

MOVIE NOTES from MOVIELAND

IN "A Daughter of the Gods" the William Fox $1,000,000 film fantasy, two remarkable youngsters—Katherine and Jane Lee—are called upon to play the most important roles ever assigned to children of their years.

Jane Lee.

Have you noticed this bright young woman in Fox pictures? She will be seen in the great Annette Kellerman spectacle, which will be released soon.

HISTORIC LANDMARKS USED IN "NATHAN HALE"

Producing companies of the world Film Corporation, under supervision of William A. Brady, are taking every possible step to make the forthcoming World feature, "Nathan Hale," historically correct down to the minutest detail.

Director Emilie Chautard and a company of players, headed by Robert Warwick, Gail Kane, Clara Whipple and Alie B. Francis, accompanied by Mr. Brady, went to Boston as the center of New England's historic zone. Through Mr. Brady's efforts, the Boston museum allowed director Chautard to use the old prints, relics, uniforms and costumes of Revolutionary times as patterns for his property and wardrobe departments.

The historic landmarks of Concord, Lexington and Marblehead, Mass., were scenic locations for the episodes in Nathan Hale's career, and Boston Common was turned over to the company each morning for a week so the picture might be atmospherically correct.

Geraldine Farrar, the famous opera singer, with her husband, Lou Tellegen, are studying at Coronado Beach until time for them to start work. Up to this time it has not yet been announced whether they will both be used in the same feature or separately.

Use of the photo dramas is now in the hands of the scenario department and

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE STONES. BY HOWARD R. GARIS.

"WELL, where are you going this morning, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady house-keeper, as she saw the rabbit gentleman hopping down off the front porch of his hollow stump farm house. "Are you going to dig potatoes, or shell some peas?"

"Well, I don't exactly know," answered the rabbit gentleman. "I am going to take a walk over my farm and see how it looks after the rain. For there had been a shower in the night, and now the ground is so soft, each leaf glistened like forty seven million diamonds."

"Well, don't forget to come back for lunch," said Nurse Jane as she went in and closed the door so the flies couldn't buzz around the gas stove. "We are going to have watermelon short cake for lunch."

"Oh, dear!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I will take us a year to clear this field of stones. There are so many!" "There are quite a lot," said Grandpa Goosey sadly. "But if we don't get rid of the stones the beans will not grow."

"I can't," cried Uncle Wiggily, innocent like. "There is someone throwing stones out of my field. He seems to be a good thrower, too. I wonder if any of you boys can beat him."

"My My!" cried Uncle Wiggily, rubbing his eyes as he saw all the stones go and without any trouble on his part at all. "You animal chaps are certainly good throwers. I guess I'll have to give you each an ice cream cone."

The Daily Novelette

BEN BUM-VOYAGE.

Electric shocks are pain felt. On days of settled rain—Just feel the window with your hand. And you will shiver.

It was a warm night in Constantinople. Nay, morning for the star Sultana was dimming with the dawn. So hot was it that the very cats on the back balustrades were mopping their brows with their paws.

Ben Bum-Voyage rolled up Main plaza, hiccoughing, towards his palatial home, "Harem Bum-Voyage." The other harems all seemed to rock and lean towards him in his unsteady progress, but at last his own front steps stopped in front of him and he ascended them.

Twenty minutes later, having found the keyhole, he fitted it to his key and entered. "Shem bala gab" (I must be quiet), he thought cunningly.

14 YEARS Ago Today

From The Herald of This Date, 1902.

DURING the past two days the city has been visited by a violent rain storm, which is considered remarkable by old timers in view of its long continuance and steady down-pour.

Special officer Billy Smith, of the Rock Island railway, has returned to the city.

A. P. Cole has returned to the city from Cloudcroft where he has been for several days.

L. Pearce left yesterday for the Old Pueblo, in Arizona, where he has interests.

The new steam roller belonging to the city, which was the subject of a petition for its removal, will be brought to the city.

According to reports the Border Rifles, El Paso's military company, arrived in Austin, and are making an excellent record while the state encampment the militia will be fought how to shoot and drill.

Notice of the appointment of W. M. Petric to the city, as the referee in bankruptcy, has just been received by deputy clerk Hodgson.

The striking shop men of the Southern Pacific railway will soon go back to work, the company and the strikers having come to a satisfactory agreement.

CONGRESSMAN W. R. SMITH.

To the People of El Paso: I am again seeking re-election to Congress in the Democratic primaries to be held on July 22nd. Deeply grateful for the generous support accorded me by you in the past, I desire to show my appreciation by giving you the best service of which I have been capable, not only in matters of general concern, but also in those matters of local interest that make for the rebuilding of your city and the prosperity of her people.

In the work of securing legislation for the Elephant Butte Irrigation project, for the enlargement of Fort Bliss, and for an adequate post office building, I have had your constant sympathy and cooperation, and you have greatly lightened the burden of it all by most generous and ungrudging support at each recurring election.

In these years of service for El Paso, I have become deeply interested in her progress and welfare, and I am anxious to see the various enterprises completed which I have had a part in setting on foot for her.

These are most important and will require additional appropriations which must be secured by legislation. The new post office building has been authorized and partly appropriated for. Additional appropriations by legislation will have to be secured from time to time as the work progresses.

Fort Bliss has been enlarged into a regimental post, and now with a large increase in our standing army additional quarters and barracks will be needed, and an opportunity will open for enlarging Fort Bliss into a brigade post. I have already taken steps to that end.

I also have in progress a bill giving Americans preference over aliens upon all government work, and I am anxious to see that become a law.

PREPAREDNESS and BORDER PROTECTION

Colorado, Texas, July 15, 1916.

I do not believe any amount of misrepresentation will mislead the people of my district as to my record on the subject of preparedness. Those who kept informed know that I took a position far in advance of my party upon this subject in the House in Representative terms, for I not only voted for a standing army larger than the military experts said could be raised except by conscription, and for the national guard, which was provided for, but also for the volunteer army provision which would have authorized the president in time of war as well as in time of war to organize and train a volunteer force of 251,000 men. This provision for volunteers was opposed by every member of the House from Texas excepting myself, and by every Democrat in the House, with the exception of less than ten as I recall.

and Agua Prieta and people were wounded and killed in El Paso and protect them, I made a speech in the House against such policy and demanded that the president change such policy and employ our military forces to prevent a repetition of such occurrence, and as a result the president did change his policy in accordance with my demands.

When the Columbus raid occurred I was the first member of Congress to make the floor and denounce it and demand that our troops be sent into Mexico to exterminate the bandits.

I was also the first to appear before the Secretary of State to present the facts and demand appropriate action in the Cusi case.

The fact is, I have been consistently on the job of furnishing protection for the border ever since the Mexican trouble started several years ago, and thousands of people along the border have personal knowledge of this fact. No man in or out of Congress has been one-half as diligent as I have in this matter.

To The Voters of El Paso County:

The following appeared in a report by the El Paso Herald of a political meeting held at Orchard Park on July 13, 1916:

E. M. Whitaker, candidate for District Judge, compared the record made by J. R. Price during the fiscal year 1915, with that of the district court in Tarrant County, and declared that the 41st District Court had disposed of only a little more than one-half what the Tarrant County District Court had disposed of in the same time, and he said that if he did not do better than that if elected, he would quit.

During the period referred to by Mr. Whitaker, July 15, 1915, to July 15, 1916, 557 cases had been disposed of in the 41st District Court by final judgment or dismissal; 219 of these were tax suits.

The 41st District Court since its organization has been presided over by three different Judges, Judge J. M. Goggin, A. M. and P. R. Price. During the last fiscal year the Judge Goggin presided, July, 1907, to 1908, 252 cases were disposed of by final judgment or dismissal. Next year these were tax suits. During the last year that Judge Walthall presided, July 1912 to July 1913, 211 cases were disposed of by final judgment or dismissal. None of these were tax suits. It has not been charged by Mr. Whitaker, or any other one so far as I know, that either Judge Goggin or Judge Walthall failed to serve the people efficiently and diligently. As a matter of fact, the number of cases disposed of is of very little value in determining the efficiency of a judge.

During the period referred to by Mr. Whitaker, I was disqualified in one of the cases pending in the 41st District Court, and sitting in exchange with Judge Joseph Jones of the 42nd Judicial District. In a period of about two weeks I tried on bitterly contested murder case, several civil cases and disposed of by final judgment some 198 or 200 tax suits. These were not included in the figures of the 257 cases disposed of by me in the 41st District. So far as I know, Mr. Whitaker's certificate from the District Court of Tarrant County does not show the character of the cases disposed of by the Fort Worth Court.

WARNING TO USERS OF HAIR REMOVERS

Don't Experiment With So-Called Superfluous Hair Removers

If you use a simple toilet preparation and it proves worthless you only lose money. When you remove hair with paste, rub-on preparations and liquid imitations of DeMiracle which merely remove the hair from the surface of the skin, it is a false promise. DeMiracle is a permanent hair destroyer because it will either result in permanent disfigurement or cost you many dollars and perhaps months or possibly years to gain control of hair growth which has been stimulated by the use of such preparations.

HOROSCOPE.

Saturday, July 22, 1916. AFTER a day of sinister aspect this should be unusually fortunate, for the stars which have frowned recently are now friendly.

Women have the greatest latitude while this configuration prevails. The signs appear to predict some political move that will attract attention, even though it arouses criticism.

This should be an auspicious time for love affairs. Entertainments of all sorts should be exceedingly successful. Dealers in clothing and jewelry have a promising sign. Modistes and milliners should benefit from some edict of fashion sent out this month.

All commercial matters should prosper today. Men who solicit trade of any sort have a particularly good leading.

The giving of presents is held to be lucky while this planetary configuration continues. Gain through enterprise that is augmented by forceful personality is assured today, the seers predict.

The aspect is favorable to spiritual unfoldment and intellectual development. Under this rule there should be an access of patriotic feeling, but warning is given of a reflex of popular emotion in the form of criticism concerning government measures.

Science may increase greatly through next month when weather conditions may have a bad effect upon the mind.

Again race troubles are prognosticated. The negro will have serious cause for discontent, the seers announce.
