

INTIMATE GLIMPSES OF WOODROW WILSON

He has never used tobacco in any form. He is the son of a Presbyterian minister and is a member of the Presbyterian church. He is almost blind in one eye, with which he can see only directly to the front, as a result of an accident in youth. No one would suspect, to look at him, that his sight was impaired. He is an expert stenographer, and writes his speeches in shorthand, which is later transcribed by a typewriter. His recreations are walking, horseback riding and golf, the last of which he plays poorly because of his defective sight. He wears glasses for nearsightedness. His hair is getting thin on top and he has his scalp massaged by an expert once a week. He has three daughters, Eleanor, Margaret and Jessie, who play golf and ride horseback with him. He is an accomplished painter. He is the greatest story teller in politics since Lincoln, nearly always illustrating his point with an apt tale. He is a great sleeper, requiring (and usually getting) 10 hours a night. If he gets less for two or three nights, he turns in and sleeps 14 or 15 hours at a stretch. When very tired he goes for an automobile ride and sleeps as the machine runs. One of his daughters is an accomplished musician, one is a painter and one is a social settlement worker. His summer home at Sea Girt is owned by the state and overlooks the ocean across the national guard rifle range.

WILBURN FAIRCHILD

Wilburn Fairchild is going after the political scalp of Arvid Hydstrom as a candidate for state senator in the 28th district this year.

Fairchild was raised on a farm back in the middle west. He did not see enough of the big silver dollars coming in, so he took up railroading, and came west, and for years has been a resident of Tacoma. He has been one of the leading railway men in this city for a long time, and is now running a passenger train for the N. P.

Fairchild believes the time has come to do something for the people at Olympia. Having been raised on a farm, he knows what good roads mean, and he intends to put a lot of energy into trying to get legislation for good roads for the farmer first and the automobile chap afterward.

And he wants them built without big expense to the farmers, by convicts. Fairchild would put all state, city and county prisoners at work on good roads.

The Aberdeen Roosevelt delegates selected by the republicans of the state as their party representatives will hold a second state convention in Tacoma August 7 to decide just what the progressives will do in this state.

A call was sent out by W. D. Askren, secretary of the Aberdeen convention committee Saturday evening, and it is expected there will be a big convention here Wednesday to finally settle the question as to whether the progressives shall go into the republican camp and wrest the machine from the Hay-Taft-Colner crowd, or whether they shall cut loose and try to form a new party.

Leola May Blinn of Seattle has the office buzz going in her honor. She wants to run for state land commissioner and has filed at Olympia. She is the second woman after the job.

J. A. Munday of Vancouver will enter the lists as a candidate for congress on the democratic ticket against Charles Drury and George Hazzard of Tacoma. Local democrats say it looks like Drury at this writing.

All candidates who want to get in the game at the primaries will have to put up their filing fees and announce themselves by next Saturday or they will be out of the race.

The state executive committee of the prohibitionists will meet here at 810 South Ninth street tomorrow afternoon to arrange for the state nominating convention of this party. It is expected to nominate a complete state ticket and it is believed the state convention will be held at Tacoma.

Superior Court Judge E. M. Card has filed his candidacy for re-election. The judge lives at 809 No. Steele st., and has served two years on the superior bench, having previously been justice of the peace.

Eugene Church, republican, 1320 No. Yakima av., filed his candidacy for county commissioner for the second district.

Vacation Will Soon Be a Thing of the Past.

In a few days the boys who have been spending the summer in the country or at their camp in the mountains will return for the fall opening of school.

Hundreds of boys will be looking for work after school hours and there will be so many applicants for each job that many will have to go without.

We are about to make a few changes among some of the present carriers of the TIMES, and will have a few choice routes open for a few bright, ambitious boys who want to work their way through school.

These routes will not last very long, so if you are thinking of getting one come in and leave your application at once so that you will be the first on the list when school starts.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS: ATTENTION!
Expenses at high school come pretty high. You will need more money than you did in the lower grades. Why not carry a paper route to help meet these expenses? We are going to put a number of the larger boys on the down-town routes, so if you want one of these let us know about it at once so that we may make arrangements for you when school opens. Apply this week at the Times office, 9th and Commerce sts.

TACOMA LEADS IN POSTAL SAVINGS

Tacoma is the postal savings bank town, all right. It now leads all the Northwest. The deposits at the close of business Saturday night amounted to $94,697, which is more than either Seattle, Portland or Spokane. Many were turned away because they wanted to deposit over $100 at a time. One man had $2,000 he wanted to put in. Up to date only one account has been opened by a Japanese. Other nationalities are well represented.

MESSAGE TO DELIVER WAS LACKING

"I am not resigning to raise chickens, but will raise chickens because I am resigning," Rev. W. D. Buchanan told his parishioners of the First Universalist church Sunday morning in his farewell sermon.

He declared he was quitting the pulpit because he believed he lacked a message to deliver.

"All my life I have been a chagrined to my friends. They have expected great things of me, and I have failed to accomplish them." He declared he was simply resigning for the good of the church.

BOOK STUNS A BURGLAR

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 5.—Awakened by a noise downstairs early in the morning, Dr. G. B. Booth investigated and discovered a burglar.

The physician hurled a heavy book at the man, hit him and rendered him unconscious. He searched the intruder and recovered a bracelet belonging to his wife.

When Dr. Booth went to the telephone to call the police the burglar regained consciousness and fled.

WHO'S AFRAID OF A MOUSE?
Talk about women being afraid of mice! Sheriff W. S. Smith of Columbus, Ind., was reading a newspaper in his office.

A mouse came along and started up inside Smith's trouser leg. The bold sheriff beat all records in high jumping and loud yelling. From several blocks people came running in time to see Smith on the ground clutching his leg.

The mouse was penned up, all right, but the sheriff didn't know what to do with his prisoner. He was afraid to let go.

Friend batted the mouse with a club, but that hurt Smith more than the mouse. Another suggested pouring oil on the mouse and setting it afire, but Smith carries no fire insurance. Another was for holding Smith under the water until the mouse was drowned; still another offered to do a William Tell stunt and shoot the mouse.

Finally Mrs. Smith arrived on the scene.

"Let go, you big ninny," she chirped to her sheriff-husband. He let go. The mouse dropped to the ground and committed suicide by running into a dog's mouth.

"How's that?"

"Why, she wouldn't wear a porous plaster without first running baby ribbon through the holes."

Soldier Poet Dares Death In Great Ice Floes of North

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—Colonel Cornelius N. Gardener, soldier, statesman, blacksmith, poet, agriculturist, shoemaker, philanthropist, carver, lecturer, linguist, world traveler and, incidentally, commanding officer of the Sixteenth infantry, has recently arrived here with his regiment on the transport Sheridan. His command will probably be stationed at Presidio for three or four years, but the colonel will retire from active service in the fall of 1913.

Colonel Gardener was the first civil governor of the province of Tayabas, P. I. A fund was raised to erect a monument in the colonel's memory, but the soldier poet persuaded his admirers to postpone the honor for a few years.

The colonel has fought Indians, Spaniards, yellow fever and all sorts of things.

He makes his children's toys, does odd bits of plumbing, painting and carpentering, and now and again turns out snatches of poetry for his own amusement and the edification of others.

He speaks Dutch, French, Spanish, Italian and German, has a more than ordinary knowledge of the classics, is a student of romance literature and is a writer and speaker on civil government.

The colonel, on his arrival, was still suffering from bronchitis, which he contracted from exposure among the ice floes in Bering straits.

The colonel's troops have been stationed in Alaska to preserve order and keep up the telegraph lines, which are owned by the government.

Of the trip out the colonel said:

"The transport left a month earlier than is customary and arrived in the Arctic waters in June, the most dangerous time of the year because of the ice that is floating in the Bering sea."

"The regiment was distributed at five different points from Ft. Seward at Skagway to St. Michael above Nome, and the transport had to make these places to pick up the outgoing troops and leave those that were relieving us."

"Progress through the ice was extremely perilous. It took seven days to go 125 miles. There was constant danger of the frail sides of the ship being crushed by the ice pack and had the wind come up and set the ice in motion, there is no doubt that the vessel would have been lost and of the 1100 souls on board, none would have lived to tell the tale."

Almost Lost His Life
S. A. Stid, of Mason, Mich., will never forget his terrible exposure to a merciless storm. "It gave me a dreadful cold," he writes, "that caused severe pains in my chest, so it was hard for me to breathe. A neighbor gave me several doses of Dr. King's New Discovery which brought great relief. The doctor said I was on the verge of pneumonia, but to continue with the Discovery. I did so and two bottles completely cured me. Use only this quick, safe, reliable medicine for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. You Can Buy One, WHY NOT?

$10 Down Will Take Any of Them.
$5 Down Will Take Many of Them.
A Legal Guarantee With Every One of These "Used" Pianos.

During the past week nearly half our stock of excellent "used" pianos has gone to satisfied and happy buyers, but some of the more desirable ones are still here. Don't miss this chance. Don't let another day go by if you can help it. Make your selection today. We will hold the piano for you a reasonable time if you are not quite ready to receive it. Terms may be had upon any of them—in some instances as low as $5 per month—and every one is warranted to be in the best possible condition and exactly as represented or no sale.

There are Kimballs, D. S. Johnstons, Schuberts, Nelsons; also Hallett & Davis, Krehling, Sterling, Davis & Son, Lucore, Hinze, Clarendon and even the noted Lester, pianos in this offering.

Prices begin at $125, running up to $315, and in nearly every instance the asked price represents but little more than half the real music value of the piano. Give these your quick attention.

A Richmond in mahogany, was $250, now $125; a Krehling in mahogany, was $275, now $168; a Sterling in mahogany, fancy, large size with paneled ends, was $300, now $175; Davis & Son, in French walnut, exchanged for a Sohmer grand, was $375, now $175; Cote in fancy mahogany case, was $350, now $185; Hinze in choice oak case, was $325, now $180; Lucore in English oak, was $375, now $215; Schubert in satin walnut, was $350, now $227; D. S. Johnston in walnut, exchanged for a Chickering grand, was $375, now $220; another D. S. Johnston in walnut, exchanged for Acmeclode player, was $375, now $235; Clarendon in mahogany, returned from a short rental, was $400, now $245.

A Hallett & Davis in mahogany and used but three months; this piano is sold by other dealers for $390 and up. It is in this sale at $257.

Two splendid Kimballs are here, both of them nearly new. They were $390 each, now $285 and $295 each. Both are rare bargains.

Also one excellent Lester. The Lester has been Philadelphia's favorite piano for years. This one came back to us in exchange for a Lester grand. New, it was $475, now $315.

You will find other pianos to your liking as well, in this great sale of "used" pianos. Bear in mind, no matter which piano you buy, you are protected by a legal guarantee in every instance.
