

HERE'S THE CITY OF MANAGUA, PRESIDENT ZELAYA'S CAPITAL

A view of Managua, the capital of Nicaragua. Uncle Sam will probably run a protectorate here. Managua is located on a beautiful lake, and is a couple of days' march from Corinto, the country's principal seaport on the Pacific ocean.

Diabolical Outrage Is Perpetrated by T.R. & P.

When I entered the door the telephone was ringing. "There were many women on the car and they had to stay there all night. There was little to eat or drink. There were no provisions for the comfort of these women. Their sufferings were terrible. It is the worst outrage I ever heard of being perpetrated in a civilized community."

Working Girls Suffer. This description of Dr. Goldsmith is the story told by practically all of the hundreds who were marooned along the line. Some were hurrying home to sick and helpless wives or children or parents. Others had stock to feed that went all night neglected. There were scores of tired girls who had worked all day in the city in laundries and shops held there with no conveniences for them and no means of ministering to their sufferings.

The men in the parties were simply numb with cold and rage. Nothing but a miracle prevented an outbreak that might have wrecked the whole plant of the company. This morning cars began running out as far as Midway and the cameras came back to town, while people living beyond were compelled to walk. Several men tramped all the way from Spanaway.

In the marooned crowd was Attorney J. F. Fitch and Attorney Lorenzo Dow, with Attorney Halliwell of Puyallup. All are busy today framing damage suits.

It is believed that practically every one of the hundreds who were held up by the company will sue for damages.

In addition to that the city council will be asked to forfeit the franchise of the company on the line to Fern Hill. The county commissioners will be asked to forfeit the franchise outside the city for failure to operate to Puyallup and Spanaway.

The United States mail was in the Spanaway car and it was held there all night and not delivered.

FIND GREAT FLOW OF OIL

(By United Press Leased Wire.) BOISE, Idaho, Dec. 12.—Announcement was made today by D. M. Hunt, contractor in charge of the Eastern Oil and Gas company's great oil lake in Eastern Oregon, that the sinking of a well resulted in finding a 40-barrel flow at a depth of 800 feet.

DAUGHTER OF WEALTHY BREWER KIDNAPED

ALMA KELLNER.

Seven-year-old child who mysteriously disappeared from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. F. Kellner, Louisville, Ky., on December 8, and is believed to have been kidnaped.

Her father is a wealthy brewer. The Louisville police sent out the following description: On leaving home little Alma wore a red felt hat with a wide brim, and a black and white checked coat, which fell even with her dress at the knees. She also wore black shoes and stockings. She is rather large for her age, has a bright, expressive intelligent face, grayish-blue eyes, and dark brown hair. She is also described as having a short stubby nose, and one of her upper teeth is missing. Her other teeth are short and irregular.

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS.

It's a fact—any man will tell you so—that women admire men with chin whiskers. This may or may not be the reason that millions of 'em—meaning the women—read the Ladies' Home Journal that Mr. Curtis publishes in Philadelphia.

He is constantly in the public eye as the director of one of the largest and most successful publishing houses in the world. This great business is the logical outgrowth of something that Mr. Curtis always has had. That is an idea. He followed out this idea in the making of his publications, and he has always stuck to it. In Philadelphia where they know him best they say Mr. Curtis is entitled to all the millions he has made.

But if you'd ask him today which he'd rather have, a new dollar or a new subscriber, he'd answer right quick—as Sam Blythe, one of his writers would say, "give me the subscriber every time."

These Men Invest $40,000 in Building, Expend Handsome Sum in Equipping Plant and Hire Large Force to Make Clothes For Many People --- Up-to-Date Good Suit Factory

In the location of the Fashion Craft Tailoring shop in this city, the investment of some $40,000 in Tacoma real estate, the city has gained another establishment whose acquisition will not only reflect credit on the city, but shows that the men behind it feel confident of the future Tacoma offers business openings of the first water, and are willing to back their belief with real money.

C. W. Peterson, Manager.

"Fashion Craft Tailors," reads the sign on the window front, and behind this sign stand three men whose ability and experience fit them to ably support the demand the sign breeds. H. O. Haugen heads the concern as president, lately an arrival from the East, and well fitted by past successful business experience to finance the venture along broad and firm lines. C. W. Peterson is the active manager, holding a position that demands wide experience in this special line, and ability to bend in conformity with the ever changing demands and advances of the tailoring craft. This Mr. Peterson possesses in abundance, having served many years in the school of practical application. N. J. Sweeney is the cutter and designer, and, with a back-turn out garments at popular prices because they know that with the volume of business, consequent upon faithful workmanship, they will be able to do so, whereas by a smaller trade they would not. They offer goods direct from the factory to the wearer, with no wasteful profits that swell the final price of purchase. Alty, Roomy Workshop.

The working room is not a sweat shop, for the 25 coat, vest and pant makers occupy a large room well ventilated and lighted, and sanitary in all respects. As soon as the necessary preparations can be made, their goods will bear the union label. The workshop is fitted with the very latest of appliances. Instead of the tread machines for sewing, the machines in this shop are run by electric motors, the increased speed and more even sewing resulting in the favor of the worth of the garment.

N. J. Sweeney, cutter and designer, and the man on whom the successful issue of the garment depends, has the following to say: "A good coat is known by the shape it keeps. If we never made clothes for you, now is a good time to begin. Anyone can buy canvas, oil, paint and make a picture, but what kind of a picture would it be unless the right kind of a man paints it? My years of experience and that of Mr. Haugen and Mr. Peterson have combined to make this shop the place where the right kind of brains can turn out the right kind of a suit."

Owners of Location. The Fashion Craft tailors have located here, not with the intention of trying their luck and moving on, in the event of failure, but with the firm intention to cast in their lot with the rapidly advancing city, and as an earnest have invested $40,000 in the building they now occupy at 708 Pacific avenue. They are absolutely confident that they can turn out goods that nowhere can be beat, and with this knowledge are fearless in their act of investment and location which stamps them as a firm who are in all respects a "home establishment."

The Fashion Craft tailors are vendors of popular priced goods, but this does not mean that they handle cheap goods at cheap prices. It means that they carry only the finest line of imported and domestic woolsens, and that they can and will deliver these goods, made up into clothes by the best workmanship possible at a price that is within reason.
