Cynthia Grey's Letters

DISPEL THE CLOUD

Dear Miss Grey: My husband has a habit of contradicting me in most everything I say when in company—even though I am right. To avoid argument I always keep silent, and I am quite sure people think I have told a falsehood, when I have spoken the truth. I have asked him many times please not to do it, but it does no good. Of late I have refused invitations and remained at home to avoid humiliation; but being young I can't do this always. Will you suggest something to take one cloud from my life?

A SOUTHERN GIRL.

A.—Clouds have a way, dear Southern Girl, of letting out rain, snow, and sleet, in the process of dispelling—not always, but usually. Now, this domestic cloud may do this very stunt, so prepare yourself to remain firm and calm—and determined—whatever happens. Tell this husband of yours once for all that you have a right to be treated with respect, and that he can take his choice between correcting this habit at once, and you. It is nothing but petty tyranny, and, as you say, you cannot stand it always—so, why at all? He may get angry and threaten to leave, and he may say it and mean it. Don't back down. You can't be happy as you are, and when his anger cools, he will see the right of the matter, and at least respect you for the stand you take. I wish I could impress it upon your young wives that the time to correct a wrong is at the very start—the first time.

A JEALOUS HUSBAND

I am a young married woman 23 years old, and my husband is 29. We love each other very much, and there are times when we are as happy as can be, and on the reverse we are unhappy and miserable. He is of a jealous disposition and accuses me of flirting—something I don't approve of. Will you tell me something I can do to help him get over it. We both love children, but have none. Do you think it advisable to adopt one?

A.—Certainly I would adopt one. A dear little child might be the very thing to cure him of his fault. Before adopting the child I would talk it over with him, and show him how you will each be responsible not only for the child's physical good, but for the home impressions that are made on its little mind. You might mention some fault of your own that you are going to try to correct. Don't preach at him, or ask promises. Even if he says nothing, he makes his resolves to himself.

Dear Miss Grey: We are two girls who wrote to you some time ago about playing kissing games. You advised us not to, and so we stopped it. But we have had to sit off in one corner, and he wall flowers, and not have a good time. We feel stiff and out of place and our boy friends treat us coolly. Of course you will advise us to be lonely rather than do something we don't think right, but you surely don't know what it means to us.

CHUMS.

A.—In your enthusiastic youthfulness you have been making being good "a lonesome job." Chums. Now, truthfully, girls, did you think Cynthia wanted you to sit up like you had a ramrod down your back, and your hands and fingers like five nails in a shingle? Surely you girls have enough originality about you to think up some good game with lots of fun in it. Get some of the girls—and boys, too, if you can—into it in another part of the room or house, and have such a fine time that the others will come to your game.

SEMI-ANNUAL Clearance of Men's Clothing

All Winter Weight Suits for Men and Young Men Must Go.

EVERY January we hold a great Clearance Sale in the Men's Store—a sale in which every garment of winter weight is hurried out at smart reductions. Here is the announcement of the usual clearance the same as announced every January ever since our Men's Store was inaugurated.

"THE SAME" -- WELL NO! FAR FROM IT! IT IS THE USUAL SALE, TO BE SURE, BUT THE PRICES ARE UNUSUALLY LOWER THAN IN ANY PRECEDING SALE

Here is a Sale That Will Set a New Sales Record for the Men's Store

Men were never able to buy winter clothing of quality for as low prices as are afforded by this sale. This clothing is possessing a full measure of this season's style and dressy elegance, tailor work equal to the best, fit and finish that are not to be improved upon. It is clothing that has won its own way on its own merit and at full and regular prices during the Winter 1911. Now in the first month of 1912 we are desirous of closing out the entire line to make room for Spring and Summer weights which will follow shortly.

Included is every Winter Suit in stock (staple blues and blacks alone excepted) in Rogers Peet and Derby System Clothes for men and Harvard Clothes for young men. The following prices maintain:--

- All $15.00 Suits now . . . $11.00

January Showing of Beautiful Wash Fabrics

ONE of the most important of January Sales events is the big display of white goods. The holiday season over women's thoughts naturally turn to the Spring sewing--the pretty dresses, and waits, the dainty pieces of underwear, the February graduating gown for the school miss, the dresses and under-garments for the children--all these must be planned and made. Yards and yards of beautiful, snowy white materials are required. And it seems in going over these fabrics as if they were more beautiful than ever this season. We want you to come and see them this week--tomorrow if possible. See the big window display, see them in the department where you can get the soft "feel" of the goods.
