A STRONG CANDIDATE.

It is a long time until the general election, but already a number of worthy gentlemen are being groomed for the gubernatorial race in the republican primaries next September. The majority of the potential candidates at the present time are residents of eastern Washington. Two of them hail from Pierce county, one from Grays Harbor county, one from this county and two from King. Among these are Geo. A. Lee, of Seattle, who has been frequently mentioned as one of the original members of the industrial insurance commission and ably assisted in organizing that department. He was later appointed chairman of the public service commission. In both of these important positions he displayed exceptional ability and executive ability. He is a former legislative officer. He made a splendid record of efficient and conscientious service on both of these boards and the experience gained for him unusual insight into the affairs of the state government. Mr. Lee has been engaged in the practice of law in Seattle since quitting the office of law in Washington. He is recognized as one of the leading members of the bar in King county. He is a former engaging personality and with rare intellectual attainments. Although he is not a member of the bar in this county, he is eventually equipped for the responsibilities of governor, and if nominated, he will make a serious competitor for the nomination. And once elected his election would be a foregone conclusion.

OVERLOOKED THE POINT.

The comments indulged in by the Gazette on the appointment by Governor Lister of Frederick Bausman to Governor Lister's bench gained for this paper the distinction of being mentioned in the Yakima Daily Republic and in the daily of the state of Washington. Assuming that the remarks of this paper were inspired by disapproval of the appointment and an implacable enmity against the governor, no matter what he does, the public delivered itself of the following seven remarks: "The esteemed Oroville Gazette disapproves of the appointment of Mr. Bausman to succeed the late Justice Crow on the ground that the newly chosen judge is a vigorous and effective supporter of the appointment and further, because the appointment may possibly gain for the governor the friendship and support of the Seattle Times for which Bausman has been the attorney for years. The Gazette wouldn't be pleased with anything the good lawyer to fill the seat of the supreme bench—and we understand that he did in this case it was necessary for him to pick a gentleman who had important clients. We see no reason why he should not have chosen one of his own people as possible; but if he had done so it is quite likely the Gazette would have called him an unprincipled politician of a designing politician. The governor hasn't much chance to stand well with editors who will damn him no matter what he does. The general opinion is that Bausman is a fine lawyer and will make a good judge. That all the people of the state care about in connection with his appointment." On you said, ironical cynic, fate! The joyous tingle of tickled vanity aroused by recognition from the brilliant Yakima daily flames into indignation on reading this cruelly unfortunate misinterpretation of the Gazette editorial. It is all too evident that the Gazette is not regularly or carefully read in the sanctum of the Republic and that the remarks which gave birth to the foregoing paragraph were skinned with unseeing and heedless eyes. The Gazette did not disapprove of the appointment of Mr. Bausman. On the contrary this paper gave distinct expression to its belief that Mr. Bausman will make a creditable jurist on the supreme court. It is doubtless true that "the general opinion is that Bausman is a fine lawyer and will make a good judge." But that is all the people of this state care about in connection with his appointment is not such a safe bet. Whenever the governor appoints a man to an office of any kind, the people want to know whether the appointment was made as a reward for merit or for the purpose of strengthening a personal organization for political advantage.

The Republic knows, as well as the Gazette, that Governor Lister has not practiced non-partisanship with anything like the zeal with which he has preached that doctrine, and the assumption is fully warranted by the record that he prescribes effect and appoints for profit. This course appeals to the Gazette as lacking certain elements of sincerity and straightforwardness and that alone gave rise to its animadversions on the appointment of Mr. Bausman.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Minutes of the regular meeting of the town council of Oroville, Wash., Nov. 1, 1915.
Present: Mayor Prentice, Councilmen Beale, Friis, Smith and Peterson.
The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.
The report of the town treasurer was read and ordered filed.

The high school football boys tangle up with Omak, on the Omak grounds Saturday. It will be a game worth while, as

If you cut your finger what do you do?
Take careful care of it.

If your tooth aches what do you do?
See a dentist.

If some one steps on your corn, what do you do?
Cuss and try to remove it.

If your hair comes out what do you do?
Run for a restorer.

If you see a wrinkle, what do you do?
Work day and night to eradicate and smooth it out.

If you have a headache, what do you do?
Wear it out if possible, when you should see McMahan.

If your eyes trouble you, what do you do?
Pass them up when you should see McMahan, he will tell you what to do.

McMAHAN,

Optometrist.

The local team is anxious to get even for the drubbing administered by Omak a few weeks ago. The teams are evenly matched and whichever wins will have to make a hard fight for it.

Mrs. J. E. Longacre, of Loomis, spent a portion of last week visiting Mrs. Johnson. She was accompanied by her young son Charles.

Mrs. A. J. Reynolds upon whom a minor operation was performed a short time ago has so far recovered as to be able to leave the hospital.

Frank M. Dallam, Jr., was called to Spokane, Monday, on business. He expected when he left to return to Oroville in a short time.
