REPLIES TO "A SOLDIER."

Editor El Paso Herald: I would like to say to your readers in general and to "A Soldier" in particular, that the views of "A Soldier," as expressed in the Herald, are far from being those held by the majority of Uncle Sam's fighting men.

He states that he is positive that any soldier in the world would much rather clean up a Chihuahuista district than to be at war.

I am a soldier and I most emphatically deny this statement. If it is his true opinion I am very sorry for him and hope that some of your readers will not jump at it.

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store, and yet during the period of expectancy, much depends upon the physical condition of the mother.

One of the best aids is a remedy known as "Mother's Friend," recommended by the medical profession. It penetrates to the network of nerves, relieves the pains in children, and stimulates the system, making them calm, contented, and healthy.

Get a bottle of this splendid aid today. From your nearest drugist or send for it. Then write Bradford E. Ingleside Co., 446 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book of instruction for expectant mothers.

COFFEE A NARCOTIC AND DOPE WITH OPIUM

Well known medical writer declares coffee, like opium, holds victims in pitiless grasp.

"I would like to make everyone thoroughly understand that coffee is a narcotic—a very strong narcotic, too," says Dr. E. Carr in a communication to the Ohio State Journal.

There is no drug in the pharmacopeia that has a more powerful effect upon the brain centers than coffee. Coffee is a dose of caffeine almost equal to opium.

RELIEVES THE WORST CASES OF CATARRH

Think "Hyonal" the Most Wonderful Treatment for Catarrh Ever Discovered.

Do not try to cure catarrh by using sprays or lotions; it cannot be cured in that manner. The only way in which this common disease can be fully relieved is through direct application of the Hyonal.

Breathing the Hyonal is the only known method of treatment that can really accomplish this. It is the simplest, most pleasant and probably the most reliable treatment for catarrh that has ever been discovered.

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

"Nannie Wagtail and Uncle Wiggly's Handkerchief." By HOWARD B. GARIS.

NANNIE WAGTAIL, the little goat girl, was very happy. She had gotten up early in the morning—and had polished her horns until they shone like the bottom of a tin dishpan.

And Billie, her brother, had polished his hoofs with bees' wax until they were as slippery as slippery elm, and nothing is more slippery than that.

"For," said Nannie to Uncle Butter, the nice old goat gentleman, who pasted circus posters on the fence, "you see, Uncle Butter, I want to look as nice as possible today."

"Why?" asked Uncle Butter. "Because," answered Nannie, "brother Billie and I are going for a walk in the woods with Uncle Wiggly Longears, and we may have an adventure."

"I see," laughed Uncle Butter. "And Billie wants his hoofs slippery so, in case you meet a bad adventure, like a fox chasing you, you can run fast and get away from him."

"But I don't want to look like a 'fox'!" said Nannie. "I don't want to look like a 'fox'!" said Nannie. "I don't want to look like a 'fox'!" said Nannie.

"Oh, listen to me, would you! The idea of a goat boy trying on a hair ribbon! No! I mean Nannie was doing that and her brother was tying his shoes laces."

"Now I'll be good children," said Mrs. Wagtail, the good lady, as Billie and Nannie started off. "Don't give Uncle Wiggly any trouble."

Uncle Wiggly had invited Billie and Nannie to go for a walk with him in the woods. The nice old goat gentleman often took long walks, looking for adventures and things like that.

"What kind do you guess will have, Billie?" asked Nannie, as she walked along in the woods.

"Oh, I guess a sort of lollipop one," Billy said. "And I guess it will be a candy and chewing gum adventure," spoke Nannie.

Soon the two goat children were at the hollow stump bungalow where Uncle Wiggly lived with Nurse Jane Puzzy Wuzzy, the maidservant lady, who kept house for him.

"Who-oo!" Uncle Wiggly zally called Nannie waving one horn at the rabbit gentleman, who was out on the porch.

"Who-oo!" politely answered Uncle Wiggly. "Come right up and sit down Billy and Nannie. I'll be ready in a minute. All I have to do is put on a clean handkerchief and I'll be with you."

and the child, and what he understands the object of the system to be and wherein it fails. There are many parents who are seeking a foundation of knowledge on this subject which would give them the right to judge.

I, for one, can not have too much information upon the subject of the Gary system. And while discussing children and their relation to the school, let me suggest that a criticism of school or of anything pertaining to it, suffered by a parent from a child, destroys the child's respect for that institution and for the teacher.

Cooperation in all lines of endeavor is a privilege. Cooperation between parent and teacher is a sacred one. I have never been a teacher but I am.

"Put on a clean handkerchief! How are you going to do that? Billie asked with a laugh. I just want to get one to put in my pocket so I'll look o.k."

So he went inside the hollow stump bungalow while Billie and Nannie sat outside on the porch. Pretty soon the goat children heard the rabbit gentleman sort of talking to himself, like this:

"Well! Well! That's queer! I wonder where they can be? I don't see what has become of them. Oh dear, it's too late. I don't want to go out unless I have one to look stylish—and Nurse Jane isn't here to wash and iron me one in a hurry. I don't see how I can go walking in the woods with you if I don't have a clean handkerchief."

"Oh, I can't find any clean handkerchiefs," said the rabbit gentleman. "I've looked all over my bureau, and even under it, but no clean handkerchiefs can I find. I don't want to go out unless I have one to look stylish—and Nurse Jane isn't here to wash and iron me one in a hurry. I don't see how I can go walking in the woods with you if I don't have a clean handkerchief."

"Yes, there are some, but they are all black," answered the rabbit gentleman. "I used only one to wipe the mud off my automobile tires and another to dust off the top of my airship. So now I haven't a single clean handkerchief."

"We won't worry," said Nannie. "I can wash one out for you in a few minutes, and iron it, too."

"Can you really?" asked Uncle Wiggly. "Surely I can," spoke the little goat girl. "I will." Then she went into the hollow stump bungalow and taking one of the muddy handkerchiefs, she put it in some nice, clean, soapy water and soaped it up and down with her hands and feet.

"You go sit outside on the porch with Billie," said Nannie to Uncle Wiggly, "and soon I'll have a clean handkerchief for you."

So Uncle Wiggly did. Nannie made the handkerchief clean and clean, and she was just going to iron it, after drying it in the wind, when the handkerchief slipped and fell right into a pot of red jam that was on the kitchen table.

"Oh dear!" cried Nannie, as she looked at the handkerchief, which was now streaked. "That's too bad. Now I'll have to wash it over again."

Well, she was just going to wash out the streak when her hoof once more, and this time it fell in some blue ink that Uncle Wiggly had been using to write the Grandfather Goosey Goosey Gander. The ink bottle had no cork in it.

"Oh dear! Worse and worse!" cried Nannie. "The handkerchief has a blue stripe on it as well as a red one! And so it had. And in some places where the blue ink or the red jam had 14 YEARS Ago Today From The Herald of This Date, 1921.

F. A. Spence, real estate man, left for White Oaks today.

Prof. J. C. Carreza went to Lordsburg this morning.

Doretta Arcellano and Miss Brijida Rodriguez are leaving for the States.

The Rev. E. P. Ryland, pastor of Trinity M. E. church, left for Capitan this forenoon to spend a few days.

J. A. Smith left for Nogales today, from which Arizona city he will go to Canada and other Mexican points.

Attorney R. F. Bowden leaves for Dallas to attend the fair and see to some legal business in that section of the state.

Abbie De Avrette has received a very flattering offer to give a concert in Dallas.

Mrs. Harris, mother of the proprietor of the El Paso Laundry, is best to visit her son, James. She came down from Boston.

The Rev. John F. Kellogg, pastor of the First (Myrtle Avenue) Methodist church, is to visit San Antonio, N. M., tonight to attend the territorial conference of his church organization.

Mayor H. F. Hammett left for Dallas this morning. He expects to meet some of his constituents in El Paso. Alderman O. H. Baum becomes acting chief executive of the city during mayor Hammett's absence.

The Daily Novelette THE MEASURE OF A MAN. I wished to go Maynor. But May was too cold. While June offered sleighing. The rain did a tango. Through August, I vow. But my heart is set on September now.

The tailoring establishment of Underdown, Overup and Ko was very busy that morning, but Mr. Underdown himself found time to run to the door as the distinguished looking stranger entered.

"I'd like to be measured for a suit," he said. "And I'm particular."

not streaked it the handkerchief was plain white.

"Well, I'll have to wash it all over again," said Nannie, sorrowfully. "Just then Uncle Wiggly called out from outside:

"Oh, ho, Nannie! Is my handkerchief washed yet?"

"It was," said Nannie, sadly. "But I dropped it twice and now look at it. She held up the red, white and blue striped handkerchief so Uncle Wiggly could see it through the window. 'I'll have to wash it all over again,' spoke the little goat girl."

"Oh, ho! No you won't!" cried Uncle Wiggly, in a most jolly voice. "Let me have that handkerchief just as it is. I've ironed it with my hands. It's ironed, it's striped, red, white and blue, just like our flag. I couldn't have a more proper or stylish handkerchief. It just matches my red, white and blue rheumatism crutch. It's very good of you to make it that way. Don't think of washing it out again."

So the rabbit gentleman tucked the queer red, white and blue handkerchief in his pocket, and off to the woods he went with Nannie and Billie. Nannie and he had a fine time, which brings me to the end of the story.

But, if the needle and thread don't take the safety pin out for a ride in the work basket and lose it, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and the handkerchief.

A Remedy For All Pain

"The efficiency of any drug" says Dr. C. P. Robbins, "is known to us by the results we obtain from its use. If we are able to control pain and disease by means of any preparation, we certainly are warranted in its use. One of the principal symptoms of all diseases is pain, and this is what the patient most often suffers for, i. e., something to relieve his pain. If we can arrest this promptly, the patient is most liable to trust in us for the other remedies which will effect a permanent cure. One remedy which I have used largely in my practice is Anti-Congestive Tablets. Many and various are their uses. I have put them to the test on many occasions, and have never been disappointed. I found them especially valuable for headaches of malarial origin, where quinine was being taken. They appear to prevent the bad after-effects of the quinine. Anti-Congestive Tablets are also excellent for the headaches from improper digestion; also for headaches of a neuritic origin, and especially for women subject to pains at certain times. Two Anti-Congestive Tablets give prompt relief, and in a short time the patient is able to go about as usual." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for Anti-Congestive Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headaches, neuralgia and all pains.
