El Paso Lad A Hero In Wreck In North Sea

Bob Holliday's Brother, Wounded, Saves Comrade From Death.

An El Paso lad, Thomas Holliday, brother of Robert Holliday, was the hero recently of a most exciting hydro-airplane accident in the North sea.

The Herald's cable dispatches in the last week-end edition, told of the escape, in which young Holliday, after falling into the sea with two comrades, rescued a third and kept him afloat until they could be picked up by boats.

Another hydro-airplane, operating nearby, discovered the plight of the men and came to their rescue. Carried aboard, they were released, and sent for boats to get the two wounded men.

Young Holliday entered the navy from El Paso. He was working at the time he enlisted for the firm of Krakauer, Zerk & Moyer's Successors in the sporting goods department.
