The Adventures of AVERAGE JONES Gentleman Detective By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS COPYRIGHT 1911. THE BOBBY-MERRILL COMPANY.

CHAPTER I. THE B-FLAT TROMBONE

Three men sat in the Cosmic Club, discussing the question: "What's the matter with Jones?" Waldemar, the oldest was the owner of an important and decent newspaper. His heavy face wore the expression of good-humored power, characteristic of the experienced and successful journalist.

Average Jones had come by his nickname inevitably. His parents had foredoomed him to it when they furnished him with the initials A. V. R. E. He was a composite photograph of any thousand well-conditioned, clean-living Americans between the ages of twenty-five and thirty.

At such time as he shall have completed five years of continuous residence in New York city. After such time the virus of the metropolis will have worked through his entire being. He will squander his unearned and undeserved fortune, thus completing the vicious circle, and returning the millions acquired by my political activities, in a poisoned shower upon the city for which, having bossed, bullied and looted it, I feel no sentiment other than contempt."

"And now," remarked Waldemar in his heavy, rumbling voice, "you aspire to disappoint that good old man?"

"It's only human nature, you know," said Average Jones. "When a man puts a ten-million-dollar curse on you and suggests that you haven't the backbone of a shrimp, you—"

"—naturally yearn to prove him a liar," supplied Bertram. "Exactly. Anyway, I've no taste for dissipation, either moral or financial. I want action; something to do. I'm bored."

Waldemar laughed. "Why not take up a hobby, Mr. Jones?"

"Any kind. The club is full of hobby-riders. Of all people I know, they have the keenest appetite for life."

"What line would you choose?" asked Bertram languidly. "Nobody has gone in for queer advertisements yet, I believe," replied the older man. "If one could take the time to follow them up—but it would mean all one's leisure."

"Decidedly. I once knew a man who gave away twenty dollars daily on clues from the day's news. HE wasn't bored for lack of occupation."

"But the ordinary run of advertising is nothing more than an effort to sell something by yelling in print," objected Average Jones. "Is it? Well perhaps you don't look in the right place."

Waldemar reached for a morning's copy of the Universal and ran his eyes down the columns of "Classified" matter. "Hark to this," he said, and read: "Is there any work on God's green earth for a man who has just GOT to have it?"

"Or this: "WANTED—A venerable looking man with white beard and medical degree. Good pay to right applicant."

"What's that?" asked Average Jones with awakened interest.

"Only a quick medical concern looking for a 'stall' to impress their 'come-ons,'" explained Waldemar. Average Jones leaned over to scan the paper in his turn. "Here's one," said he, and read: "WANTED—Performer on B-flat trombone. Can use at once. Ap-

Hip II Is Made Life Member of the Elks Hip the Second is today a full fledged life member of the Elks. He was admitted to membership at the local lodge, No. 174, last evening after being given the full degrees, and is today the only elephant Elk in America. Hip not only sprouted his antlers last night but had most of the velvet worn off by today.

The local lodge also voted to purchase or have made for Hip, two robes. These robes will be purple with white lettering on the sides. "Little Hip the Second, B. P. O. E., No. 1774, Tacoma, Washington."

Following the initiation Hip, at a banquet, swiped all of the celery in sight, got away with sandwiches and started on the liquids when taken into camp.

To Properly Treat Obstinate Wrinkles. Particularly where wrinkles are long and deep the massage devotee is apt to rub too hard and too frequently. This loosens the skin, causes muscles to sag, aggravates the wrinkled condition—just the opposite result from that sought.

Better than massage, or anything else, for the most obstinate wrinkles as well as the finest lines, is a formula well known in France, which you may readily avail yourselves of, as you will have no difficulty procuring the constituents from your druggists. It is this: One ounce powdered sallow dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathe face, neck and hands in this. The effect is really marvelous, not only as to wrinkles, but also in cases of baggy cheeks and chin. The application is cooling, soothing, tending to relieve fatigue and insomnia.—Adv.

ply with instrument, after 1 p. m. 300 East 100th Street. "That seems ordinary enough," said Waldemar.

"What's it doing in a daily paper? There must be—er—technical publications—er—journals, you know, for this sort of demand."

"When Average's words come slow, you've got him interested," commented Bertram. "Sure sign." "Nevertheless, he's right," said Waldemar. "It is rather misplaced."

"How is this for on that says what it means?" said Bertram. "WANTED—At once, a brass howitzer and a man who isn't afraid to handle it. Mrs. Anne Cullen, Pier 49 1/2 East River."

"The woman who is fighting the barge combine," explained Waldemar. "Not so good as it looks. She's bluffing."

"Anyway, I'd like a shy at this business," declared Average Jones with sudden conviction. "It looks to me like something to do."

"Make it a business, then," advised Waldemar. "If you care really to go in for it, my newspaper would be glad to pay for information such as you might collect. We haven't time, for example, to trace down fraudulent advertisers. If you could start an enterprise of that sort, you'd certainly find it amusing, and, at times, perhaps, even adventurous."

"I wouldn't know how to establish it," objected Average Jones. "The newspaper owner drew a rough diagram on a sheet of paper and filled it in with writing, crossing out and revising liberally. Divided, upon his pattern, into lines, the final draft read:

Results Tell There Can Be No Doubt About the Results in Tacoma. Results tell the tale. The All doubt is removed. The testimony of a Tacoma citizen Can be easily investigated. What better proof can be had? Mrs. C. A. McCourt, 253 S. Fortieth St., Tacoma, Wash., says: "At intervals for five or six years, I had attacks of kidney complaint, and while they lasted my back ached severely. I lacked energy, had trouble with the kidney secretions and was annoyed by dizzy spells. Finally I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Malstrom Bros' Drug Store and in a short time after beginning their use I found them to be just the remedy I needed. Before I had finished the contents of one box, the backache and other difficulties were removed and my kidneys became normal. The effective manner in which Doan's Kidney Pills removed my trouble leads me to endorse them." (Statement given November 11, 1906.) AFTER FIVE YEARS. When Mrs. McCourt was interviewed on January 3, 1910, she said: "I have enjoyed good health and freedom from kidney complaint since I took Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy cured me, and in return I always give it my endorsement when the opportunity occurs." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.
