

Expert Work High Grade Materials Sound Methods

These and other reasons are why our awning work has stood the test of time, and that's why you see our name on nine-tenths of the awnings in this city. You take no chances here—you get the best materials—you get the best workmanship and you get a job that will still be giving you service when work done by other concerns will be twisted, faded or torn—the result of poor materials and poor workmanship. Take no chances—come to the "old reliable." Our best reference is our old customers whom we've served for years.

cent years when our tariff schedules were being discussed and determined, not on the floor of congress, for that is not where they belong, but in the committee rooms and conference. That is the heart of the whole affair. Will you, citizens, bring the whole people into partnership or not?

Movement Should Be Conservative.
We do not ignore the fact that the business of a country like ours is exceedingly sensitive to changes in legislation of this kind. It has been built up, however, gradually, upon tariff schedules written in the way I have indicated, and its foundations must not be too radically or too suddenly disturbed. When we do we should act with caution and wisdom. Like men who know what they are about, and not like those in a hurry to move with a theory. It is obvious that the changes we make should be made only at such a rate and in such a way as will least interfere with the normal and established course of commerce and manufacture. But we shall not, on that account, act with timidity, as if we did not know our own minds, for we are certain of our ground and of our object. There should be an immediate revision, and it should be downward, unhesitatingly and steadily downward.

The nation as a whole has grown immensely rich. She is justly proud of her industries and of the genius of her men of affairs. Let us not let anything get their minds to and we have been greatly stimulated under their leadership and example. There are many and very green. We must accord them the great honors that are their due and reserve what they have built up for us.

High Cost of Living.
It is not as easy as we live as it used to be. Our money will not buy as much. High wages, even when we can get them, do not give us comfort. We used to be better off with less, because a dollar could buy so much more. But now, because we have been disturbed to find ourselves growing poorer, even though our earnings are slowly increasing. Prices are rising faster than we can push our earnings up. We know that they are not fixed by the conditions of the market, but by the ancient law of supply and demand which is to be found stated in all the primers of economics, but by private arrangements with regard to the supply should be and agreements among the producers themselves. Those who buy are not even represented by counsel. The high cost of living is arranged by private understanding.

We naturally ask ourselves, how did these gentlemen get control of these things? Who handed our economic laws over to them for their private and contractual alteration? We have in these disclosures still another view of the tariff, not as a protection, not the people of the United States, but only a very small number of them have been protected.

The Labor Question.
The so-called labor question is a question only because it is not a question of right in adjusting the interests of labor and capital. Here, again, the ancient law of supply and demand must come into play if we are to act like gentlemen, as those who serve, not a class.

The working people of America (if they must be distinguished from the minority) that constitutes the rest of the nation. No law that safeguards their life, that insures their property, that moral conditions under which they live, that makes their hours of labor rational and tolerable, that gives them freedom to act in their own interest, and that protects them where they cannot protect themselves, can properly be regarded as class legislation or as anything but as a measure taken in the interest of the whole people, whose partnership in right action we are trying to establish and make real and practical. It is in this spirit that we shall act if we are genuine spokesmen of the whole country.

Conservation Question.
I do not think that the question that of conservation. We have been a spendthrift nation and must now learn to be more than that. We must develop, as well as preserve, our water powers and must add to our water power to the transportation facilities of the nation; to supplement the railways within our borders. We must revive our merchant marine, too, and fill the sea again with our great ships. We must add to our present postoffice service a parcel post as complete as that of any other nation.

Prudence Canal.
The very fact that we have at last taken the Panama canal seriously in hand and are vigorously pushing it towards completion is eloquent of our

ITCHING HUMORS

THERE IS NOW A WAY TO ESCAPE THESE SKIN TORMENTS

Try this Remedy at Our Risk.

People sometimes say, "Well, that new remedy you say, Saxo Salve, may cure recent cases of eczema, but I doubt if it will help me for I have had eczema a long time."

The fact is, Saxo Salve was devised as a cure for chronic skin troubles as for acute cases, and it is equally effective, though, through the chronic cases are more stubborn.

Numbers of cases right around here could be cited, showing that Saxo Salve is exactly the remarkable soothing and curative remedy for skin diseases that we claim.

The itching is stopped in a few moments after the first application, and improvement is seen in a few days. All humors and disorders of the skin, whether acute or chronic, the very first stages, usually yield to Saxo Salve promptly. If it does not, in your case, your money will be returned. Ella Wheeler Wilcox:

On Organizations for the Distribution of Money to Aid the Poor.

A READER of this column is displeased with some favorable comments made on April 17 of the methods of the Associated Charities.

"What reason is there," he asks, "for such an organization to exist in our great land, overflowing with opulence?"

There is no reason for any form of charity to exist in America if the people of America possessed the focused will-power to demand the rights of every soul born into earth, of the people of earth, and that until the people do unite and demand such privileges there must be an organization for the distribution of money to aid the poor.

And there is not one particle of common sense in abusing this society which is doing the best it can, under great difficulties, or of blaming it for the lack of co-operative methods among the people.

The disinterested reader says no one is doing anything to bring about a better condition.

That shows how little he knows what is being done. The Single Tax organizations (which hold the one great solution of the problem) are doing wonderful work and producing wonderful results. Joseph Pels, the millionaire philanthropist, is doing his best to help the poor by putting into execution to such extent as is possible the principles and concepts of Henry George's philosophy of taxing land values, and nothing has demonstrated the efficacy of his ideas.

He has obtained use of idle lands in America and England, and has practically demonstrated the efficacy of his ideas.

Readers of the Editorial Section of the Sunday American will find a full account of his experiments in England. And those who wish to know all about the experiments here and abroad need only write to the Joseph Pels Single Tax Society, Philadelphia, Pa., or New York, and send stamp for mailing pamphlets.

Five hundred gardens, composed of one-eighth of an acre each, are supporting five hundred families right in the precincts of London through the influence of Joseph Pels, and he is hard at work convincing the owners of thousands of acres of idle land all over England and elsewhere that by giving the use of these lands to people who are willing to make them fertile they will reduce the pauperism of the country.

When the experiment has become universal the force of public opinion will compel a change in our laws and render it illegal for any man or corporation to hold idle land, while masses of people are herded into slums for want of opportunity to till the land.

It will be more than illegal, it will be unprofitable to hold land in this way, once the Single Tax value is placed on it. Not so many years since there was a loud cry of the impracticability of the Single Tax idea.

But in British Columbia and Vancouver it is being found practicable. The British Columbia Royal Tax Commission reported last winter recommending the abolition of the poll tax, the tax on personal property of all kinds, the increase of the amount of income exempt from taxation and the substitution for these taxes a tax on land values. The commission stated that out prejudiced against the land value tax and in favor of the poll tax. After two years' careful investigation the commission reported unanimously in favor of the above changes, which, when made, will place all British Columbia on what the Portland Oregonian has placed to call a single tax basis.

How Royal Tax Is Looked Upon

In Victoria.
Now comes the Colonist of Victoria, one of the dailies of the state, and says, under date of April 2, "Although the next session of the British Columbia legislature is yet nine months in the future, preliminary preparation of legislation to be presented to the house upon its assembling on the 16th of January, is already commencing. It is expected one of the first Government measures of the new session will be that effecting a change in the taxation and rearrangement of the assessment system, based wholly or in large measure upon the recommendations contained in the exhaustive report of the Royal Commission on Taxation, which went into these matters last year."

In reply to an inquiry, Hon. Charles H. Logie says:

"I may say that the Royal Tax Commission of British Columbia, of which I was a member, went to work with open minds and without preconceived ideas as to what they were going to do. The conclusions we reached were forced upon us by our knowledge of the conditions of the country and of the evils of some of the taxes now levied. I confess at the outset I was even in favor of the poll tax, against which our commission is now unanimous."

"The same thing applies to the tax on improvements and personal property. We felt from our investigation of that that they were unjust; that they could not be fairly levied; and that it was only right that they should be abolished, and we believe that this will be done by the legislature."

"The city of Victoria, after carefully observing the results in Vancouver, has now also abolished the tax on improvements, and I am satisfied that within two years neither personal property nor improvements on land will be taxed anywhere in British Columbia. That this will encourage enterprises without investment in the Province is a thing to be hoped for."

"In the communities that have adopted this system of single tax there is no doubt that the tax can be brought to bear that could lead them to depart from it."

"Meanwhile, until the people (who are the Power in every land) awake and understand and use concerted methods to bring the Single Tax into use in America, the unfairness, instead of in a few localities, we must have charitable organizations."

Fault Lies Wholly With Submissive and Indolent People.
The fault lies wholly and entirely with the submissive and indolent people, who will not awaken and unite and demand a trial of the principles of Single Tax in every State in America.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR EARL ROGERS

Darrow's Attorney Gets Five Days for Contempt of Court.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 7.—Yesterday's session of the bribery trial of Clarence S. Darrow, came to an abrupt and sensational halt an hour before the usual adjournment time when Judge Hutton committed Darrow's chief counsel, Earl Rogers, to jail until morning for contempt of court in lieu of paying a fine of $50.

Rogers' offense was in designating a state witness as a perjurer, and upon his refusal to withdraw the appellation, a fine of $5 was imposed on Darrow's chief counsel, Rogers, still defiant and reiterating his rights, declared that he would go to jail rather than pay the fine, and the court ordered him to be committed to jail.

At the conclusion of the cross-examination attorney Rogers, of the defense, conducted a brief re-direct examination, like an open forum, Darrow answering questions of jurors, district attorney Fredericks, Ford and Rogers. Four of the jurors joined in the questioning, which covered a wide scope, some of the questions concerning phases of the case almost forgotten.

Darrow had one surprise for the prosecution. Asked whether in the last conversation with Harrington, on February 19, he had promised to give him $5000, the defendant made a flat denial. Then he explained that Harrington had asked him for money at each conversation and at the last one he had asked for $5000. The next day, Darrow said, employed by Franklin, was subjected to a severe grilling by Rogers, in the course of which the district attorney remarked that Rogers was wasting time. "I'm not," declared Rogers. "I'm showing up a perjurer, that's all." Confusion ensued. Judge Hutton asked Rogers if he meant what he said with reference to a witness on the stand.

"Yes, sir," asserted the lawyer. "I repeat that in reply to the district attorney's statement that we are wasting time, and I can show that I am right."

Mayer was the first witness introduced on rebuttal by the state, the usual adjournment time was reached having closed its case soon after the beginning of the afternoon session.

DARROW DEFENCE NEARING CLOSE
Time Spent in Recounting Conversation of Accused With Harrington.

Los Angeles, California, August 6.—Clarence S. Darrow's defence of himself against the accusation of jury bribery virtually was ended yesterday. Nearly the entire day was consumed by cross-examination concerning the conversations between Darrow and John R. Harrington, arranged by the prosecution for the purpose of securing a confession from Darrow of a mechanical eavesdropper.

A new phase of the peace negotiations which ended with the pleas of the McNamara brothers was brought out by a question from juror Coppock. He asked what agreement has been made at to other prosecutions, and Darrow said that the district attorney had promised to drop the prosecution of Captain and Smith, the men accused of helping J. E. McNamara dynamite the Times building.

"Mr. Fredericks told Mr. Davis," said Darrow, "that 'Schmitz' was a reckless kind of fellow and if he turned up in Los Angeles he would arrest him and place him on trial, but no efforts would be made to catch him. The district attorney also said that the search for them had been called off, as the Darns men were no longer in the employ of the prosecution."

The prosecution had requested the presence of Lincoln Steffens for further cross-examination, but as the witness was not present adjournment was taken until today.
