

Married Life the Third Year

By Mabel Herbert Uner

I WAS an empty basement shop. A faded red and white pole and some half-erased lettering showed that the last tenant had been a barber. The window was smeared over with soap, as is the custom in empty shops, to keep the passerby from seeing the business and dirt within. But these details Helen did not notice. She saw only the head of a gray kitten lying against the glass from which it had rubbed off enough of the soap to be seen. There was something in the way the kitten lay that made her hurry down the three steps to the window. Was it dead? Helen tapped against the glass, but there was no motion. She stepped again with the metal clasp of her purse. This time its eyes half opened and it raised its head. Helen fell back weakly with a soundless "meow."

Warren broke into an empty shop and rescued a starving kitten. "I'll get all the rats if I want," he said. "It's a little tiny kitten! It's too young to catch rats." "Well, I'm sorry, ma'am," obstinately, "but I can't leave my beast." "Mercifully inhuman," Helen started back to the empty shop. On the way she passed a drug store with the familiar blue telephone sign. For a moment she paused uncertainly before the door and then entered determinedly. "What are you very busy?" she asked excitedly. "Well, I'm not exactly twirling my thumbs, but—" "Oh, couldn't you come up here? There's a wretched little kitten locked in an empty shop. It's so weak it can't get out. I can't get anybody to help me get it out! Oh, can't you come?"

Warren looked down and peered through the clear glass in the glass. "That's an outrage. Where's the door?" He turned and shook it soundly. Then with a "curt," "You wait here," he strode into the locksmith's shop. But, evidently, his interview with the old man was no more satisfactory than had been others, for he came out with an angry "Can't get anything out of these people. You say there's no policeman on this block?" "No, the nearest one is five blocks below and he won't leave his house." "Well, I'm not going to fool around here. I'm going to get that kitten out—and there's only one way to do it. I'll break it down." He thrust his hand in her hand and crammed his gloves in his pocket. "Oh, Warren, you're not going to break open the door?" as he put his shoulder against it. "Nothing else to do. I'll have this rickety old door open in five minutes." "But the people who own it—on, dear, won't you get into trouble?" "Guess they can't do more than that," and with a sharp wrench he had the door open.

PLAINVIEW MAN BUYS HIGH CLASS HORSE Gram Received For Rental One Year Sells For $8000.

Plainview, Texas, April 17.—J. F. McDonald, of Abilene, near Abilene, W. W. Wise, who lives a few miles north of Plainview, a French Coach stallion for $1600. Interest in pure blood stock is greater in this county this year than ever before. Wilkin Brock and Harp have sold the gram which they received for rental on the Callahan ranch-farm last year for $8000. No irrigation was used then, but it will be used this year, if needed. The Callahan property, owned by the above firm, is located 12 miles south-east of Plainview, and a much larger proportion of the same is being tilled this year.

MISSIONARIES HEAR TALKS ON THE NEGRO

Tuskegee, Ala., April 17.—Representatives of missionary societies and seven foreign countries gathered here today for the opening of the annual conference of the Negro at Tuskegee institute, Ala. Delegates from eight provinces of what is called "Negro Africa" were among the conferees, all of whom are personally interested, or directly engaged in the work that is going on in Africa. The conference will continue in session tomorrow and Friday. The object of the conference is to afford an opportunity for studying the methods employed in helping the negro people of the United States with a view to deciding to what extent these methods may be applied to conditions in other countries. Papers read at the opening session dealt with conditions in west and south Africa and the West Indies. The speakers were the Rev. D. M. Martin, representing the Stewart Foundation for Africa; Dr. Cornelius H. Patten, home secretary of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions; and Rev. Mark C. Hayward, a native worker from Cape Coast, Africa.

MONUMENT FOR CAL. ROGERS, AVIATOR

A monument is to be erected to Cal P. Rogers, the coast-to-coast aviator, who stopped in El Paso, and who was killed at Long Beach, Cal. after successfully negotiating the distance from New York to the Pacific coast. The funds to pay for the monument are being raised by popular subscription and by the sale of postcards of the aviator. The monument will be eight feet high, out of what material has not been determined. It will probably be made of concrete and given a granite finish. The cost will be $1000.

AUDITOR REPORTS REAGAN MONEY PAID

Santa Fe, N. M., April 17.—Assistant traveling auditor Guilfoill has made report to Gov. McDonald that $4,600.67 that he would sue for the county of Roosevelt county, has been paid by the state. Ex-governor L. Bradford Prince, of Santa Fe; Francis G. Tracy, of Carlsbad; and George W. Prichard, of Santa Fe, were the only members of the executive committee to meet at Salt Lake City on May 2.

DENVER MAN TO FIGHT ON PECOS WATER SYSTEM

Pecos, Texas, April 17.—Thomas S. Shepperd, civil engineer of Denver, Colo., who is constructing a pipeline into the city of Pecos, Colo., will appear before the city council here early next week to bring a supply of soft water to Pecos. The city will vote on the proposition some time this year. It is possible, however, that a special bill will have to be passed through the state legislature.

ITALIANS GOING TO CALIFORNIA.

Emigration of Italians and other foreigners to California continues heavy. The Southern Pacific railroads, Monday was the day for the sale of cheap tourist rates to California in the eastern and middle western trains will be run in two sections if the rush of emigrants continues.

DUNCAN NOTES.

Duncan, Ariz., April 17.—W. D. McDonald, the Great West agent, is moving his family to his ranch in the mountains for his 30th birthday. Tax assessors of Grant county, is spending a few days here, interviewing the cattle and goat men who have been hanging on the line and in both states.

SMELTER CHIMNEY IS BLASTED AWAY

After standing as a sentinel over northeastern El Paso for the past 15 or 20 years, the giant brick smokestack of the old federal smelter has disappeared. Repeated charges of dynamite inserted into the base of the mammoth stack of bricks, exploded at intervals, finally blowing away enough of the base to let the stack toppling over. For three days the workmen drilled and blasted before the stack fell. There were several hundred tons of brick in the mammoth structure. The work of tearing down the old smelter is now nearly finished. All the little houses of the smelter have been demolished. Most of the machinery has been removed from the old smelter, all the sheet iron has been taken off the roof and sides, and the heavy frame superstructure is now being torn away. The material is being loaded on freight cars and hauled away. When this is done, the El Paso & a mile of switches and sidings which it operated into the smelter. A mammoth cement tank that supplied water to the smelter is to be filled up.

Milady's Toilet Table

A good complexion is within reach of every woman. All it requires is proper care. "Throw away powders and cosmetics, live in the open air as much as possible, use a simple solution made by dissolving an original package of mayonaise in a half-pint which hasel. Gently massage face with this solution and you will be delighted with results. Its effect is instantaneous, and in a few days the skin is smooth, soft, satiny and girlish. To keep the hair bright, fluffy and youthful looking use dry shampoo. Put a cupful of corn meal in a wet towel and rub it over the scalp. Rubbing in with the fingers will remove the excess oil with it and leaves the hair clean, bright, wavy and rich in color. To stop headaches, apply mayonaise to relieve pain in any part of the body, apply Mother's Salve to rheumatism, lumbago, etc. The world never saw its equal as a pain killer. Superficial warts on face or forearms can be quickly and easily removed at home by applying delectate paste. Make enough paste to cover the hairy surface by mixing powdered delectate and water, apply, and wipe off after five minutes. The warts, the skin, and the hair will be gone. The recipe is safe, speedy and sure.—Adv.

The Really "Latest" Styles

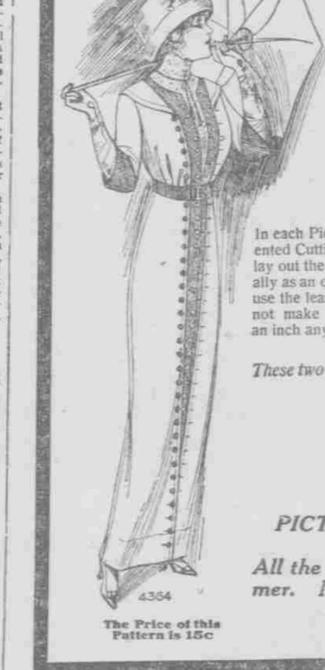

—those fresh from Paris—those showing the new draped skirt, for example, which is to be all the rage this spring, are found at their best in the

Pictorial Review Spring Fashion Book

It can't help being that way—for the Pictorial Review pattern business is the big part of the American Fashion Company, which supplies advance models (as it has for twenty years past) to the cloak and suit manufacturers, who must have their styles three or four months before the retail selling season opens. This is why Pictorial Review patterns are sixty to ninety days ahead of all others. You could easily convince yourself, as have thousands of other women, by comparing all the pattern publications. If you do, just notice the numerous Pictorial Review styles for draped skirts, the latest waists, the new cataway jackets. Our own study of styles leads us to say:

When you select your patterns from the Pictorial Review Spring Fashion Book you do not run the risk of having your dress out of date as soon as it is made.

Pictorial Review Patterns too, are superior to all others—here are the reasons: In each Pictorial Review pattern is a patented Cutting Guide. This shows how to lay out the pattern and just as scientifically as an expert cutter could do, so as to use the least possible material. You cannot make mistakes; you cannot waste an inch anywhere.

These two guides, both FREE, are given only with Pictorial Review patterns.

Dorothy Dix Says Woman Is Not the Privileged Sex.

Must Obey Laws She Cannot Help Make; Man the Real Privileged One, She Declares.

IT IS the custom to speak of women as constituting the privileged sex. It has been affirmed so often that all men, and some women, really believe it, without ever stopping to investigate how, and when, and where, women have any advantage over their brothers. In reality there is no other such piece of cynical sarcasm on earth as this. Women are not privileged. They bear three-fourths of the burdens and sorrows of humanity, and get only one-fourth of its pleasures and perquisites. What makes woman the privileged sex? Not nature, which made her of a frailer and weaker physique, and with more nerves than man; that made her subject to every ailment that can rack his body with pain, and then laid upon her the additional agony of motherhood. No man, save the few who have been tortured to death, endures any suffering comparable to that which a woman undergoes every time a child is born.

Where is woman's privileged sex?

Not in the eyes of the law, which considers her too feeble-minded to help make the laws that govern her, yet holds her responsible for breaking them. Not in the law, which originally gave every particle of a woman's individual property to her husband on her wedding day, and which only in the last 20 years has conceded her a right to her own. Not in the law, which in only 11 states and the District of Columbia makes a man the equal guardian with her husband in the children she has borne. Not in the law, which in some states makes a married woman a chattel, and gives her husband the right to collect her wages if she works outside of her home. Not in the law, which in many states denies a married woman the right to make a will without her husband's consent, or make any transfer of her property without his authorization, while he may do as he pleases with his own without consulting her.

Where is woman's privileged sex?

Not in the labor market, where she has to do the same work for a smaller wage than man, and where she is esteemed to be only in her proper sphere, when she is doing the job that no man wants to do. Her sex is a handicap, not a help in business, and every woman who works is doing not only good work but better work than a man would do, and for less money, or else she would not be in the place she is.

The Great Commoner

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY. April 17, 1875.

IT was one hundred and fifty years ago today—April 17, 1757—that King George of England, egged on by those whose vanity and selfishness exceeded their love of country, dismissed from office William Pitt, first earl of Chatham, and known in immortality as the Great Commoner. The 17th of April might have gone down into history as one of the most disastrous dates in the whole story of the American race, but as things turned out, the threatening evil was happily averted, and Pitt was soon back again, filling with more than his old-time power the place from which he had been elected. Dr. Johnson declared one day, "Washington was minister given by the king to the people, but Pitt was a minister given by the gods to the king." It was even so and when the king's great public Pitt said the people demanded his reinstatement. There are times when it is more or less difficult to say what the people do or do not desire the return to power of an ex-official—we have had such instances in our own country, but there was no doubt about the fact that the people of England were calling for Pitt. They called with such force and unanimity that the king trembled at his throne, and while he was still trembling Pitt was again in the saddle. It is impossible here not to recall the words of Macaulay: "The situation which Pitt occupied at the close of the reign of George the Second was the most remarkable ever occupied by any public man in English history. He had conciliated the king; he dominated over the houses of commons; he was loved and feared by the people. He was the first Englishman of his time, and he had made England the first country in the world. The great commoner had a look down in scorn on coronets and garters." Pitt's return to power was coincident with one of the most thrillingly serious periods of modern history—the period of the great duel between France and England for supremacy on the North American continent. To the Duke of Devonshire Pitt said: "My lord, I am sure that I can save this country, and that nobody else can." Given the opportunity he more than made good, and the great and growing Dominion of Commons and the mighty United States of America are today his imperishable memorials. With a genius and energy undepreciated

CRAMP NEARLY CAUSES DEATH

Lady in Board Camp, Attacked by Cramp, Said She Felt As-If She Were Dead.

Board Camp, Ark.—"When I was just fifteen years old," says Mrs. Virginia Bain, of this place, "I suffered awfully with a cramp in my stomach, about once a month, and I had a dead feeling, all the time—no life to do anything."

I took two bottles of Cardui, and I felt like a different person. I had tried all kinds of medicine for over a year, but not a thing helped me, until I took Cardui.

A short time ago, I suffered again. I would ache and hurt, till I couldn't stand on my feet a minute to do my work. My back ached and my head hurt all the time.

I was glad I knew about Cardui! I took three bottles, and now I never have any ache or pain, and I am cheerful and happy."

If you have wondered where you could find a remedy to ease your pain and relieve the torment which goes with so many forms of womanly trouble—here is your answer!

Take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and be relieved, as Mrs. Bain was.

Cardui is just the medicine every woman needs, to help her over her womanly troubles.

Try Cardui.
