JUST CATS

If dogs delight to bark and bite, Then cats delight to screech And knock their silly eyes half out When 'ere they are in reach. It is indeed a sorry sight To see them in a bloody fight. For they can be so kind and nice And catch the naughty little mice. Some kiddies, too, will scrap like cats. Scratch their faces and tear their hats; It is a pity this should be so, For children are just to love, you know.

COMMON SENSE TALK BY THE TIMES PHYSICIAN

DON'T KEEP WORKING ROOM TOO WARM.

A great many working places are kept unnecessarily warm. Some of these could be made cooler and more habitable with little cost. The employer would gain as much, if not more, than the employe if this precaution were taken. A man begins to lag in his work as soon as the temperature rises above normal. Whenever it passes 60 degrees the difference is noticeable both in the volume and quality. There are some trades, on their present basis, which make it necessary for the worker to stay in high temperature rooms. Among such are bakers, cooks, stowers, engineers and florists. The stoker and fireman are not so much to be pitied because they are working in circulating air. The others are not. A thoroughly good ventilation system will improve the temperature conditions of almost any room. It's worth the employers' time to consider and to act.

PEACHES

PEACH JELLY.—Wash and slice, but do not pare the fruit, using part unripe and part ripe fruit. Be sure the latter is firm. Place in earthenware crock and set in moderate oven or on the back of the stove neither sugar nor water, watching carefully. Or the fruit may be set inside a second vessel, containing hot water, and let stand far back on the stove for 24 hours. The juice should by this time be free and thick. Strain over night in cheesecloth bag. Measure and use pound for pint of sugar and juice, heating separately before cooking together. When this juice has cooked down a little—skimming meanwhile—add sugar gradually and let boil up. This should make excellent jelly.

STEWED PEACHES.—Peel and stone three dozen peaches. Put them over the fire with enough boiling water to cover them and apple cut into dice. Stew slowly, and when the peaches are tender transfer them to a bowl while you boil the liquor hard for five minutes. Then strain it and add three cupfuls of granulated sugar. Boil to a thick syrup and pour over the peaches. Cover while cooking.

CYNTHIA GREY'S ANSWERS

MOTHER, OR HUSBAND

Dear Miss Grey: I am 23, have been married three years, and am of good habits. Since my marriage the latest I have been out is 10:15, unless with my wife or working. Here is my story.

My wife is two years my senior, and we have a little boy 2 years old. She will not let me go out for a walk after my day's work, neither will she come with me. It's a married man's place to stay in at night, but she goes out with her mother and girls I do not know. If I have a young man friend call she says something to hurt his feelings and he does not come again.

We have been living with her folks since our boy came. I have been advised to move to ourselves, but she says if I go, I go alone, as she will not leave her mother. I have tried to talk to her nicely several times, but she only gets mad and cries and then her mother scolds me and tells her to leave me. I am sure if we were living alone everything would be all right. If she would only come out with me I would be satisfied. Don't you think I have the right? I work inside and like to get a little fresh air, but I stay in to have peace. I think I will have to leave her, but would like your advice, Miss Grey.

PEACEABLE MAN.

A.—Several families should no more live together than several families of birds or animals.

It is beyond me to understand why a parent should side with a child (young, or grown) when they positively know that child is wrong. "Peace at any price" is a weak maxim, and you are encouraging your wife in being tyrannical if you weakly give up your rights. If the wife's mother needs her, she should be willing to make it as pleasant as possible for you; if not, leave her with the one she loves.

"Anxious Reader," I know of no place you can get bird eggs to set. Inquire at the commission merchants.

A BRIDAL SHOWER

Dear Miss Grey: Will you tell me how to get up a bridal shower? How many weeks before the wedding should it take place? Is it proper to invite the young lady's mother and other elderly people?

A.—Decorate with bridges, old shoes, strings of puffed rice and flowers. The shower in a big shoe, under which the bride-to-be sits. To the shoe be attached in such a way that an unseemly person may pull it and release the shower.

It is nice to invite the bride's mother and elder friends if they amuse themselves and leave the young people alone. About two weeks before the wedding is a good time for the shower.

HE SAID HE WOULD WAIT

Dear Miss Grey: I am a girl of 17, and have been going with a young man lately who asked me to be his wife. I told him I would answer his question later, for I thought I was too young to get married. He said he would wait for me. That same night was the last time I saw him, until lately. I met him on the street and didn't speak to him. He smiled and passed on. Did I do wrong in not speaking? I found out later I love him and would like to have him for a fiance. Should I speak to him the next time I see him?

A.—Certainly speak to him when you meet him, but don't be a "ninny" and allow him familiar liberties. You are entirely too young for a lover. So if you cannot be merely a good friend do not encourage him.

TO HELP CURE THE HABIT

Dear Miss Grey: Will you kindly tell me what is best to do. We have a little home we are trying to pay for. My husband makes about $25 per week, but drinks dreadfully. By spells he stays away several days at a time, loses time, and spends money, so it keeps us set back all the time.

I try in every way to save and do my part, go out very little, am always home to greet him. He always says how sorry he is for what he does, and will never do so again. He says he loves me dearly and could not part with me. Do you think, Miss Grey, he can love me and still neglect me? We have no children and have been married two years. He says he likes children, but thinks times too hard to raise them. Do you know of any way I could break him of his bad habit?

A.—Keeping the stomach well filled with good nourishing food is a help in overcoming the disease of drunkenness. By degrees get him to eat fresh fruits, and have every meal of nourishing quality, well cooked. Serve sweet desserts.

If you will send a self-addressed, stamped envelope I can help you further.

COLD DRINKS

Lemonade Ginger Punch

Five lemons, 1 cupful of sugar, 1-2 cupful of boiling water, ginger ale, fresh mint, cold water. 1-2 heaping tablespoonful of gelatine. Wash the lemons and slice them; then sprinkle over the sugar. Let stand for 30 minutes and then add 1 quart of cold water. Dissolve the gelatine in the boiling water and add it to the lemon mixture. Pour the whole into a bowl and add the ginger ale, allowing 1-4 of ginger ale for each quart of the other liquid. Half an hour before serving add a few stems of fresh mint.

APPLE CUP.

Six apples, 1 cupful of raisins, 2 bay leaves, 1 stick cinnamon, 3 lemons, 4 quarts of water. Core the apples and cut into quarters, without, however, paring them. Put the fruit into a porcelain pot and add the raisins, bay leaves, cinnamon and a bit of grated yellow lemon rind. Be sure not to get any of the white rind, as it gives a bitter flavor. Add two quarts of water and bring to the boiling point; then put in the rest of the water, cover the kettle and allow the contents to boil slowly for half an hour. Drain through a cloth bag, and when cold, add the lemon juice. Chill thoroughly before serving.

PLAIN SHERBET

Lemonade plain sherbet should be a household word in summer. Roll, peel carefully and slice, thin, six lemons. Put into a pitcher or bowl with alternate layers of granulated sugar, 2 teaspoonfuls for each lemon. Leave on the ice until you are ready to serve. Then add a quart of iced water and a lump of ice.

AS A WOMAN THINKS

Most women can simulate love better than they can dissimulate it.

The child who never learns what it is to want will never appreciate what it means to have.

The saddest creature in the world is the old man or woman without any reason to hope.
