"MAN AT BEN LOMONT," REPEATEDLY REFUSING TO BE PHOTOGRAPHED BOXING, PERMITS TIMES PHOTOGRAPHER TO HELP HIMSELF DURING FIRST OPEN-AIR WORKOUT WITH BOB ARMSTRONG

SNAPPED IN ACTION

BY M. C. LARKIN Staff Photographer. BEN LOMONT, Cal., June 6.—Maybe some people think it's like falling off a log to photograph Jim Jeffries. Those people never chased Jim with a camera. With orders to get some "real fighting pictures," I tried to get the "big fellow" to pose for me just before he and big Bob Armstrong started on their daily biffing session in the "gym." But he wouldn't stand for the posing business. He would, however, trot out into the broiling sun, for his first open-air workout with the gloves since he opened his training camp. "Go ahead and snap us on the run if you want to. I haven't got time to stand still," he said as they shook hands. I got him on the run, all right.

He was running after Armstrong and Bob was doing his best to shy away from hooks and swings. The first picture, on the left, shows Armstrong blocking a left that had been started for his jaw. Immediately after I snapped, Bob drove his left for Jeff's unproected jaw, but it didn't land; instead, Jim's right hand blocked the blow. The two went to a clinch for a second or so, and just as I was ready for another shot, Jeffries shoved Armstrong back and disengaged his left hand from Bob's glove. I saw the famous left starting for Armstrong's stomach and the second picture shows what the camera caught—Jeffries ducking Armstrong's swing and planting his left on big Bob's chicken coop. The third picture illustrates a little close work, with Jeffries up on his toes stopping a left with his wishbone and Armstrong blocking a left hook that had been started for his jaw. There's one thing that makes you warm up to a camera—it doesn't lie. When it comes to boosting, the camera is a bun press agent, unless the booster wants cold facts. For this reason the pictures tell more plainly than words the shape Jeffries is in now. You don't notice any stomach in them, that's dead sure, and the lens bring out the back and shoulder muscles where Jeff gets his punching power, like a wart on a man's nose.

HIT BY BALL; MAY DIE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Catcher Jesse Orendorff of the Los Angeles Coast league ball team was hit under the ear by a pitched ball from the hands of Twirler Lively of the Oakland club yesterday morning while at bat and was taken to the hospital unconscious. He regained consciousness but he is not out of danger from concussion of the brain.

WILL FIGHT NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

Jack Label, who recently whipped Roscoe Taylor at Portland, is coming to Tacoma to fight Louie Long. They will fight 10 rounds here Monday night, June 13. Both are said to be fast youngsters.

WATCHING THE PONIES

This was at the race track. The young man of wealth had invested in a racing stable. Some of his horses were very pretty, and the rest of them couldn't run, either. He was watching a race with the Only Girl. A cloud of dust marked the bunch coming on the other side of the track. She: Why, I can't tell your horse from the rest. He: Wait till they're in the home stretch—then mine will be going so slowly that you can't help but recognize it.

Tigers Drop Two More Games and Lose the Series

NORTHWESTERN LEAGUE. Standing of the Teams. Won Lost Pct. Vancouver 24 19 .558 Tacoma 22 22 .500 Spokane 22 22 .500 Seattle 19 24 .442

After Rockenfield let that easy grounder slide between his legs and go to the fence Saturday, scoring four men for Vancouver, that game was gone but the Tigers hoped to do better yesterday at Seattle.

It was no use, however. Luck was against them. Vancouver kept leading out until the sixth inning and then they settled it. Annis fielded a couple of bunts too slow and then a pass filled the bases and Jensen rapped one out and cleared the bases.

Tacoma put up a great game in the field. Double plays were coming with great regularity. Tacoma got three doubles and Vancouver two, and Jansing had a chance for a triple if it had been needed to close out the side. The Tigers, however, could not

They got away with Seattle and Spokane in former matches. The score yesterday was: Tacoma, 770; Los Angeles, 744.

DIAMOND GLINTS

Cleveland sport writers say Lajole's great hitting isn't getting the Naps any runs, and then they pull the record which shows Larry's hits haven't been driving many runners across the registering pan.

THIS IS THE CAGE THAT HELPS BATTLING EYES

"MATTY" M'INTYRE PRACTICING BEFORE TIGERS' BATTLING CAGE. Batting cages first introduced in big league circles by Hughie Jennings are becoming more popular. Other managers have learned to their sorrow that the Tigers almost always clout the ball hard and timely, and Jennings has said the batting cage was, in his opinion, the cause of the splendid hitting of the members of his team. As will be seen in the accompanying picture, the cage is simply a wire network on wheels, which can be set up in any part of the field. No catcher is needed, and in this Jennings says the cage increases its value, as it does away with the danger of a catcher being injured in practice. Then every man on the team can take his turn at the bat and the pitchers can use all the speed and curves they want, as no matter how wild a pitcher may be, it is not probable he would fall to land his ball in a net offering as large a target as the closed end of the cage. It also does away with the danger of a foul tip getting away and hitting someone in the stands. Jim McGuire has ordered one of the cages for his Naps, and college players have been using them for years. For teams in need of batting practice the cages appear to be just what is needed. ENGLISH GOLFERS COMING WHEN AMERICA'S NEW COURSE OPENS

J. H. TAYLOR. J. H. Taylor and Jas Braid, two of the best golfers in England, are coming to this country in the fall to participate in the formal opening of the national golfing course on Long Island. The two Britons are past masters of the golfing game and their coming is awaited with considerable interest by the American lovers of the old Scottish game who are anxious to see the Englishmen in action. The new course on Long Island is being prepared under the supervision of the foremost experts in this country, and when completed will be, it is claimed, by far the finest on this side of the big water. It is the intention of the promoters to have all national championships played on the new course in the future.
