"Props" Bears All Burdens In the Theater; Community Goat

Mrs. Fiske's Property Man Learns the Use of a Dictaphone by Almost Breaking Up a Performance—Talked About Things in General as He Worked; Dictaphone Gave It Back to Actors.

THE property man is the leonoclast of the theater. In his utilitarian capacity he is the important wheel in the mechanical department, without which there would be no furniture, no bric-a-brac, no draperies, no stage collations, no effects of the "general approaching on horseback," no rizzling of telephones or door bells, no wind or rain storm, nothing, in fact, but the bare scenes.

AMUSEMENTS.

SOTHERN AND MARLOWE. Sothern and Marlowe's interpretation of "Romeo and Juliet" held a capacity house at the El Paso theater Tuesday night at the El Paso theater. When an audience will sit five and a half hours to witness a tragedy, it is a convincing proof of the hold which the stars and the play have upon the feelings of the audience.
