NEW MEASURES UP AT AUSTIN

house for action, but there is considerable doubt as to whether it will be reached, due to the near end of the session. The bill was not passed here, until two important amendments were attached to it, and which had been rejected the day before. One is an amendment by senator Cole, which requires all such colonization companies, as such corporations are designated, to dispose of their holdings within 15 months after their acquisition, while the bill fixed the time at 24 years, and the other amendment makes it unlawful for any corporation to take advantage of this act when it is shown that such a company has violated the law now on the statute books which provides that land companies must dispose of their holdings within 15 months.

The senate also passed finally the bill to prohibit the heads of any of the state eleemosynary institutions to create any deficiencies; also passed finally a bill by senator Willacy providing for the creation of Lott county in the northern part of Duval county, and a bill to amend the constitution to give a big batch of local bills were also passed by the senate.

BONDS FOR UNIVERSITY

The Warren senate bill authorizing the university of Texas to issue $1,000,000 of bonds for the creation of new buildings and making improvements, will likely be railroaded through the legislature. The indications are favorable to its passage.

On the eve of the special session, governor Colquhoun has received four additional subjects for the consideration of the lawmakers. The most important of these recommendations is a bill to amend the constitution to give the governor authority to issue bonds for the purpose of making such bonds payable at any time that may be desired or determined, and to give him authority to issue such bonds if the governor declares, there will be no difficulty in disposing of the bonds.

EL PASO COURT MEASURES

The other three bills amending the law relating to the issuance of county bonds and also relating to the custody of such bonds, the third of which is a bill to amend the constitution of El Paso county and the appointment of a special judge therefor, the term of this court to expire on the 15th day of September, 1919, is due to the crowded condition of the docket of the district court at El Paso.

The fourth subject is an act to grant relief to persons who settle on the general land office valid applications to purchase school land and awards have been made to them, and such persons fail to settle on the land within the 90 days required by law.

STEELER AND THE PRISONS

Chairman Needy of the house penitentiary committee has made public a letter which was received by chairman Ben E. Cabell from Jeff Steele relative to certain allegations that had been attributed to him by the floor of the house as to the shipment of cotton and also of stock. Mr. Steele disclaimed knowing anything of the alleged knowledge in any way involving the prison management. "I have nothing to hold back from anyone," writes Mr. Steele to chairman Cabell, "but I can't call it now a single thing that would put the bears in a bad light." Mr. Steele also declared he would come to Austin or anywhere else and reiterate this statement.

JOB FOR SAGESS

The governor has sent up a special message to the senate requesting the confirmation of former governor Jos. D. Sayers, of Austin, to be chairman and Wm. J. Moran, of Fort Worth, to be the labor representative of the industrial accident board provided for under the employe compensation law passed at the last regular session of the legislature and which becomes effective on September 1. The third member of this board has not as yet been named.

THAW ESCAPES FROM PRISON

Roger Thompson, Richard D. Beefe, Michael J. Eugene, Eugene Duff, all New York city.

The fifth man assisting in Thaw's escape according to the investigation, joined the group at the Holland hotel under the name of Thomas Flood, of New York city. He is said to have dropped out of the group when Thaw escaped.

Friends Think Keeper Is Blameless

Howard Barnum, the attendant under arrest, is a man of excellent reputation, and his friends are strong in their belief that he did not aid in Thaw's escape. He is about 57 years old and for 20 years has been employed at the hospital where Thaw was looked upon as one of the most trustworthy men in the institution.

Barnum did not do anything particularly friendly with Thaw. In fact, he appeared to dislike him. He told friends on more than one occasion, "Thaw made trouble for us and keeps the place in a turmoil."

Thaw Regarded as a "Truist"

Thaw's escape was added to the fact that he had no doubts as to whether he would not accept freedom unless it came by legal process. The hospital authorities as a result had given him liberties which other prisoners did not enjoy. He was regarded as a "truist" for some time.

Thaw was not as a murderer but as an insane person.

The Jury which sent him to the asylum indicted him of the murder of Stanford White on the same grounds that caused his incarceration in the insane asylum.

The jury which indicted him of the murder of Stanford White on the same grounds that caused his incarceration in the insane asylum, hence he could not be brought back to New York on the murder charge.

He could not be arrested in another state, the hospital authorities say, as he was not held for extradition.

History of the Thaw Case

June 25, 1906, Stanford White, an architect of international fame, was shot and killed by a man named Harry Harrison at the Madison Square garden.

In the first trial, which followed, the jury disagreed. In the second, the jury found White guilty of the murder, and he was insane when he shot White and Justice Dowling committed Thaw to the insane asylum.

Merchants of New York decided against an attempt to release Thaw on habeas corpus.

The court of appeals in New York City, in 1912, Justice Keogh agreed with the other justices that Thaw was still insane.

May 17, 1913, John H. Anhalt, a New York attorney employed by Thaw, was successful in getting Thaw out of the asylum. Thaw was committed to the custody of Matthew, and sentenced to from two to four years at Sing Sing, N. Y.
