THE "COURT OF SORROWS" IS A COURT OF JOY---WHAT IT TELLS US

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Supposing you were a kind-hearted individual, easily moved to real sympathy by the tragic sorrows of others, and supposing that day after day poor heartbroken women and children filed before you each with a tale of woe, averaging about ten cases every day for 16 months—over 3,000 such stories of trouble, heart crushing trouble—WOULD THAT MAKE YOU GLOOMY?

Judge Charles Goodnow of the court domestic relations has left that bench. "I am done," he said. "The work is terrific, and the strain on one's sympathies, the daily grind of heart cases, has begun to wear me out. I have seen so much of misery and sorrow and unhappiness in my court that the world has begun to take on a dark and dismal hue. So much woe has been unfolded before me that it has become a part of me. "What is this court of domestic relations? Let Judge Goodnow answer: "It is a court of sorrows, into which comes grim-visaged woe and misery unspeakable; where drunkenness, poverty and ignorance walk hand in hand with brutality, starvation and immorality. "In almost every instance the court deals with the adult offender against the woman and child. While the juvenile court deals with the delinquent and dependent child (the effect), the 'court of sorrows' reaches the cause. Last year 1,548 deserted wives came before Judge Goodnow, and each told a story of a husband's neglect of them and their children. During the same time 624 children came and told of crimes committed against them. And 540 young girls came and told in low, sobbing voices, "the story of the nameless babe."

"True, it has its rewards," added Judge Goodnow. "I like to see the smile come into a wasted cheek and the light sparkle in a tear-dimmed eye; I like to give the girl another chance to get right; and to bring together the husband and wife. "What causes contribute most to domestic infelicity?" I asked the judge. "Ignorance, misconception of duties, rights and privileges; drunk laziness; poverty; early marriages; dissatisfaction with conditions and surroundings; interference of near relatives or meddling friends; ill health, and last, but not least, pure 'cussedness.'"

Cynthia Grey's Answers

"A YOUNG WOMAN" ANSWERS "A YOUNG MAN"
Dear Miss Grey: There is, as "A Young Man" says, a certain class of girls that like "tough guys" to travel with; but if young men will keep away from that class they will not be the cause of the "HOLLER." If you happen to meet those girls, don't treat them the way they treat you or the way they wish to be treated.

Have you read the saying, "Men that wish to marry sweet, womanly women go queer places to meet them?" A quiet, square man stands every chance in the world to win a respectable girl. Why don't you try?
At least, we will admit that parents should chaperone their daughters unless they know the men are upright and moral.
A YOUNG WOMAN.

SHALL I TELL HER HUSBAND?
Dear Miss Grey: Will you please advise me. We are two young married women. I have been married two years and my friend three years.

We have been going to public dances, and we met a very nice gentleman about two months ago. Now, my friend says she loved him; but he don't pay any attention to her; but seems to like my company and she won't speak to me. I have done nothing to make her mad. Shall I tell her husband? Please answer soon.
IN DOUBT.
A.—You had better tell your own husband when it comes to two married women quarreling over a "very nice gentleman." Words fail to express the disgust a sensible person feels.

FEEL LIKE I'M STANDING ON MY HEAD WHEN SHE SPEAKS
Dear Miss Grey: I am a young man 18 years old and am madly in love with a nurse 22 years old; but the trouble is that she does not know it. Won't you please advise me how to let her know the fact, as I am very bashful and feel like I am standing on my head every time she speaks to me.

I also have a large nose and she takes special delight in teasing me about it. Is there not some way of reducing its size? Now, Miss Grey, as you have helped others, won't you please help me out of my trouble?
LOVESICK.
A.—What good will it do to let her know the state of feeling that makes you feel upside down? Evidently, she does not care for you, so don't make a fool of yourself.

A BACHELOR'S SENTIMENTS
Dear Miss Grey: I noticed some time ago that someone spoke about bachelors adopting a child. How could a bach care for a child, unless he was well-to-do? Why don't some of those people who have lap dogs, cats and parrots be made to adopt some children or be made to support them anyway? These are the sentiments of a bachelor.
BACHELOR.

Dear Miss Grey: Please print in your paper the conjugation of the verb "be."
STUDIOUS BILL.
A.—It would take too much space, Bill. Consult a grammar at the reference room of the public library.

"I. E. B." If you have diligently tried to find your husband, and have not heard from nor seen him, you are considered free without further action. Of course, if he should appear after you are married and make complaint, you will have to prove to the court that you did make repeated effort to find him. The only other way is to get a divorce.

I MET A VERY NICE YOUNG MAN
Dear Miss Grey: One day when I was visiting at a town I met a very nice young man, and just as soon as I saw him I liked him and he acted as though he liked me. He spoke to me very nice. He went home, and after an hour or so he called up and asked me how I was.

The next day he came down to take me to a ball game. As I had just met the fellow, I refused. Some girls were there and told me I was foolish to refuse, so I changed my mind and went. He treated me just fine, as he took me to his home and introduced me to his mother and sisters. They were very kind to me. He called on me a few times after that; but all at once he stayed away. Whenever I met him he was just fine. The day I left the place where I had been visiting, he called up by phone and said good-bye. Well, I have sent him a card and a letter; but he has not answered, so do you think, Miss Grey, he will forget me? I love him and no one else.

A.—Why will you girls exaggerate mere friendliness into love? I cannot see that the young man showed any evidence of it, and he may be disgusted if you did. Why should you write twice without an answer? You should not have written at all unless he asked you.

RULES FOR ADOPTING BABY
Dear Miss Grey: I am interested in the letters about adopting a baby. Being a culprit myself, my advice would be: First, pick your baby, girl or boy, according to choice; secure title by a quit-claim deed; then make out adoption papers and make them right, giving the child full rights in every respect as your own, besides giving it your name. Don't forget to have all the papers duly recorded. After doing all this, go home and pet it, take care of it and pet it some more. Don't forget the petting, and I will warrant that in two weeks' time you won't know but it is your own. In two months it will make you mad if anyone praises you for what you have done, for you will surely feel that the baby is its own reward.

Tell it when young how you are related. You will prevent shock and at the same time deprive busy-body from telling that which would hurt the child more. Conform to these rules and you will never rue the day you adopted that baby.
DR. L.

"I DON'T WANT TO GIVE HIM UP"
Dear Miss Grey: I have been keeping company with a young man for over a year. I love him very dearly and he has told me many times he thinks everything of me.

He lives in another state, and I do not see him for many months at a time. He tells me he is true to me all the time, and I believe everything he says; but he will not keep his promises to me.

He has a very irritable temper and hard to control. He tells me the reason he won't keep his promises to me is because I change my mind so often.

Miss Grey, what would you advise me to do? I don't want to give him up.
A.—If he won't keep his promises, and you change your mind too often, it is "six of one and half dozen of the other." You would better give up altogether.

AM I TOO YOUNG?
Dear Miss Grey: I am 20 years old. Do you think I am too young to marry? I am engaged to a boy 25. Please answer right away.

Do you think a trip to California would be nice? FLO.
A.—Yes, unless both are very sensible and know how to train the children you may have; unless each is willing to bear and forbear with the other and make home a center of helpfulness.

OUR HUSBANDS DO NOT OBJECT
Dear Miss Grey: We are two married women and old enough to behave ourselves. Our husbands travel away most of the time.

We go to the theaters together, but that alone got monotonous. Would it look well for us to attend dances without an escort, while our husbands are away? They do not object to our going, and we get very lonesome.
MARY AND MARIE.

A.—If you limit the dances to private ones, there can be no objection. If you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will tell you of some desirable ones.
