School Notes

The members of the high sixth grade of the Vilas school afforded a much enjoyed afternoon of entertainment to an appreciative audience of the school's patrons on Friday afternoon. In a very able presentation of an amusing one act comedy sketch, entitled "The Ladies speak at last." The character cast was Margaret Schuster, as Lady Macbeth; Irene Robertson, as Fortin; Bernice Stiles, as Ophelia; and Julia Morse, the lovely and loving Juliet.

The scene was a tea room at a water curing establishment, where the good women over their tea could find no more satisfactory subjects than their respective husbands.

The young actresses acquitted themselves well in their respective roles and expressions of appreciation of the entertainment were many.

At the conclusion of the play, an interesting and amusing guessing contest was engaged in. The guessing problem submitted was a luscious looking pie, between the upper and under crusts of which was concealed a number of sawdust, but containing a number of other ingredients of pie, such as currants, raisins and other things. To this, the guessing, naming the greater number of the ingredients of the sawdust pie there was to be awarded a prize pie, minus the sawdust, which was winner evidently enjoyed in the way pies are enjoyable. Lovely refreshments were served.

One of the social events in school circles was a gay masquerade party, given at the Lamar school Thursday evening, in honor of the graduating class. The decorations were extremely pleasing, in pink and white. The spacious floor of the kindergarten room was cleared of its appointments and gave ample scope for the dancers. The costumes were all as carefully thought out as though they were full fledged grown ups. After some time spent in dancing, the winners were awarded delicious refreshments were served, consisting of an ice, cake, and candies, all done in pink and white to carry out the color scheme.

Among those who made merry were: Minnie Mae Jolly, as "The girl of the golden west"; Rena Gilbert, as "The Bohemian girl"; Vivian Pomeroy, as "P. D. H. S."; Helen Fisher, French maid; Mildred Turberle and Kristine Hiltberg, third grade school girls; Josie Tipton, Puchonizer; Eva McCracken, Japanese girl; Felicia Von Briesen, night; Helen Hargrove, morning; Fay Winn, Martha morning; Margaret Ruby, star of the morning; Alice Watson, "The girl of the morning"; Eva Rhoades, Evangeline; Gardiner Hawkins, Mrs. Lavender; James Biggs, clown; Eugene Thurston, John Butler, Earl Vanderwater, Walter Strickland, four sailor boys; Harold Bevan, Shillock; Murray Kyle, cowboy; Ralph Carter, "The man of wheat"; Eton Biggs, Booker T. Those unmasked were: Russell Worthington, Arbor Walker, Jesse Papp, Ignacio Talbot, Albert Wilson, Willard Merritt, Kent Heffner, Velma Carter.

Misses Alice Fitzgerald, Edith Giddings, Madeline W. E. Pomeroy and W. B. McCracken chartered the party. It was an evening of mirthful and wholesome enjoyment for the future belles and beaux of El Paso, and at a reasonable hour, but with some regret that the fun was over, the merry maskers dispersed to their several homes.

Receptions

An elaborate affair of the week was the reception given by Mrs. J. J. Kaster at the Country club on Friday afternoon from 2:30 until 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Kaster was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. W. R. Brown.

The hostess wore a handsome gown of gray mesaline, trimmed with an over skirt of gray embroidered chiffon and wore pink roses.

Mrs. Brown's gown was of pink satin under white lingerie, trimmed in tiny pink rosebuds.

The spacious living room of the club was decorated in baskets filled with pink roses and southern smilax. In one corner of the room Miss Wanda Face and Miss Lucy Gilbert served fruit punch. The table on which the punch bowl stood was decorated beautifully in southern smilax, which was caught on one side with a large pink bow of tulle.

In the dining room the table was lovely with a hand embroidered cloth, on which stood an immense basket of pink roses and pink candies, with pink shades in crystal candlesticks. Salad was served. The young women assisting here were Misses Olive Davis, Frances Clark and Josephine Wooten. About 200 guests called during the afternoon.
