FASTEST TIME OF DAY
Five-mile lap made by Tetzlaff in 3 minutes and 59 seconds.

AMOUNTS TO WINNERS
Tetzlaff—$3,500.
Bergdoll—$1,000.
DeVore—$500.

Driving 250 miles at a speed average of 66.06 miles an hour, which includes 12 minutes time he was at the pits, making the average running time for the 250 miles better than 70 miles an hour, Teddy Tetzlaff drove his Fiat car first across the wire Saturday afternoon at the Lakewood racetrack, winning the Montamarathon. Bergdoll, driving the Benz "150," was second, three minutes later, and DeVore in the National was third, five minutes behind the winner.

Over 50,000 people packed in the grandstands, in automobile row and dotted in clusters about the track, cheered the whizzing racers through one of the most exciting events in the sporting history of the city. As the big machines roared around the track, eating up the miles, the curves were cut by the flying wheels until it appeared they had been plowed. This necessitated slower running as the race progressed, and prevented the establishing of a new record.

On the home stretch the big cars often traveled at a speed of 120 miles an hour past the judges' stand, and Verbeck in the Fiat once swerved and skidded, narrowly missing crashing into the grandstand while going about 100 miles an hour. Tetzlaff drove the most consistent race, making about the same average time for each lap, throwing on bursts of speed to pass or lap his rivals, who suffered more from engine and tire trouble than did the Fiat cars.

Hughie Hughes, in his Mercer, was thrown out of the running by clutch trouble. Mulford, who in his Knox Saturday traveled the five-mile lap once in 3 minutes, 55 seconds, suffered hard luck, and the average speed of the big free-for-all was probably cut down by his absence. He took the curves at greater speed and displayed greater daring.

Times Political News of Tacoma and Pierce Co.

A. V. Fawcett, known over the state as "Tacoma's fighting mayor," will be out now in a few days in his automobile on his campaign of the state for lieutenant governor. Fawcett got his title legitimately, using the big stick on public service corporations. He got the name in his first term as mayor 15 years ago by cutting down the wires of the private lighting company. It became fastened to him when he whipped the street railway in his second term for mayor, got five-cent fare and universal transfers in all the city, and when he gave the city a municipal dock against the protests of the waterfront monopoly.

Fawcett was formerly a democrat, but became a Roosevelt republican when Teddy took the lead for progressive measures at the beginning of his term.

He made the campaign for the same office four years ago, driving over the state in a wagon, but will go in an auto this time.

It is believed now that O. G. Ellis of Tacoma will make the

"BILLS" GATHER FOR GRAND RE-UNION

PORTLAND THROGGED WITH ELKS FROM ALL PARTS OF NATION—ELECTION TO BE HELD TUESDAY.

(By United Press Leased Wire.) PORTLAND, Ore., July 8.—With the city thronged with "Bills" from every state in the Union and thousands more pouring in on special trains, the 46th annual grand lodge reunion of the Elks began here today. It will continue throughout the week, ending at midnight Saturday.

The program today included sight-seeing trolley trips, band concerts in the business section, reception on board the historic old battleship Oregon, reception to visiting women at the Elks temple, Roman chariot races. The formal opening of the grand lodge will be held tonight at the armory building. There will be an elaborate program, including an address of welcome by Mayor Rushlight.

One of the principal questions to be threshed out by the ritual committee is whether the goat shall be eliminated from the initiating ceremonies. Most of the Elks from the larger cities favor this, but the lodge men from the smaller cities and towns favor the retention of the "animal."

Election of officers will be held tomorrow. Thomas B. Mills of Superior, Wis., will be elected grand exalted ruler, succeeding John P. Sullivan.

Mills is the only candidate. Rochester, N. Y., and Cincinnati, O., appear the most formidable contenders in the race to obtain the 1913 convention. New York city appears to have a slight lead.

Where Do Presidents Come From? All East of Mississippi

If Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, the democratic nominee for president, is elected, a new state will have joined the family that boasts the proud title, "Mother of Presidents." If Taft or Roosevelt is the next president no new state will be able to claim a son in the White House.

Out of the whole array of states, only ten have presented the country with presidents. No president has ever come from west of the Mississippi. Except Virginia and Tennessee, no southern state but Louisiana has furnished a president. Ohio, Virginia and New York, have supplied the greatest number, five each. New England has furnished but one.

The ten states and their presidents are:

New York—Van Buren, Fillmore, Arthur, Cleveland, Roosevelt.
Ohio—W. H. Harrison, Hayes, Garfield, McKinley, Taft.
Virginia—Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Tyler.
Massachusetts—John Adams, John Quincy Adams.
Tennessee—Jackson, Polk, Johnson.
Illinois—Lincoln, Grant.
Indiana—Benj. Harrison.
Pennsylvania—Buchanan.
Louisiana—Taylor.
New Hampshire—Pierce.

POLITICAL NEWS AND COMMENT BY TIMES' WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

By Gilson Gardner
WASHINGTON, July 8.—In the nomination of Woodrow Wilson the progressives won a remarkable and most unexpected victory at Baltimore.

I am among those who believe Governor Wilson to be sincere and efficient—a great asset to the cause of people's government.

The victory of Governor Wilson at Baltimore was a struggle between public sentiment and the money-controlled machine of the party; and public sentiment.

In one respect the Baltimore convention differed from the

Baroness "fighting" For Peace Pits Her Strength Against War Trust

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 8.—The strength of one woman is being measured against the strength of the war trust—a trust the like of which the world has no equal. The war trust is the Gokonda of every royal family in Europe, the goose that lays the golden egg for the royal parasites who suck the life blood of the European masses.

Such is the assertion of the Baroness Bertha von Suttner, winner of the Nobel peace prize, the world's most earnest advocate of peace.

"It is the armor plate companies that are responsible for the continuation of armies," declares the baroness. "It is a curious fact that the men who have made their money from the armor plate and dynamite are now working most earnestly for the world peace. I mean Carnegie and Alfred Nobel. They realize now the horror of war."

"The military spirit of Europe is fostered by the war trust that owns every publication on the continent. I am traveling in the interest of peace, but the papers misrepresent me in the interest of supposed news."

"For example, I am said to have seen my father and four uncles killed in battle. My father died before I was born, and generals in Austria died in their beds comfortably. My uncles were generals and field marshals."

"My appeal is to the mothers of the race and I beg them to understand. Most people understand the horrors of war; few of the causes of it. I desire a publication in the German language that will tell the world the truth about the war trust. Without financial backing, the editor of such a publication would starve."

"What are the facts about the possibility of war between, say England and Germany? Just these: Should England tomorrow call for soldiers she would get a strike. Conscription cannot be forced in England. The workmen have forced the government to give them a minimum wage scale; they will force it also to give them peace in which to do creative work."

"The war trust know this—knows full well that cannot now feed on men; but cannon must feed or the dividends of the stockholders will cease. A

BARONESS VON SUTTNER

"HAIR THAT GIVES FATHER TIME THE LAUGH"
We are just about as old as we LOOK.
People judge us by the way we LOOK. The man of woman with grey hair is beginning to get in the "Old Timer's Class." This twentieth century does NOT want GREY hairs—it wants the energy of youth. The big things are being done by the YOUNGER generation. There's a sort of "Has Been" look about those "Grey Hairs." There is always one to criticize and smile scornfully.
Father Time is a stern disciplinarian. Get the best of him. Give him the laugh. Do not be a "Has Been." It's unnecessary.
