

SAFETY FIRST

Safety Officials of the E. P. & S. W. Have a Safety Luncheon and Talk Over Safety Matters—El Paso Smelter Trying to Prevent Accidents to Its Men.

Edited by Edward L. Tinker, Safety Supervisor, E. P. & S. W. Railroad.

EL PASO is preeminently a railroad town. The E. P. & S. W., the G. H. & S. A., the Santa Fe and the Southern Pacific all go through the city and all have safety organizations, as have also the El Paso Street railway and the El Paso smelter. It has always been the policy of The Herald to get behind and encourage any movement that will aid its readers. As the safety organizations have proved that they cut down the number of accidents on railroads to a remarkable extent, and as so many of The Herald readers are railroad men, the paper is going to devote a column each week to "safety first" and correspondence is solicited on all questions of safety.

The Safety Bureau of the E. P. & S. W. Railway gave a luncheon to the members of the eastern division safety committee at a meeting held in the safety bureau at which all railroad men were welcome. Following is the menu of a luncheon:

- Ripe Olives
- Celery
- First Aid to the Uninjured
- Plated Beefsteak
- Safety Salad
- The Only Unsafe Thing on the Menu, Missed Clear Headed Coffee.

"It is better to give your friends beefsteak and onions while they are alive than to send flowers to their grave."

The following members of the eastern division committee were present at the luncheon: J. E. Morris, H. E. Stansbury, Eugene Gordon, C. D. Beeth, E. M. Clough, L. U. McKenzie, R. H. Blair, H. S. Fairbank, W. A. Strickland, C. L. Hoy, J. Snyder, Robert Gibson, A. F. Howard, L. G. Matland, W. W. Arnold, Frank Wagoner, Sam Miller, M. E. Parrish, Frank Fry, P. Collins, George Sharp, T. F. Gorman, roadmaster Devis.

George M. Douglas, inspector of safety and employer welfare, of the American Smelting and Refining company, arrived in El Paso Tuesday morning. His headquarters are New York city and he makes tours of inspection to all the plants of the company with a view of bettering safety conditions, encouraging safety organizations and making improvements in welfare of the employees. Mr. Douglas reports that the headquarters are engaged by the progress made in the various smelters that he has visited up to date, and he thinks the safety work at the El Paso smelter will compare favorably with the others.

W. E. McKeehan, safety inspector of the Copper Queen mine and smelter at Douglas and Bisbee, arrived here Thursday morning to confer with Geo. M. Douglas on questions of safety.

"Don't be always shaking hands with death, but get acquainted with safety first."

The American Museum of Safety awarded to the "Decker Palmator" the scientific American gold medal for the most efficient life saving apparatus designed within the past three years. The palmator is an artificial resuscitation apparatus and is invaluable in cases of drowning, asphyxiation, suspended animation or electric shock. A recent dispatch from Leavenworth, Kansas, states: "Palmator Braslaw is the unique name given the infant son of Ada Braslaw of this city. The child came into the world last night, and for an hour refused to breathe, despite the efforts of the physicians. The new city palmator was sent for, and the infant responded almost instantly when the oxygen was applied."

The El Paso Electric Railway Co. has the only palmator in this section, and keeps it on instant call at its general office. It will be sent promptly to anyone needing it.

Recently the Southwestern held a safety rally in Douglas at which over 100 slides were shown, illustrating the dangerous and the safe ways for the men to perform their duties. After the meeting was over, one of the men came to the safety supervisor and said: "There is only one man in your whole audience who was against you and the safety business and I want you to meet him." The safety supervisor was introduced to the man, and said: "I understand you are not in favor of safety organizations." He replied: "Of course I ain't; I am the undertaker in Douglas."

A new set of pictures has appeared in the window of the safety bureau of the E. P. & S. W. which is attracting a great deal of attention. They are pictures taken during the recent trouble in justice and appear under the heading: "Villains needs a safety organization." They show the unsafe way in which Villain is in the habit of entraining and carrying his men and horses. There is also one of the "Constitutionalist" one dollar bills, which appears over the womanen "Safety First Means Wages in Your Pocket, But Not This Kind."

"Quit taking chances. It is better to hear your friends say 'how do do' than 'how natural he looks'."

The G. H. & S. A. has installed a bell at the El Paso street crossing, in the interests of the safety of the public. It has also put in one at the "Pleasant street crossing in East El Paso, where it was badly needed.

Frenchmen Compliment Women and Would Give Them Right to Vote

Paris, France, Dec. 6.—Probably because they have never for a single moment thought of using militant methods the women of France are certain to receive the privilege of voting before the next general election in 1915, for the number of friends of woman's suffrage is rapidly growing in the senate as well as in the chamber. Only a few days ago M. Louis Andrieux pointed out in the latter house "that universal suffrage is a sham as long as the half and best half of the population is left out."

The Frenchwoman, said another Nationalist deputy, "is the most economical of housekeepers, the most devoted of wives, but they only number some 79 or 80. The rest are drawn from all sections of opinions, and include names of the highest standing in France. Political circles are divided and M. Buisson, president of the commission, has his report ready, and is only waiting for the opportunity to present it to the house. He is wise enough not to be in a hurry, in order that the question may be thoroughly gone into. The prime minister is of the same mind, 'La question vaut une discussion approfondie,' he said a few days ago.

Girl "Cops" Added To New York Force; Do The Work Without Pay

New York, Dec. 6.—The "feminine cop" are now doing voluntary police duty in a quiet way throughout this city. Many of the girl "cops" are still in school, and their efforts are being directed to the prevention and suppression of vice, crime and ignorance. Several of them are very young, the youngest being from 12 to 18. They wear uniforms and are divided into "beats." Each girl is responsible for her own district and reports with regularity to the head of the organization, who sends in a report to the proper city official. Before a girl becomes a member of the force she signs a pledge in which she promises to help in maintaining sanitary conditions in the streets and in the homes. They are instructed to prevent any of their weaker sisters from straying from the path called "straight." In fact they are to report any crime or evil conduct they see. One of the most important duties, and one in which they are of great assistance to the various police officials, is their work in dance halls, moving picture theaters and similar centers of amusement. Through the older girls who attend the dances the organization is able to furnish police officials reports that will supply the latter with evidence enough to clean the dance halls of the vicious element.

The "Popular" Is Radiant in Its Xmas Dress

JUST over night came the transformation—wonderful! Inside, the green and scarlet of the Holly; Poinsette and Christmas Bells. Outside—at night—the brilliance of many window lights.

Now the Christmas stocks are all in their places—overrunning the whole store, and crowding the hardworking all-year-round stocks into comparative obscurity—though these are always at your service, nevertheless.

The whole "POPULAR" Christmas organization is driving ahead at full speed—and running more smoothly than ever before—from the well trained who help you to choose your gifts, to the swift motor delivery wagon that brings your purchase to your door.

This Christmas store of a million gifts has fairly won its right to be YOUR store.

Bring The Kiddies To Toyland and Doldom 310-312 San Antonio St.

SUCH laughter, and jollity—and genuine fun! 'Twill make you hark back to the days of your own childhood, and who would not turn back time's great clock to childhood's heydays as the happy holidays approach?

Such ingenious Toys. Such fascinating Dolls. Such ferocious Animals. Such a whirl of moving trains, and splash of boats and swimming things! No greater treat for a child in all of this city—than right here in Toyland. Come Monday; bring the children with you, stay as long as you can, and welcome. Selection of the Dolls, Toys and Games that are to gladden the hearts of the children on Christmas morn can be made more satisfactorily now than later.
