WAR ZONE TOWNS ARE DESCRIBED

Places Figuring in War News Told of by National Geographic Society.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—The National Geographic society has prepared the following facts concerning places that are figuring prominently in the news of the military operations in the European war.

Montmedy.—A fortified town of the second class in northern France, 24 miles north of Verdun and four miles from the Belgian border, on the Chiers river. Part of the town is on a steep height, defended by advanced works of considerable extent, and part on a plain, defended by a wall flanked with bastioned towers. The houses are built on the steep slopes and are irregular. Hooley, mola, vinegar, leather, beer, oil, flour and lumber are manufactured there, while large stone quarries are in the immediate neighborhood. In the nearby abbey of Orval, Louis XIV, and his family took refuge on their flight from Paris. The walls of the town were built in 1320. Montmedy was repeatedly taken by France from Spain in the 16th and 17th centuries. Germany captured it in 1815 and in 1870, after reducing it to a heap of ruins. This town has been on the decline for half a century, the population in that time having shrunk from 3000 to 2000.

Hoeslers Old-Fashioned Town

Hoeslers—An old-fashioned town of northern France, in a valley on the Sautter, 12 miles east of Verdun and 17 miles east of Amiens on the road from Amiens to Laon. The town is the center of the hosiery manufacturing centers of France, and also has large factories for the making of beams and weaving appliances. Wool and sugar mills are located there. In the surrounding districts are ruins of subterranean lead and beds of lime. Godevaersvalde—A hamlet in northern France, seven miles northeast of Hoeslers, at the foot of a ridge lying between Hoeslers and the Belgian border. In the neighborhood is a Crappier manse, and the celebrated castle of St. Cat. Its population slightly exceeds 500.

Church Has Varied History

St. Hubert—A town of southeastern France, four miles south of Metz, and six miles from the Belgian border, near the Sambre river. Several foundries and rifle factories are located there. The place has a population of about 7000.

Commande Mountain Pass.
Markkirch—An upper Alsatian town in the heart of the Vosges, commanding one of the passes through the mountains, in the valley of the upper Labeur. Unlike many of its neighboring towns, it has no mines, but it leads in the number of its weavers, hundreds of people being employed in this industry. The town has a population of some 15,000 and has several iron foundries, machine shops, textile works and tanneries. It carries on considerable trade with St. Die, on the French slope of the Vosges.

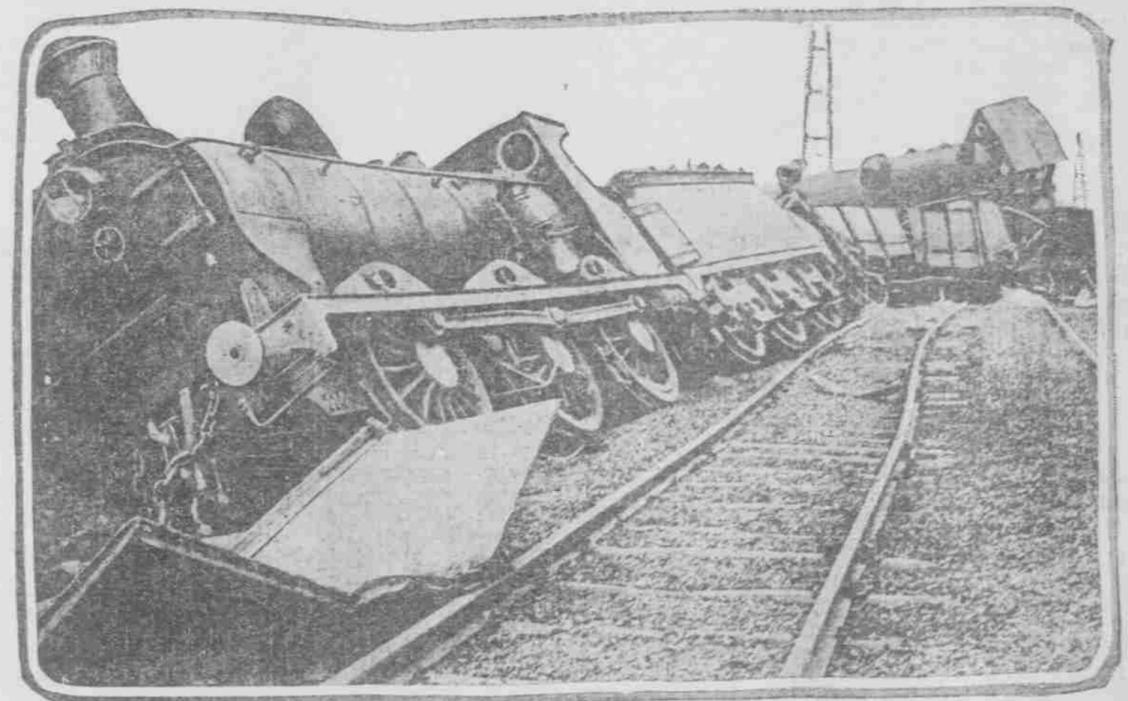

Pilica.—A small town of Russian-Poland, 20 miles southwest of Cracow and 23 miles southeast of Czesochowa, on a river of the same name. The town has carried on a good trade in grain with Prussian Silesia and with Austria. It has large tanneries and textile works. The population is between 4000 and 5000. The Pilica river rises in the southwestern corner of Russian Poland, flows north for about 50 miles and north of east for about 80 miles, falling into the Vistula 28 miles above Warsaw.

SAYS GERMANS CONCENTRATE THEIR FIRE ON BRITISH

London, Eng., Nov. 2.—Telegraphing from Calais, France, under date of Sunday, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

"The British army has endured an historic ordeal in checking the German attempts to advance on Calais. The German offensive has crumbled, but the empire should know that the victory at Ypres has been purchased at a price as high as any previous recorded in British battle history. "The cream of our army suffered and the gaps must be quickly filled in the German ranks, in to be turned to good account. Every time we advance the Germans seem to slacken their fire on our allies and concentrate their entire attention on the British troops."

"This is not the time when the will of the sultan, but the will of the German officers and other non-Moslems, who have forced him to do their bidding. He declares further that Turkey has now lost her position as the trustee of Islam. She has drawn her sword in an unholy cause and the duty of the Moslems today is to remain loyal and faithful to their temporal and secular allegiances."
