

DANCING GRACEFULLY DEMONSTRATED; PHILATHEAS MAKE "TRIP TO WAR ZONE"

DEMONSTRATION of the physical training, esthetic and folk dancing of the El Paso School for Girls was given Thursday afternoon in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian association before a large audience of relatives and friends of the school children. The demonstration was splendidly given, the interest of the children taking part, the snap, spirit and precision with which they executed the various exercises, being remarkably good. Especially was this true of the military drill and marching, which was almost perfectly executed and which was one of the most difficult of the exercises presented. The esthetic dancing represented a new departure in the school work in that the esthetic dancing has been made a regular part of the physical training work, whereas heretofore this was only in special classes. Consequently the esthetic dances presented all of the classes instead of a selected group of pupils. The program was creditable. Miss Gertrude Martin, the physical director of the school, conducted the demonstration in a capable manner and exhibiting much executive ability. Miss Greta Palmer played the piano music for the dances.

Margaret Schuster, Helen Stewart, Beatrice Stiles, Katherine White, Dorothy Williams, Nancy Williams and Winifred Woods. Following this was an exhibition of games of both recreational and gymnastic value. Dodge ball was given by the upper school pupils, captained by Irene Robertson and Charlotte Ormsbee. "Teasing" was played by the lower school pupils. Two folk dances, "Boat Walk" and "Highland Schottische," were given by the upper school pupils, who were: Ruth Guyer, Sadie Ruth Aldridge, Louise Beach, Virginia Bray, Gladys Bule, Kate Burgis, Hazel Coffey, Mary Coleman, Henrietta Courchesne, Josephine Courchesne, Louise Crawford, Janie Davis, Irma Davis, Katherine Dick, Lydia Happer, Mary Krupp, Birdie Krupp, Mildred LaSalle, Frieda Laskin, Minda Laskin, Margaret Neff, Charlotte Ormsbee, Elizabeth Pfaff, Katherine Pfaff, Ruth Rawlings, Irene Robertson, Margaret Schuster, Ruth Schwartz, Gladys Smith, Eva Stevenson, Paul Stewart, Beatrice Stiles, Maria Terraza, Katherine White, Dorothy Williams, Nancy Williams, Winifred Woods, Dorothy Ormsbee.

Relay races at running had walking paces were given, with Janie Mae Davis and Yonnie Fry as captives. The pupils taking part were: Shirley Booker, Virginia Bray, Gladys Bule, Virginia Caldwell, Irene Campbell, Mary Coleman, Irma Davis, Janie Davis, Margaret Gaudard, Charlotte Harris, Julia Hawkins, Marion Hurd, Paula Krupp, Mildred LaSalle, Johnnie McQuatters, Eugenia McQuatters, Lella McQuatters, Josephine Morfit, Charlotte Ormsbee, Elizabeth Pfaff, Katherine Pfaff, Jeanette Rawlings, Johnnie Rawlings, Maria Terraza, Gretchen Trilch, Barbara Wallace, Katherine White, Lillian Wisburn, Frieda Laskin. Elementary steps in esthetic dancing were given by four pupils of the primary school, Barbara Wallace, Jeanette Rawlings, Johnnie Rawlings, and Johnnie McCabe. An esthetic dance "Day Dream" was given by the following pupils of the upper school: Sadie Ruth Aldridge, Louisa Beach, Jane Burgess, Winifred Woods, Althea Coffin, Louise Crawford, Hazel Coffey, Katherine Dick, Birdie Krupp, Paula Krupp, Minda Laskin, Eugenia McQuatters, Lella McQuatters, Margaret Neff, Ruth Rawlings, Beatrice Stiles, Dorothy Williams, Nancy Williams, Lillian Wisburn, Gladys Chapman Smith, Helen Stewart, Lydia Happer, Ruth Schwartz, Margaret Schuster, May Krupp, and Nancy Williams. A motor march in esthetic dancing passed by Mrs. Burgess, Louise Crawford, Katherine Dick, Lydia Happer, Mary Krupp, Birdie Krupp, Mildred LaSalle, Minda Laskin, Margaret Neff, Charlotte Ormsbee, Dorothy Ormsbee, Ruth Rawlings.

The Forward Glide In the One-Step

Fifth of a Series of 18 Articles on the Modern Dance. By MILE ANNA PAVLOWA.

The forward glide in Mile Anna Pavlova's standardized one-step. Photograph especially posed by Mile Anna Pavlova and M. Clustine. Photo copyright by Max Ribbhoff.

THE forward glide, the fifth figure in my standardized one-step, offers a new variation which not only makes the entire dance visually more artistic, but affords an excellent change for the dancers. This figure comes immediately after the cross-over change. Each dancer begins the forward glide on the one count following the 12 counts which have been consumed in executing the cross-over change. At its completion the man is on the left of his partner and each dancer is standing erect squarely on both feet, a distance of some 12 inches separating them. The forward glide consists of a four-step dancing walk forward in "open position, the man holding his partner's right hand with his right arm, the woman with her left hand. The man's feet are turned in the direction of the partner, and a four-step dancing walk forward in the direction from which they came. The whole figure is neatly executed (for this is perhaps the hardest part of the figure) there need be no concern over the remainder of the steps. The woman, on count "one," takes a forward step on her right foot, simultaneously raising her left foot and her left hand (the palm down) in the right hand of her partner. This step is taken on the ball of the right foot, the heel being raised as the foot moves with her left hand and right foot. The man, on count "one," takes a forward step on his right foot, simultaneously raising his left foot and his left hand (the palm down) in the right hand of his partner. This step is taken on the ball of the right foot, the heel being raised as the foot moves with his left hand and right foot. ing necessary to adapt length of the step to the comfort of the dancer. A glance at the photograph of M. Clustine and myself, which is presented on this page, will give an excellent idea of the attitude each dancer assumes at the end of the first step in the forward glide, which is taken on count "one." On count "two" the woman brings her left foot forward, swinging it clear of the floor, and takes a second step, considerably shorter than the first. The right foot is again brought into use on count "three," as a short step forward than that on count "one," and then comes count "four," on which the woman takes a forward step on her left foot and executes an about-face turn to her left. During the four forward steps the woman and her partner have held their right and left arms before them, the hands clasped in the manner already explained. As each executes the about-face turn they give a smart twist to the arms, finding in this procedure a means of assistance in maintaining the balance as the turn is made. Count "five," "six," "seven," and "eight" are correspondingly those of the first four counts, save that the line of direction is reversed—the woman's right foot is raised in the right of her partner, the man's movements are correspondingly the same as those of his partner, he taking a step with his right foot when she moves with her left and turning to his left for the about-face turn instead, as she does, to her right. Count "nine" is a repeat of the last of the one-step figures.
