TWO OUTRAGES MUST BE STOPPED

After Yuan's Head

(By United Press Leased Wire.) PEKIN, Nov. 6.—Evidence of a desire to lay on Yuan Shi Kai sufficient responsibility for the revolt to enable them to take his head developed here today in the national senate. An inquiry was begun into a charge that Yuan was responsible for the massacre by imperial troops at Hankow. It is believed that if it is found his orders caused the slaughter Yuan will be brought back to Peking and executed.

Offers have come from people in various financial circumstances, old and young, residents in and out of town. A thorough investigation will be made and Willie's desires considered before a decision is made.

BRIDGE AND PIPE DEAL BOTH BAD

Nothing was done on the Perkins bridge deal this morning. The city attorney will prepare the legislation to narrow the street, for Perkins and Seymour, Woods and Weeks have pledged faith that they will go through with the deal. It will likely come up Wednesday.

When Big Business falls out, the people have a chance to come into their rights.
There is just one thing for the people in the big fight that has started between Everett Griggs and Sam Perkins. Each may help to balk the other and the people will win both ways.

Otherwise they might just as well go up to the Union club and settle it at draw poker, or with brickbats in the alley behind.
Griggs says that Perkins' bluffing Seymour and two commissioners into making a funnel-shaped opening to the 11th street bridge in order to help himself is an outrage.

The major is right. Seymour and the two commissioners will certainly hear from the people on that.
And Perkins hollers that the Griggs company must not put knotty staves into the city pipe line.

And Perkins is right. That pipe line is too important to be trifled with. If staves with knots in them are no good, Tacoma doesn't want them. If they are, though selling for less in the open market, Tacoma must go get the benefit of it.

So go to it, Major. Go to it, Sam. The people have made a pretty shrewd guess as to your motives, but if you both can each can skin the other,
"Sic, em!"

ITALY WANTS TO BACK DOWN

(By United Press Leased Wire.) NICE, France, Nov. 6.—Advices from Rome today indicate that Italy would be glad to drop Tripoli if she could leave there with her honor unscathed. It is feared by many here that if the real facts concerning Tripoli became known to Italy that not only the cabinet but the throne itself would be endangered.
Just what is actually occurring in Tripoli is not known. But latest accounts from there state that a fierce artillery engagement is in progress inside the city, that the Turks and Arabs have surrounded the Italians on every side and are butchering them in revenge for the massacres charged to the Italian troops when they occupied Tripoli.

Boys Make a Business of Stealing

Detectives Geary and Milone Saturday night routed out a clever combine of young boys who have been making a practice of stealing bicycles and then altering them so that they could not be identified. The boys would sell the wheels to different merchants and divide the proceeds. They had a shop in the basement of one boy's home on East E street. The cases were brought before Probation Officer Read.

MADERO INAUGURATED PRESIDENT OF MEXICO

(By United Press Leased Wire.) MEXICO CITY, Nov. 6.—Lavish pomp and gaudy display veneered the internal dissensions of a torn and disrupted country today when Francisco I Madero was inaugurated president of Mexico with blare of brass and blare of trumpets. Thousands lined the streets to watch the presidential carriage pass.
No president of any country the size of Mexico has ever ascended to the seat of power in the face of greater opposition. With the alleged conspirators in three different plots against his person in prison; with General Bernardo Reyes, leader of an unsuccessful attempt to unseat him, exiled to San Antonio, awaiting a propitious moment to let loose the dogs of civil war afresh; with Guatemala threatening war, and with the national treasury bankrupt, Madero drove smiling through the gaily decorated streets, surrounded by thousands of troops, beneath triumphal arches to the chamber of deputies, where the inaugural ceremony took place at noon. Seated in the carriage with the president were his brother, Gustavo Madero, and several members of his cabinet.

The inaugural address was delivered to 20,000 people who packed the square in front of the chamber and wildly cheered Madero's promises of peace and quiet for three months at least.

Slowly the chief of the lower house of congress pronounced the oath, and, in a voice scarcely above a whisper Madero replied: "I promise."
"Thus may you do," came the reply from the head of the deputies, "and the nation will reward you; but if you fail, she will ask of you an accounting."

How I Earned My First Dollar

Being One of a Series of Little Histories of How Different Successful Tacoma Men Got Their Start in Life.

DR. BALABANOFF EARNED A DOLLAR EVERY 3 MONTHS.

There's a stirring story of hardships overcome in the life of Dr. C. P. Balabanoff, a native of Bulgaria, and how he earned his first dollar.
"I can remember my first dollar very well," he said. "In our country every boy is taught a trade. When I was past 6 years of age I went to work as an apprentice in a tailor shop.
"For the first year and a half I didn't receive anything, but for the next year's service I received $4. I remember well that first dollar. My mother, who was a widow, smiled as I counted it out to her, and as my reward I got some new clothes."

The next year the doctor made $8, which he used to put him through six months of school. Then he went to work for his room and board and continued school for two years more; then met some missionaries, who told him about America.
So young Balabanoff worked his way across the water and landed in New York city in 1876 without friends or money.
"I was the second Bulgarian to enter America," he continued, "so it was pretty hard, not knowing the language. I got a job as upholsterer in a New York furniture store at 10 cents a day, and the doctor smiled. "I knocked about, ate at the Bowery soup house, until at last I fortunately met the only other Bulgarian in this country. He helped me get a place at Clinton, N. Y., where I worked for my living and went to school.
The doctor graduated from Hamilton college and the University medical college at New York city. After two years in Vienna he came to Tacoma to live, 21 years ago.
Tomorrow Congressman Warburton will tell about his first dollar.

Father Who Killed Babe Will Plead Insanity

(By United Press Leased Wire.) SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Nov. 6.—"Da may hanga me for da murder of my leetla Dominick, but da boy, I betcha heem understanda just how his dadda feel about dis theeng."
This is the continual wail today of John Rech, Italian gardener, as he sits in his cell, awaiting trial for the alleged murder of his two-days-old son. His wife, who is charged with giving consent to the murder, sits on her cot in an adjoining cell and maintains that the high cost of living has unbalanced her husband's mind.
Insanity, it was learned today, will be the plea of the defense when the case comes to trial.

Bannockburn Goes Ashore

(By United Press Leased Wire.) SEATTLE, Nov. 6.—While attempting to cross a narrow passage in Eagle Harbor at 7 o'clock this morning, the British freighter Bannockburn went on a shoal near Port Blakely with a heavy cargo of lumber. She grounded in a dense fog and all efforts to get back into deep water failed.
The Bannockburn had just completed her cargo of lumber at Port Blakely. She was formerly the

PEKIN TAKEN

(By United Press Leased Wire.) VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 6.—According to a cable to a local Chinese daily paper, the rebels captured Peking yesterday after twelve hours' fighting.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 6.—Permanent stability for the new Chinese provisional government proposed by Li Yuan Heng, recently proclaimed president of the Han republic, are indicated today with the announcement that Wu Tingfang, former minister to the United States, has accepted the post of foreign secretary under the new regime.

Details of the peace terms proposed by Li Yuan Heng have reached here. The four most important articles are:
First—The deposition of the emperor and his degradation to the rank of a commoner.
Second—That the government of the country be republican in form and that it be known as the republic of Han.
Third—That a premier be elected from within the ranks of the revolutionists.
Fourth—That a president of the republic be chosen by public election.

Ask U. S. To Intervene

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—The United States cruiser Chester left Malta today for Tripoli, where its commander will investigate the charges of barbarous treatment of the Turks, made against Italy. The state department is reticent, but it is believed that the dispatching of the cruiser is a direct result of the appeal made by Turkey to the United States.

(By United Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—The question of the United States intervening in the Turkish-Italian war to prevent barbarities in Tripoli has been put up to President Taft, following Turkey's appeal for aid. Although Turkey's appeal took the form of a practical demand in the name of humanity to stop the atrocities, it is believed that the United States will be slow to act.

The state department hesitates to interfere in the European situation until the powers directly interested see fit to take action.

Rodgers Has Now Crossed the Continent

(By United Press Leased Wire.) PASADENA, Nov. 6.—Aviator C. P. Rodgers arose late this morning and shortly before noon journeyed to Tournament park, where his biplane is quartered, to test several parts of the machine that were weakened during his flight yesterday. It was announced that no decision regarding the beach town at which the transcontinental journey will be officially completed has been reached.
It was a small boy on the top of the bleachers at Tournament park who first sighted the speck soaring toward Pasadena in the clouds to the east. A yell from the lad and the thousands of spectators waiting to greet Rodgers broke forth in a great volume of cheers that continued until the speck grew out of the distance and finally, mounting high overhead for a time, swooped down to earth—the world's greatest aerial achievement completed, the continent crossed.

To Hell With the Law

A Pacific avenue saloonkeeper was talking with a crowd in which Commissioner was one.
"I tell you, Pettit, if you keep on you will put us out of business. I was here in '03 when times were hard, but there never has been a time when it was as tough on the saloons as it is right now," said the wet goods man.
"Do you blame me for all that?" Pettit.
"Yes, you are to blame for it all."
"Well, how about Seattle,

Portland and the rest of the towns where the saloons are complaining too."
"It is all the same; the movement is all over the country."
"Well, how would you have it?" asked Pettit.
"Why I'd have a red-light district and an open town."
"But that's against the law," said Pettit.
"To hell with the law," said the saloonist.
"Well, you can't do anything with me unless you get me next spring," said Pettit.
