Snap and Ginger Put the Tigers One Ahead

NORTHWESTERN LEAGUE.

Standing of the Teams.

Seattle	47	85	.362

If Mr. Weed had been able to convince Umpire Hall that he did not know what he was talking about yesterday afternoon when he called Lebrand out at the plate it might have been different and the fans would not have been able to tell how we walloped Seattle, but while Weed's arguments were placed with due emphasis and with evident determination Hall could not see it his way, hence Tacoma won.

For five innings Hall was a complete puzzle to the Seattle batters. Then Lebrand stepped into the three bagger with no one out. But that did not bother Hall. He fanned Zackert and when Seaton hit a grounder to Mott it was shot back to Blankenship in plenty of time. Blank went out to meet Lebrand and they rolled on the ground together. When they got through Blankenship had just the ball. But Hall said the Turk was a goner anyway, which much displeased Mr. Weed and he went out to chat with the ump.

Had that run counted it might have changed the whole game.

As it didn't the Tigers braced right up and although Weed got on third in the next inning with another three-bagger, he, too, was nipped at the pan by McFadden and then they gave it up.

In the seventh Bassey opened with a hit. Coleman made a beautiful sacrifice and then when Blankenship sent one to Akin he juggled it and then threw wild and Bassey came home. That was all there was to put on the score board all day.

Hall pitched a great game and Zackert also was very good, core; Batteries: Hall and Blankenship; Zackert and Lebrand.

SPOKANE MAKES IT 3 TO 0

SPOKANE, Sept. 1.—Jess Baker held the Vancouver boys to two hits yesterday and had no trouble in putting the whitewash on the Beavers. Erickson held Spokane to but five hits. Score: R H E

NO DECISION IN BURNS-OWEN FIGHT

(By United Press Leased Wire.) SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Whether Owen Moran, the little English fighter, scored a victory over Frankie Burns in their 10-round go at Dreamland last night is a matter of discussion in sporting circles today.

For the first time in ring history of San Francisco a no-decision bout was staged. Referee Dan Selig, after the fight, confided to the newspaper men that if he had given a decision he would have awarded the match to Moran.

Those who saw the contest agreed that it was a clever exhibition.

GIRL SHOT LION

CHICO, Cal., Sept. 1.—While out stalking deer, Miss Mamie Avilla encountered a huge mountain lion, which attacked her. The girl fired one shot at the beast, inflicting a mortal wound. She brought the big carcass home triumphantly today.

FLEW FROM PARIS TO LONDON

THE ROMANCE OF A COMMON WORD BIGOT

BECAUSE a viking refused to kiss the foot of a king, we have a word with which we describe a person of a type just the opposite of that of the frank and turbulent Norseman.

This particular viking's name was Rollo. Of his early history little definite is known. We do know, however, that he conquered northern France, and that in 912 he was "granted" (according to the French history) possession of Rouen and adjacent territory by Charles the Simple, then king of France. Thus Rollo became the first duke of Normandy.

It seems that in return for the cession of territory (already conquered) Charles the Simple asked Rollo to kiss his foot. Imagine how shocked Charles must have been when Rollo thundered: "NE SE BIGOT!" (Not so, by God!)

And imagine the further shock he received when the soldier whom Rollo ordered to kiss the royal foot in his stead, lifted the foot to his lips, instead of bowing to the foot, thus upsetting the royal person and putting the whole Norman force in an uproar of laughter.

The story has it that because of this incident the court nicknamed Rollo "Bigot."

Usage has reversed the meaning of the word, and it is now applied to persons more like Charles than like the bluff viking Rollo. The modern usage of the word came in about the fifteenth century.

There are other stories about the birth of the word "bigot," but this one is the most interesting.

In Little Old New York

By Norman. NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Floundering about on the East Side like a water-logged bark in a stormy sea is a human derelict known to street arabs as "Andy." "Andy" is commonly known as a down-and-out old sailor who does odd jobs about dirty tenements in an effort to keep body and soul together. Sometimes "Andy" sleeps in hallways; sometimes he finds a bench in a park, away from the eyes of sparrow cops.

But "Andy" is not only a sailor—he is a veteran of the American navy. He is neither a hobo nor an object of charity. Despite his seventy years he stands straight as a soldier, and when he talks he looks one squarely in the face. And when he's reproached, or scolded, or blamed, he has a fighting way of looking a person straight in the eye, as much as to say, "Well, what you going to do about it?" If any citizen of the East Side is looking for a fight, he will find it in "Andy."

"Andy" knew Admiral Dewey when the hero of Manila bay was a commodore. It was "Andy," as quartermaster of the Olympia, who had charge of the steering of the famous craft when it crashed into Manila bay to sink the Spanish fleet. "Andy" left the Olympia when it was put out of commission, and soon thereafter the quartermaster lost his commission, too.

"Andy's" story is the story of a hero too late. He was discharged—well, he lost his commission because he hit a superior officer. "Andy" was accused of intoxication. The old sailor now lives without a pension. He was a hero too late when he sailed so proudly into Manila bay, for there's no pension for Dewey's heroes.

VACATION BEGINS FOR TWO TIGERS

Fred Armis, the Tiger south-paw, who tore the tendons in his arm three weeks ago tried to warm up yesterday but found it was no use. Manager Blankenship stopped him and he was finally paid off for the season and sent home to rest all winter. Unless he gets a good rest and allows the arm to get strong he will never be able to pitch again.

Dusty Miller was also let go yesterday as the team has too many outfielders on the payroll with not enough income.
