

THE PRIZES FOR THE SECRETARY OF THE ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS OF THE WORLD

Arizona Governor Pleased at Reception; Says It Shows the El Paso Spirit.

"I can understand, now," said Gov. G. W. P. Hunt, of Arizona, Saturday night, "why El Paso forges to the front as it does."

The Arizona executive, together with Adjt. Gen. Charles Harris, of the Arizona national guard, and mayor I. W. Misk, of Nogales, were on his way home from the launching of the dreadnought "Arizona," and had been met at Fort Hancock by a delegation of El Pasoans headed by R. E. Sherman, president of the chamber of commerce, and Tom Lea, mayor of the city.

"I cannot flatter myself that this reception is intended for El Paso or for my colleagues but rather for the great state we represent, but I want to assure you that we appreciate your kindness and your display of hospitality and good will and to further assure you that we hope the time will come when we may be able to do the same for you."

On behalf of the El Pasoans mayor Lea responded to Gov. Hunt's graceful little speech in the case of Mexico, and his party to remain ever a train or a day or more as the guests of the city. He has not intended to compliment the state of Arizona the little reception excursion was planned by those who made up the welcome party as a mark of respect to the governor in his proper person.

Larger and Finer El Paso. Gov. Hunt said that much as he would like to see El Paso for a time to see the city he had heard and read so much about he could not do so at this time because of the need of his presence at the capital of his own state. In years gone by he often spent short periods in El Paso, but it was not until he had heard and read so much about it that he would find a city so much larger and finer than the El Paso of his recollection.

The reception party left El Paso at 4:45 over the Texas and Pacific and ran to Fort Hancock, where the reception was made with the utmost cordiality which arrived here at 12.

Gov. Hunt, in his launching and of his visit to Sing Sing prison, where he was given one of the most touching receptions he had ever received in his life, he said that the man who has recently been changed from a merely punitive to a corrective institution and the man in the next cell seemed to have it in mind but for the impetus given the mind idea by Gov. Hunt in his reforms tested out in the Sing Sing prison, they would be suffering the tortures of body and mind that until within the past few months, characterized prison life in Sing Sing.

Gov. Hunt said that he had found little sentiment in the east for armed intervention in the case of Mexico. He is inclined to think that the mass of the people away from the border and who have lived in the peace of the situation would fall in support of a proposition to engage in war with Mexico.

These qualities have endeared him to the Washington correspondents, who did not get along well at all with Mr. Bryan. Mr. Lansing's request for order—that no foreign diplomatists be accredited by questioners in the state, war and navy building, was very firmly carried out; indeed, a correspondent who violated it would become a pariah to his fellows here. The correspondents know the use of the secretary of state's office will do the right thing by them and they desire to measure up to Mr. Lansing's own standards.

Members of the diplomatic corps find Mr. Lansing is of the best type of old fashioned statesman and they treasure him accordingly. As to the subordinates of the secretary of state throughout the world, they know Mr. Lansing understands their troubles and difficulties thoroughly. Mr. Lansing and his wife's daughter, John W. Foster, secretary of state under Harrison and United States envoy to several countries, make their home here together. The son-in-law is a man of the main who is affectionately called "the old fox of American diplomacy."

Mr. Foster will be 80 years old next year. He was a brigadier general in the civil war, minister to Russia and minister to Spain. He has served on many very important international commissions and has acted officially for China and Mexico. Several of his books are standard. He is a leading peace advocate.

Lansing's Appointment is Pleasing to United States and Foreign Diplomats.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 27.—Robert Lansing's appointment to the highest office in the power of the president to bestow pleases at least three classes of persons very much—the foreign diplomatists of the capital, the members of the United States diplomatic service throughout the world, and the Washington newspaper correspondents.

In other words, those who will come into closest contact with the next president as he would be called abroad, could not be better suited than to hear that the calm, suave, affable man who has been temporarily in charge of the foreign affairs of the country will continue there.

Without resembling the "emancipator" in physical appearance to even a power of the president to bestow pleases at least three classes of persons very much—the foreign diplomatists of the capital, the members of the United States diplomatic service throughout the world, and the Washington newspaper correspondents.

On entering his office, in the state, war and navy building, one meets a man of large figure, prematurely gray—he is 51 years old—but undoubtedly handsome. His eyes are especially fine and his face lights up in a way that is irresistible.

Mr. Lansing dresses in the black and gray coat of the man of big affairs and is unobtrusively well groomed. He is a man of big affairs and is unobtrusively well groomed. He is a man of big affairs and is unobtrusively well groomed.

Mr. Lansing described his own job to an extent in a speech before the alumni of Amherst college a short time ago. He said: "These are critical days for our country. How critical only those who are in intimate touch with affairs can realize. It is a time for serious thought, a time for study, a time for a review of all history being waged with disregard for life and a ferocity unparalleled in the annals of war. Nations seem to have returned to primitive barbarism. Rights of individuals and of nations are swept aside in this gigantic struggle for the control of Europe. Neutrals as well as belligerents are bearing the burden. The commercial and industrial life of the whole world is affected."

The result is that the neutral nations have had to meet a series of problems that have never been solved. The liability of error of the war, intentional partiality and the constant complaint of one or the other of the belligerents make the path of neutrality rough and dangerous. It is a time to deal with the questions of international law and usage which are arising every day in our midst. Today we are wrestling with novel problems to which it must apply natural justice and practical common sense."

Mr. Lansing is a Democrat, but has never taken part in political campaigns and will probably be of little political value to the fortunes of this administration at the next election. This was in a way a drawback to his appointment as secretary of state.

But on the other hand, there is added to the administration a man who will strengthen the government greatly. President Wilson needs a few more men like secretary of war, Secretary Lansing. She has preferential treatment to be photographed for the newspapers and Mr. Lansing himself is inclined to pose only with great diffidence.

His mental processes are sure. He has a great liking for mathematics and once said he did not see how any man could undertake the solution of great problems without having had the mental discipline afforded by the study of this subject. The cabinet cannot have too many mathematical minds.

As secretary of state Mr. Lansing can be depended upon not to court publicity. He dislikes, notably, as does Mr. Lansing, the use of preferential treatment to be photographed for the newspapers and Mr. Lansing himself is inclined to pose only with great diffidence.

Delegates Go to School at Chicago Convention; El Paso Is Advertised.

Ten thousand dollars worth of ideas were brought back to El Paso by the Adulph delegation from the 11th annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, according to R. E. Sherman, who returned Monday from Chicago, where the big convention was held. This, he declared, was in addition to the large amount of publicity gained for El Paso and the laying of grounds for securing advertising for this city in 1915.

The Adulph's definite plan and purpose in sending the delegation to Chicago, said Mr. Sherman, "was to bring back the newest and best ideas of the brightest minds of America in the advertising world and to give them to the club and the city."

Delegates Took Notes. "Every man from El Paso took notes upon his particular assignment and will return prepared to give at least two papers before the club bringing out the best of the new ideas which he has gained. This should result in a series of meetings that will be of immense benefit to every business man in El Paso and will open up the biggest field ever attempted by the El Paso club."

The convention was the biggest in the history of the association from every standpoint. The attendance was more than 10,000 persons. El Paso's advertising matter was read upon with ardor by the convention crowd and the people of Chicago Chamber of Commerce booklets were sought in particular. The little booklet entitled "What We Know About Hard Times in El Paso," and whose pages are blank, given out by the thousands and made a decided hit. The imitation railroad tickets which called for a ride over "Prosperity Line" to El Paso were sought after as souvenirs, as well as the limitation $100 bills which guaranteed a lifetime of sunshine and prosperity at El Paso.

Mix Is Live One. "Much of the success of the El Paso delegation was due to W. E. Mix, the new president of the Adulph, whose energy and enterprise were a strong factor in all of the work attempted. Mr. Mix continued east from Chicago on a 30 day business trip."

Mayor Tom Lea's telegram to president Woodhead inviting the convention to El Paso in 1915 was read amid much applause. The ten large picture displays of scenes in El Paso, each one mounted on a stand six feet high and five feet wide, were placed in the leading hotels of Chicago and at the main entrances of the convention hall, and were viewed by thousands of people. Arrangements were made to place one of these displays permanently in the lobby of the LaSalle hotel and another in the city ticket office of the Rock Island railroad in Chicago. Secretary L. J. Burrud will endeavor to place two more in Kansas City.

Before the Canadian joint high commission in 1904-05 and of whom he served the Mexican and Chinese legations. In 1902 he was appointed to be counsel for the United States before the Alaska boundary tribunal and he took a prominent part in the Venezuelan dispute in 1905. He represented the government in the fisheries arbitration in 1908 and in 1911, on his return to this country from the United States, he was named as one of the British claims arbitration and in 1912 his work up to the date he was chosen as secretary of Bryan's right hand man.

Deserved His Own Job. Mr. Lansing described his own job to an extent in a speech before the alumni of Amherst college a short time ago. He said: "These are critical days for our country. How critical only those who are in intimate touch with affairs can realize. It is a time for serious thought, a time for study, a time for a review of all history being waged with disregard for life and a ferocity unparalleled in the annals of war. Nations seem to have returned to primitive barbarism. Rights of individuals and of nations are swept aside in this gigantic struggle for the control of Europe. Neutrals as well as belligerents are bearing the burden. The commercial and industrial life of the whole world is affected."

TO RETURN OR TO LOS ANGELES Mangled by Engine, to Face Murder Charge; Wife Beaten to Death.

E. E. Orr, who, according to the nurses at the Providence hospital, is the self confessed slayer of his wife in Los Angeles, is to be taken back to Los Angeles to stand trial. He is now under arrest here as a fugitive from justice.

Orr was terribly mangled by a T. & P. switch engine in the union station yards when he is said to have attempted to take his own life by jumping in front of the engine. Both of his legs and one arm was cut off by the engine and he has been in Providence hospital since May 23.

He gave the name of Elyett Polk at the time of the accident but later admitted his name to be Orr, according to the hospital attendants and physicians, admitted having killed his wife in Los Angeles. The police here were informed by the Los Angeles police that Orr was one of the most brutal murderers at their Los Angeles home, her head having been beaten with a small hammer.

Expected to Die. For a time after being taken to the hospital it was thought he would die of his injuries. As he grew stronger he confessed, it is said, to having killed his wife. The police claim to have this confession, which was sent to the Los Angeles authorities, who said they would come for the aged man when he had recovered sufficiently to travel.

Believed to Be Insane. Dr. H. S. White, who attended Orr, is of the opinion that the man is insane. He is a victim, in the opinion of physicians here who have seen him, of paranoia, one of the most dangerous forms of insanity. Attendants at the hospital say that he is one of the most unruly patients ever taken care of there.

Since his injury and frequently attempts to quarrel with his nurses. The exact date of the arrival of Los Angeles police officers here to take him to the coast has not been learned, but it is expected to be this week.

On Sale In Our Second Floor Annex. Kapok is a vegetable fibre of very exceptional qualities, its virtues were discovered and used by the Dutch long before the "happy thought" came to America—contrary to wool, hair or felt, it will not decay and is germ proof. The kapok-fibre is solid right through—not hollow in the center like wool or hair—to prove this contention, kapok will not absorb water, it will not dye effectually—it is, therefore, moisture tight—no germs could get into it and lodge—neither is there any animal fat to decay and breed microbes.

DATA ABOUT AUDITORIUM BEING GATHERED IN EAST. Facts and figures relative to the proposed city auditorium are now being secured by the chamber of commerce. Letters have already been written to a number of cities where auditoriums have been built. The most recent reply is from the Springfield, O., chamber of commerce, which states that the combined auditorium and market in that city was begun in 1912, at which time a bond issue of $25,000 was authorized. The building furnished commodious quarters for all the city offices, all the offices being located on the second floor. The rental from the market stalls is between $25,000 and $11,000 a year. Farmers, however, claim that this rental is too high and have formed an association for the purpose of erecting a building of their own. The local chamber of commerce expects to secure data regarding auditoriums and markets from all of the large cities in the United States, especially in the west. Division among ourselves is the only foe to be feared.
