JOHN P. B.—Outstanding ears can be cured at any age by a very simple operation which your doctor can perform for you.

Ted.—It is impossible to tell from your letter whether you are a boy or a girl.

M. E. R.—Sour pickles have no food value whatever; sweet pickles practically none; apples are healthy but fattening...

Trish Eyes.—I would not advise you to try any experiments to darken your hair.

Susan.—The best way to remove grease spots from brown sergeette is to rub over the places gently with a cloth dipped in gasoline.

Blue Eyes.—The methods of getting rid of a double chin would depend upon the cause of it.

Mrs. M. B.—I am not a household expert, but I think I can help you out of your present difficulty.

Picture fans would regret if they could be in my shoes for I ride up and down in the elevator every once in a while with Kittie Gordon, one of their favorites.

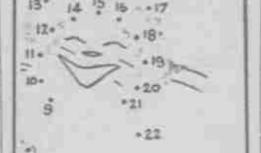

And I have learned some things they don't know—and many of them. She is red-headed and has a daughter who is grown.

When I say the picture favorite is red-headed, I don't mean she has auburn hair. Her hair is actually red; I don't believe I ever saw hair as red before.

Kitty's daughter is known to the stage as Vera Horwood, and she has no little talent of her own.

Kitty does not forget that her million dollar back made her famous in pictures, so she wears her single gown so they show so

To get room to spend millions more for temporary war offices—maybe it was all necessary in the hurry of fighting and winning the war—but it was a terrible waste and it is not necessary to continue to maintain all this army of clerks and officers here...

A sign on a real estate man's office in Washington says: "Takama park. How can you get it?"

Washington has more egotism status than any city in the world. It is often called "the city of the man on horseback."

They are beginning to grow alfalfa up here. It is one of the oldest forage plants known to the world, but when the coffee got into this part of the United States, they came from north European countries, where it was not grown, so they brought only the grass—and when the Spaniards settled God's country down around El Paso, they brought over the alfalfa from southern Europe, but the people up here have only recently brought alfalfa up here.

"Tolomeo, negro and Democrat" have ruined much of the south, said a man the other day. Now they are trying to redeem much of it from tobacco.

A Washington paper recently printed a list of congressmen Claude B. Hudepeth, of El Paso, wearing his big white hat and ranch boots and carving meat at a barbecue given in one of the parks by the Texas delegation to the other members of congress.

They say as a congressman, he makes a fine meat cutter. When chairman Will Hays, of the Republican national committee, was addressing the women of Washington, a bunch of the same sort who pick up the white house once on a time, kept asking him when DeWitt would adopt the suffrage amendment. Here is the way he answered:

Only six Democratic states have ratified the suffrage amendment and why six of them have turned it down, while not a Republican state so far has defeated it.

Commenting on the alt skirt they are reported as wearing in Paris, Arthur Brisbane says: "Exaggerating demands on the intention. The Venus Acropolis in marble, completely unadorned, looks as modest and virtuous as any flower. But if you put on her a hat with an astrich feather and a pair of stockings, she would also look like the Paris models with their beaver window."

It may be possible yet, according to Washington papers, to get around paying the government tax on suits of clothes. "But the sections" may soon be sold by merchants, it asserts, in order

14 Years Ago Today

EARTHQUAKES causing great loss of life and considerable damage to property are reported in China.

er the purpose of erecting one of the largest Portland cement factories in the United States, the El Paso Portland Cement company has been organized by a number of business men.

While going to his home in Highland park after having visited a physician to see about treatment for his wife, who had been confined between two street cars on North Oregon street Monday afternoon, J. O. Myers, which was struck by a Highland park car.

For the purpose of erecting a business structure on Texas street between Twentieth and Florence, J. Callisher purchased 50 feet on the north side of Texas street and is negotiating for the purchase of the building property.

Immigration Inspector Lmyre is on duty again at the Santa Fe bridge after a short illness.

Forty-two boys and girls were graduated from the eighth grade of the Mesa school last night, the exercises being held at the Christian church.

The explosion of a gasoline stove in the home of C. P. Dunn caused about 1200 dollars worth of property and painful burns to the three year old daughter, Kathleen.

Emma, the head of the headquarters of the 26th infantry, now at San Antonio, as had been expected, El Paso will get the headquarters of the 26th infantry, the 1st Battalion of which is now stationed here, and this battalion will probably remain in this eventuality at El Paso, the post commander, will also remain here.

Another actress we all know has been at the hotel for several days past. She is Bessie McCoy Davis, whom we knew first in "The Tamara Vanden" when she was retained El Paso at the old Texas Grand and was then Bessie McCoy.

She has a husband now or did have or someone for she uses the name Bessie McCoy Davis.

She is still as cunning as ever, although she is 18 years ago when we saw her in El Paso, and she still does funny dances and sings with a funny falsetto voice—in anyone but a talented it might be called "a whistling voice"—and altogether has lost none of her charm or good looks.

Our old friend Richard Carl, is also here. He is one of El Paso's old time acquaintances and is still "going good." He has a new musical comedy and says he will likely get to El Paso with it. He calls it "The Symphonic Twin."

I told the New York and Washington newspapers a story about Carl the night he was selling Liberty bonds in El Paso, when somebody called out the name of "Billie Shutes, the piano player." Carl is reported: "Who about the piano man? Kill the trombone player!"

That is the story in both places, New York changed it a bit, but Carl got the advertising just the same—and it didn't make him mad a bit.

One of the most beautiful collections of buildings in Washington is that on "H" street, just adjoining each other, stand the Corcoran Art gallery, the American Red Cross building, "erected in the heroic woman of the civil war," the National Historical building and the Pan-American Union building. The latter is of Alabama marble, and the Red Cross and Historical buildings are of a whiter marble. The art gallery is of gray stone.

The Pan-American building is one of the finest specimens of architecture in the world, they say, and one can readily believe it.

In the patio are growing all varieties of tropical plants, such as the banana, the coffee tree, the corn plant, orchids, palms and bamboos. Some real live parrots in rich colors, add to the beauty of the scene.

Public service commissions sometimes do funny things. One Washington street car company was paying good dividends, they say, on its capital and twenty millions of water, stock, and selling tickets at four cents each.

Another company, with a lot of suburban lines to support, was losing money at five cents, so it asked for more and the public service commission of the district raised the rate for street car rides in Washington eight cents and the company that was making money at four cents was permitted to charge eight cents, too.

The commission said it wouldn't be fair to let one charge a high rate and not let another charge a low rate. "The twenty percent of on all merchandise" stuff is becoming the rage everywhere they are advertising it.

Judging from the way some of the "new" clerks are being paid, money has been busy for several nights marking up the price before the announcement of the sale.

Washington has more egotism status than any city in the world. It is often called "the city of the man on horseback."

Trusting to Luck

In reviewing the careers of men who have made a success of life you will find that very few of them rose to their present position by "trusting to luck." To make a success of any endeavor you must have a definite goal in view and then bend all your efforts toward reaching that goal. When you have acquired the habit of saving a portion of your earnings regularly you may be reasonably sure that you are not "trusting to luck." One means which will help greatly to bring your plans to a successful conclusion is a savings account in "Everybody's Bank."
