

CIRCUS IS TOMORROW

Tomorrow will be circus day in Tacoma.

The railroads are preparing to handle an immense influx of visitors and trolley cards and spring wagons are already in operation. The first section of Barnum and Bailey's mile-long train is expected to arrive soon after midnight. It will bring the hotel and kitchen equipment.

The second section will bring the menagerie and the new parade equipment. It is expected by 1 o'clock in the morning. The other three sections will follow as closely as possible. By daylight the city of tents with its population of 1,280 people, 700 horses and 1,200 wild animals will be a living and breathing reality. It will spread out over fourteen acres of ground.

The first event of interest will be the parade. It will leave the show grounds at 10 o'clock and move through the principle business streets.

The afternoon performance will begin at 2 o'clock. The night show will begin at 8 o'clock. The doors will open an hour earlier to give people an opportunity of looking through the zoo.

Pests of the Good Old Summer Time—The Motor Cycle Pest

As Imagined, Pictured and Described by the Artist Staff of the Times.

This is an impressionistic picture, showing the motorcycle nuisance going at 90 miles an hour. Is he glad? He is. He can be seen almost any day in crowded streets, and if he doesn't get you it's because you climbed a telegraph pole.

Every self-respecting motorcycle is equipped with a muffler, but the maniac brand of rider prefers to tear through traffic with the exhaust wide open—frightening horses and racking the pedestrians' nerves. The reason that he isn't in a padded cell is that the silence of it would be fatal to him.

This party's cell number is 3333. But don't run, girls; he's tied. He's so loose in his attic that he rattles when he bumps over the car tracks. His catch-words have made a hit even with the undertaker. In fact, everybody "falls" for him. Clang! Clang! Here comes the ambulance.

Here he is without his disguise. But when he mounts his funny-looking elder mill contraption and streaks down the highway, he has the goggles pulled down so you can't see his face. Now that you have seen it, however, you don't care whether you ever see it again. Once is enough, what?

This fellow with the aeroplane ears and the tense, drawn face gets busiest in the good old summer time, because then the crowds are thickest. When the crowd begins to scatter suddenly, he knows he has arrived. The amusing feature about him is that he tries to make people think he motorcycles for pleasure. So does a squirrel spin in its cage for pleasure.

MAKE THEM BURN OIL

Fire Warden F. Thorpe says the coming legislature will be asked to pass a law requiring all railway engines to be equipped with oil burners in this state. No other plan seems to be adequate to prevent forest fires, one good fire causing more loss than it would cost to equip the whole railway system of the state with oil burning engines.

Joe Well, Will Get Something

The city commission has decided to pay up the bills for the completion of the Park avenue sewer and for the work in district 149, and if there is any money left hand it over to Joe Wells, the original contractor. Wells did not finish the jobs and the work was sublet. He will have a couple of thousand dollars coming when everything is settled.

Eastern Society Girl Goes West For Long Horseback Ride

(Special Correspondence.) WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—A Washington society girl expects to take from Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, also a social favorite of the national capital, the long distance equestrian record for women.

The new contender for the championship is Miss Marion Oliver, the youngest daughter of the acting secretary of war, and an ardent outdoor enthusiast. The clerks in the war department are waging that she will easily beat Mrs. Wadsworth's record of 212 miles in 15 hours.

Miss Oliver will test her ability as a horsewoman while on an overland trip on horseback through New Mexico with her father, who will inspect the Moqui and Navajo Indian reservations.

MORTALITY NOTES

Orville Holding Jacobson, 1 year 6 months old, died yesterday at the family residence, 2315 1/2 South G street. The body was removed to the C. O. Lynn undertaking parlors.

THEATER

AT THE GRAND.

An evenly balanced bill is offered at the Grand this week. It opens with a musical act by Bell and Richards, who bring in a great deal of electrical effects and many changes of costume. Mary Ann Brown follows with character songs, and includes in her offering impersonation of Vesta Victoria, George M. Cohan and other leading stage luminaries. The Free Setters Four is a quartet of male singers, who own good voices and use them to good effect, accompanied by more or less comedy acting. Violet Aleen and company have a good sketch in "Keeping an Appointment," and receive a good hand. James McCormack and Eleanor Irving put up a breezy line of talk in "Firtology" that meets a warm reception. The Fasio Trio conclude the performance with an exhibition of equilibrium that is one of the best of its kind ever seen here.

AT THE PANTAGES.

"Bob" Fitzsimmons and his wife have the top-notch position on the Pantages bill this week. Bob, as he himself admits, is not much of an actor, but his wife, according to him, is the best singer in the world, and, indeed, she is an artist of more than vaudeville stature. After a bag-punching exhibition, which he ends by sending the bag with one powerful blow into the audience, "Fitz" tells of the recent Reno fight, summing it up in the general sentiment that the less said the better. The Yalto Duo open the bill with clever dancing, followed by "Lezah" or "Just an American Girl," as described on the program. "Lezah" would be Hazel if transposed, but since notwithstanding a clear soprano voice, "Lezah" turns out to be a man, the transposition is excusable. "The Taming of Eleanor" is a comedy sketch with some humor, presented by Ewen and Prince. The Elliott Brothers make a decided hit in a comedy musical turn.

SHIPPING NEWS

TIDES TOMORROW	Height.
8:31 a. m.	2.7 feet
4:48 p. m.	14.3 feet
9:12 p. m.	9.8 feet

Tacoma led Seattle by $362,060 in the shipping business for the month of July, according to the report of Customs Collector James Harper. The total of Tacoma's importing during that month is valued at $1,470,637.

The steamer Charles Nelson arrived in port yesterday with 300 tons of asphalt and other general cargo. She will load lumber at Sound ports for San Francisco.

Much anxiety is felt in shipping circles over the fact that the schooner Albert, which left San Pedro 41 days ago, has not been reported passing the strait yet.

After unloading 8000 sacks of cement, the Stanley Dollar, which arrived in port yesterday from San Francisco, loaded a cargo for Alaska, shifted to Seattle for the rest of her load.

The new steamer Verona of the Vashon Navigation company's fleet, steamed over from Quartermaster Harbor yesterday. She is now at the Commercial dock, and will undergo government inspection tomorrow. Captain Wiman says the new steamer will be ready for operation on Saturday, in time for the Magnolia carnival.

King County Candidates All Take the Pledge

SEATTLE, Aug. 16.—All of the republican members from King county in the next legislature will go there under pledge to vote for the party choice for United States senator. This circumstance virtually eliminates all King county senatorial candidates in case Poin-dexter is the popular choice, since the representatives of the special interests here could not successfully appeal in the legislature for the votes of unpledged outsiders for a candidate who was not receiving the vote of any of the representatives from his own county. King county this year elects eight senators and seventeen representatives and every candidate entered in every district has taken the pledge except one, Mont J. Gay, who has no hope of election. A few, two or three, of these, the republican nominees, may be defeated by democrats, but if so it will be by democrats of such character as could not be prevailed upon to become parties to the plan of defeating the popular choice for senator.

In Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Never on any stage was there witnessed a more thrilling sight than that which was watched by several thousand people standing along the shores of Hell Gate in East River park Sunday afternoon.

Stanislaus Remertuk, athlete and a strong swimmer, had made a bet that he could swim from Ninety-eighth to Mill rock, a dangerous point in the Hell Gate rapids. He would not let a row-boat accompany him, saying it would be swamped in the whirlpools.

Remertuk reached the rock and started back to shore. But the struggle had tired him, and he began to whirl with the treacherous currents. It was soon seen that he was making no headway. David Derr, member of the Hell Gate volunteer life-saving crew, had been lingering near shore in a rowboat. He put out into the rapids.

The swimmers had realized he was battling for life, and a wonderful battle he made. Sometimes he dived through the eddies, sometimes he tried to swim clear of them. Whenever he got into a quiet stretch of water he floated for half a minute, and gained strength for his next struggle. He saw the boat coming and used all his energy to keep afloat until it should reach him.

Derr, in the boat, had almost as perilous a battle as the swimmers. Finally the boat reached

YOU NEED NOT TALK IF YOU DON'T WISH TO

By Cynthia Grey. "I am miserable," wrote a girl of sixteen. "I don't enjoy company a bit because I can't think of anything to say, while other people are such good conversationalists. Oh, if I could only say clever things!"

This is not the first time I have heard this cry of anguish. Thousands of people are fretting and sorrowing because they "can't talk in company."

And yet it is one of the most groundless of worries. Let me say to all people who are uncomfortable because they are not good conversationalists:

First rid yourself of the notion that you MUST keep up a conversation when you are with some one.

Do not say anything at all until some thought comes to your mind that you REALLY WISH to tell the other person; until it would be a hardship on yourself to retain it.

If you but knew, dear girl, that we suffer rather from too much conversation, than too little!

At these times when you think you ought to talk, you are with some other person, are you not? If he, like you, has nothing to say, then he would have as much reason to be embarrassed as you, wouldn't he? (Which, as I said before, is no reason at all.) He cannot expect you to do something he does not, and you cannot expect him to do something you do not. So why discomfort yourself? Enjoy the sweet silence which is evidently the proper thing, as there is nothing you wish to impart to each other.

But if the other person is a talker, the situation is even more simple. Talkers don't like to meet talkers; they like to meet listeners. So just look straight at your companion and take it all in. If you let go of yourself, if you relax, if you drop your strained anxiety to please, you will naturally grow interested in what our companion is saying.
