MISS HARRIET QUIMBY

ing with Miss Quimby, was the father of Charles Postter Willard, one of the pioneer aviators of the Curtiss school. The deaths of Miss Quimby and Willard brings the total of aviation fatalities for the present year up to 41 compared with 73 during all of 1911.

First Woman to Receive License. Miss Quimby won the first aviation license ever granted in America, made the American endurance record for women last spring, and brought her fame to a climax as the first woman to pilot an aeroplane across the English channel.

Two young women flying at the same time was a sight only to be witnessed in Mexico. Miss Quimby and Miss Moisant were intimate friends and chums, but rivals only in the spirit of sport. We would time them. One would start up in the air 30 minutes and the other would climb to the clouds and the other would go above them.

SEVEN MEN FALL TO DEATH FROM A DIRIGIBLE BALLOON Continued from page 1.) In this tank was stored the gasoline. The car was connected to the gas bag by steel tubing of light construction. On top of the tank was a platform of two inch boards and on this rested a hundred horse power motor, two of 50 horse power, one 1/2 inch and were used to raise or lower the ship. The small motor and dynamo were used for electric lighting and to furnish power to the wireless. Some of the supplies of the ship were also stored on this platform. In the forward end of the platform were the steering wheels and gears for controlling the rudder and the stabilizing planes fore and aft.

Sleeping Accommodations. The sleeping accommodations for the crew consisted of hammocks strung up in the car. The illuster came as a shock to the people of Atlantic City. The airship was launched at 10:30 a. m. for a week the airman had been planning to make another flight and was in a favorable mood. Last night conditions appeared satisfactory and he notified the city authorities that he probably would make a flight at sunrise today. At daybreak the conditions were still favorable and the word was given. A hundred police were summoned and assisted in getting the balloon out of the immense hangar. Hundreds of persons who expected the flight saw the Akron come out of the hangar for the last time. Once clear of the ship, Vaniman, this one, who was the other four men already had gone, and gave the word to "let go." Instantly the ship rose, the man appeared to have complete control and, after circling about over the inlet and the mainland, the ship's nose was pointed out to sea. According to eye witnesses of the disaster, to those who had witnessed many previous flights of Vaniman, this one seemed at the start more successful than any yet attempted. The crew seemed to have better control than ever. After getting up about 300 feet the ship made a complete circle of the inlet and then flew over the southern section of the city. Soon after the puff of smoke was seen, the men on the airship were seen gathered on one side of the craft. The spectators, however, did not realize that anything had happened until the huge bag was seen to buckle from the two ends, forming a perfect "U." There was no report, but immediately the collapsed bag sagged toward the ocean with frightful velocity. "The forms of five men could be seen plunging down through the air from the great height. Their bodies turning over and over again. "Men on the board walk turned their eyes from the sight and women screamed. A large launch on the way to the fishing ground blew a whistle to attract the attention of the other boats and in a short time the inlet waters were black with boats rushing to the aid of the men. To a reporter who recently interviewed Vaniman, he expressed the greatest confidence in the Akron. Three Widows Left. Three of the widows of the men killed in the airship are Mrs. Vaniman, Mrs. Bourdillon and Mrs. Elmer. Mrs. Vaniman, although she faints on the porch of her little dwelling when she saw her husband's rapping to his death, stood the strain better than the others, after she finally became conscious and was upon her feet. "Yes, I saw what it was," said Mrs. Vaniman. "I saw one man jump. Something tells me that it was my husband. I saw him spread out in the air. That, as he fell and then—oh, I can scarcely speak of it—all grew dark before me. They were high in the air—it must have been a thousand feet." Vaniman's Body Found. The body of Calvin Vaniman was found and brought ashore. The head was cut and blown out. A scar over his right eye showed where he had been struck by a piece of the wreckage. Both legs and his left arm were broken and most of his ribs crushed in. A diver reported that beneath the water he saw the features of a man in the forepart of the car, which lies in about 18 feet of water. The mud has made identification impossible and he is probably the remains of the ship where Vaniman was operating his dirigible, it is believed the body is his. Further back, near the fore engine a leg and arm could be distinguished, protruding from the wreckage. It was recovered and proved to be Guesz's. The back of another body could be seen near the center of the under structure and this is probably the remains of Bourdillon, he being in charge of the engine. The body of Elmer cannot be seen. All the bodies will probably be recovered when the tide recedes. 20,000 People Gather About Inlet. Fully 20,000 persons gathered about the inlet, awaiting news from the wreck. Two hundred boats clustered about in a wide circle near the wreck all morning. The explosion is now laid to the ef-ports of Vaniman to test out a new theory of navigation. Inside the outer shell there was a gas bag under which were several small air chambers. It is thought that Vaniman took too much air into these compartments—compressed the gas to danger point, and the sun's ray further causing the tearing of the outer shell, resulting in the explosion. The police arrested men who were tearing the remains of the airship to pieces and bringing the parts ashore to sell them. A lot of divers, under command of George Doehm, left shore this afternoon to get the other bodies. It is believed they will be recovered within the next few hours. Our semi-annual clearing sale now on. Sol I. Berg. DETECTIVE BURNS FINED FOR CONTEMPT Has Altercation With Attorney While Witness in Darrow Case. Los Angeles, Calif., July 2.—William J. Burns, the detective who brought about the arrest of the McNamars, took the stand late yesterday in the trial of Clarence S. Darrow for jury bribery. Five minutes after his direct examination was begun by district attorney Fredericks, Mr. Burns asked the protection of the court, and a short time later was fined $25 for contempt. A similar fine was imposed upon chief counsel Earl Rogers of the defense at the same time. Judge Hutton announced when imposing the fines that he would not allow the personal difficulties between Rogers and Burns to interfere with the orderly conduct of the trial. The outbreak was precipitated by Mr. Darrow's reference, in the course of an objection, to Burns as a "wonderful man." He immediately withdrew the remark, saying it was unkind, and Burns, turning to the court, resented the action of Rogers. Burns continued his statement by declaring that Rogers had denounced him in open court as a subornor of perjury. "Yes, and I repeat it again," shouted Rogers. The detective appealed for protection of the court. Burns' direct examination was brief, being confined chiefly to corroboration of evidence of the detective, Biddinger, who preceded him on the stand and no new facts were added. Why Women Are Not RICH. Man is a millionaire many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimeter of blood. In fact, is anemic, the blood does not get the right food and probably the stomach is disordered. Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, queen's root and bloodroot with black cherrybark, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomach, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assimilating the food eaten the system is nourished and the blood takes on a rich red color. Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person loses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning. "I was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes Mrs. J. K. L. Lively, of Washburn, Tenn. "After 2 Box Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
