation, squatting flat on the floor, with money scattered all about him and his old Bible before him on a chair, like a voodoo idol. And he is jabbering garbled texts that in his interpretation are worse than blasphemy."

Lillian, left to herself, stood a moment, her breast heaving, and then dropped into the chair that Kelvin had vacated and grew deeply thoughtful. She had scarcely moved when, at the end of about twenty minutes, Herbert Rensselaer was announced.

"It is a pleasure to find you alone," he observed. "You are so very popular that an edgewise word with you is a rare boon. You've made yourself the sensation of Washington."

"No," Lillian protested thoughtfully. "I may have achieved some personal popularity, but much more, it is humiliating to confess, is due to grandfather's position in the world and the capitalized force it represents. I doubt if even money, however, could have secured me the recognition which Mrs. Rensselaer has won for me. The Rensselaer name is a powerful one socially."

"It is just that about which I was going to speak to you," said Herbert with awkward bluntness. "I am prepared to offer you the Rensselaer name for your own."

Lillian looked up at him and smiled. "The dream of your respected aunt," she laughed. "Herbert, you're a nice boy, but I'm not in love with you. Are you with me?"

"Well, no," he confessed with infinite relief.

"I thought not," she returned, still laughing. "It is a pity to disappoint your aunt, but let's do that very thing. You're too good a friend of mine to spoil."

"I'm beginning to like you immensely," confessed Herbert. "Let's shake hands on it," which they cordially did.

At almost the same moment Sumner Rollins had made a quite different proposal, one with the whole heart and the whole love and the whole honor of a stalwart man, and Elsie White, with sorrow that it must be so, searched in her heart and found for him only friendship, and the man whose image blocked the way of Rollins was thinking of her even then, to the entire forgetfulness of Lillian Breed.

In a hundred cities there were riot and discord. In a thousand villages there was grave panic. In a million homes there was hunger. Commerce was paralyzed, and three months after Senator Sawyer had threatened a revolt the entire United States was in a state bordering on anarchy. Processions of the unemployed had been clubbed into disruption. Street corner speakers, among whom Ben White had become prominent for a certain rudely effective oratory, were suppressed. Gatherings in halls were censored by the police, the militia or the rapidly increasing army of regular soldiers, and were broken up, sometimes with bloodshed, at the least sign of inflammatory speech. The consequence was natural. Secret meetings were held everywhere, and the emissaries of Blagg gained converts by the tens and the hundreds of thousands from coast to coast. The chaos that Kelvin had deliberately inaugurated to serve his own ends was serving the ends of Blagg equally well. The throwing of bombs, with terrific consequence to public safety, became common—so common, indeed, that the life of no public man was secure, yet Kelvin, attended by his usual guard, went everywhere. He seemed to bear a charmed life, and on the very day he declared martial law throughout the Union, when every newspaper was against him and when countless hordes were clamoring for his death, he went calmly to Forest Lakes to keep an appointment with Henry Breed. Five hundred grim, armed men, indifferent to the turmoil of the world outside, now guarded the grounds, and Kelvin spoke of them the moment he met Breed.

"I want your men," said he. "I have examined the faces of them. They are mountaineers every one and men of blind allegiance. I need them in Washington."

"No," protested Breed. "I have been years in selecting them, and they must stay here to guard Forest Lakes, and me, and what you know to be in the vault below."

"The vault needs no guarding," replied Kelvin. "We'll remove it's contents very shortly to the government treasury, anyhow. The time is ripe, and my plan is to be carried out at once."

"Our plan, you mean," corrected Breed, smiling, whereat Kelvin's eyes contracted for a second.

It was significant of the remarkable control that Kelvin had obtained over this man, whose once indomitable will had been the commerce of a nation to his own ends, that he protested no further against the appropriation of his picked guards. Instead, he turned eagerly to the immense portfolio which Sam brought in. Spreading this upon the library table, Kelvin opened it, disclosing a thick stack of the large diagrams so characteristic of him.

Breed, restored at once to his shrewd old calculating self, leafed carefully over the neat cardboard diagrams which gave, in turn, comprehensive surveys of the entire extent, condition, and prospects of textile manufacturers, of the steel industry, of meat packing, of merchandising, of every branch of human industry and commerce, each with all its ramifications. From the experience of his nearly fourscore years Breed made a crisp, brief, and pregnant comment upon each industry, upon which occupation Doctor Zephan beamed through his thick spectacles with approval, for Breed was never so normal as at these conferences, when the habit of his business perspicacity came upon him. Far into the night they sat over this work, with Zephan and Rensselaer and, for a time, Lillian as interested lookers on, and when it came time for Phillip to retire he was very weary. Leaving the others still in conversation, he was about to make his way to his own apartments, but Lucy met him at the head of the stairs.

"They have been making some repairs up that way, Mr. Kelvin," she informed him, "and we'll have to change your rooms for this visit."

Freckles Gone

"Simple Remedy from Potter Drug Co. Removed Them," Says Society Lady.

"The best skin specialists told me that nothing would remove my freckles and that I would carry them to my grave," said a well known society woman, "but I fooled them all with a new drug—othine—double strength, that I bought at Potter Drug Co., which cleared my skin and gave me a fine complexion."

The action of othine is really remarkable, for when applied at night, many of the freckles disappear entirely by morning, and the rest have begun to fade. An ounce is usually all that is needed, even for the worst case.

Be sure to ask Potter Drug Co. for the double strength othine, as this is guaranteed under a guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

DOCTORS ENDORSE

Newbro's Herpicide.

When a doctor endorses a preparation it means more than an ordinary testimonial. His opinion is always that of the professional man devoted to the welfare of the people.

Dr. J. J. Boyd, Covington, Tenn., says: "I feel it my duty to write this for the benefit of those suffering from dandruff. In the average case a few applications of Newbro's Herpicide will remove all dandruff. It is advisable to continue its use for several weeks."

The words of J. E. Thompson, M. D., No. 2 Burroughs Place, Cor. Hollis St., Boston, Mass., are not less enthusiastic: "I can only speak in praise of Newbro's Herpicide. It is all that is claimed, and perhaps more. Herpicide not only cleanses the scalp but brightens the hair, gives it life and makes it soft."

Dr. T. A. Moore, Duncan, Ariz., writes of his experience: "My scalp was in places covered by patches of dry, scaly material and the itching was incessant. Since using Herpicide all these evils have disappeared and my hair is soft, smooth and growing. Hair has grown on spots before (but thinly covered)."

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ and stop falling hair. The terrible itching which goes with dandruff is allayed almost at once.

Herpicide is for sale at Drug Stores and one dollar size bottles are guaranteed. Applications may be obtained at the leading barber shops. Be sure you get genuine Herpicide. Send 10c in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. K, Detroit, Mich. KeKily & Pollard, Special Agents.
