SLASHING BOUTS EXPECTED AT EAGLES SMOKER TONIGHT

Boxers Are In Pink of Shape Show Starts Promptly at 8:15 Big Demand For Seats

In all the history of the boxing game in Tacoma, the bout tonight between Ed Hagen, Seattle policeman and claimant of the heavyweight championship of the Northwest and Frank Koepeky, championship contender, is attracting an unprecedented amount of attention from the boxing fans throughout the Northwest. Hagen has defeated practically every heavyweight in this section to date, and Koepeky has been making a clean sweep in his matches. Experience, age, weight and everything else seems to favor Hagen, but Koepeky carries a tremendous punch, which is likely to win for him if he is successful in landing it. The preliminary matches in tonight's entertainment are far above the average. In the bantamweight bout between Chet Neff and Charley Givens, another championship of the Northwest will be decided. Neff and Givens have fought one draw and the winner tonight will be declared the best of his weight in this part of the woods. Art Yordy will make his last appearance in a ring tonight. Yordy is billed to meet Augie Christy. Christy has been training at the Pastime A. C. in South Tacoma and is in the best of condition. Jack Howard will get his real test tonight when he clashes with Pat Dorian, the Seattle middleweight. Dorian is only a youngster but is making a good showing in the bouts in Seattle. He was defeated some time ago by Billy Weeks and is out for revenge. Taken as a whole the smoker tonight seems to be the best that has been dished out to lovers of the game in Tacoma for some time and a packed house is assured. The bouts are under the auspices of the Eagles and are held at Eagles' hall.

FRANK KOEPKEY

Short Sport

Eagles smoker tonight, at Eagles Hall, 13th and E sts.

Frank Koepeky finished training for his bout tonight with Hagen. The Olympia man is in the best of condition and expects to win.

Two Northwestern championship bouts tonight—Koepeky-Hagen, heavyweights, and Chet Neff-Charley Givens, bantams. Two excellent fights are assured the fans in these bouts.

And do not forget that Art Yordy can still travel some, and that many are expecting him to meet his Waterloo in Augie Christie.

Barbers A. C. baseball team plays the Little Giants next Sunday. They are anxious to win as the Olympia Senators have agreed to put them on their schedule if they add the colored boys scalps to their belts.

Luther McCarthy will meet Jim Flynn again April 16 at Philadelphia.

Roscoe Taylor, at one time within striking distance of the lightweight championship of the world, will attempt to "come back" tonight. Roscoe is billed to meet Harry Bishop, the hard hitting South Tacoma kid.

Joe Hill will challenge the winner of the Neff-Given bout tonight. Hill drew with Neff and lost the decision to Givens in former bouts.

BENGALS ARE NOW ALMOST COMPLETE

The Bengals got real busy yesterday and played an exciting 10-inning game of baseball on Everett's muddy field. Two teams were picked, Nordyke leading the Tigers, and Iron Man Joe, the Kittens. The Kittens won by a score of 3 to 2, after a very snappy contest.

Stadille and McMullin, the absentees, showed up about noon and got into the game right away. Stadille, distinguishing himself by whanging out a pretty double in a pinch. With the exception of Spike Shannon, all the the Tigers are now at Everett.

President McGinnity has suggested the playing of a benefit game, when he returns here next week, for the flood sufferers in Ohio. He is willing to donate his grounds and his team, if he can get another team to volunteer its services. He would like to meet an aggregation picked from the best amateur and semi-professional talent in Tacoma. The Tigers will return home Monday.

Koepeky says that the loss of tonight's bout will not discourage him in the least.

MORNING BLOSSOMS

Mike Lynch is of the impression that he has the best infield in the circuit. Hardy, Burrell and Deimas should prove good men, but neither Rawlings nor Brooks were ever out of the ordinary.

Pitcher Stanley has not proved fast enough for the Portland Beavers, and has been turned over to the mercies of Nick Williams.

Slab Artist Bill Billiard has refused to play with Spokane and has copped one of Joe Cohn's tin cylinders, which is kept on ice for just such occasions.

Billiard don't sound like the name of a ball player now. He ought to be a shark at pool, though. (There he goes!)

Joe McGinnity says a rubber shirt is sure fine dope. Lou Nordyke agrees that it is fine, if it doesn't have a rubber neck.

The sight of the beautiful Cascades does not inspire J. J. Cox, he of the ripe southern dialect and the avoidupois batting average, with enthusiasm. Not so as you could take note of the fact. Da' boy sho' do love his old radiator.

Dick Crittenden has been reading Nick Carters since the mystery of the suit cases. Past!

Grandfather Byrnes, the old backstop, has a splendid voice, but not for singing, says Wallenius. Professional jealousy, of course.

POSTPONE MATCH

(By United Press Leased Wire.) NEW YORK, March 27.—Postponement of the 20 round battle between George Carpentier, the French middleweight, and Frank Klaus of Pittsburg before the Cirque de Paris, in Paris, from April 19 to April 23, is announced here today. The postponement was made known in a letter sent by Klaus to friends here.

MIKE DONOVAN, JR., IS THE MOST PROMISING MIDDLEWEIGHT TODAY

Boxing, like histrionic ability, runs in families, so it is no wonder that Mike Donovan, jr., is creating a furore in the ranks of "the fancy" by his sensational ring work. For Mike Donovan, jr., is the offspring of Mike Donovan, sr., middleweight champion of the world in the days when men won and lost titles with the bare fists. For 14 years he met the best in the ring and for 30 years he has turned out pupils as a boxing instructor. Mike, jr., has just turned 21, the best instructed boxer in the world. For 12 years the boy absorbed knowledge from his parent. From 8 to 20 he boxed daily, following the inclination bred in his bone. And when he was 21 his father asked him to become a policeman. Being a dutiful son, he took the examination as an applicant for a policeman's position in New York. And his ambition was to be a boxer. Soon after taking the examination, Mike, jr., was told by a family friend that his father had consented to his taking part in a bout. Mike, sr., was in Boston at the time, and when he returned to New York, he heard glowing reports of his boy's debut. Enthusiasts poured in on the old man, describing his boy's footwork, cleverness, speed and punch, for he had knocked out his opponent in his first effort. And then Mike, sr., realizing the futility of steering the boy from the course his training had fitted him for, called Mike, jr., to him and asked: "My boy, do you want to be a boxer or a policeman?" "I want to be a boxer, father. I'd like to bring the name of Donovan back to the ring again." "Then it's a boxer you'll be," returned his father, decisively. And a fighter Mike Donovan, jr., is—one of the best in the middleweight division. He made his professional appearance last September and he has fought and won seven battles since. He is just under 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 152 pounds—all beautifully proportioned bone, muscle and sinew. There isn't an ounce of fat on him. It was of Roosevelt, his pet pupil, that Mike Donovan said, "he's a great in-fighter. He likes to get close and punch." Young Mike shines at in or out-fighting. He knows every trick of the game. His speed is bewildering. He punches with deadly precision and has a knock-out in either hand, something rare, despite the claims of press agents. He has courage and confidence, and his father plans to carry him along slowly, until he gets the experience to meet the top notch middleweights upon their own ground. "I trained him as an athlete, never thinking he'd want to fight," said Mike, sr., with a shake of his head, "but I guess it's in the blood. The Donovans are all fighters. The boy knows as much of the game as his daddy. He is physically perfect. He neither drinks nor uses tobacco and he is clean and straight." Mike, jr., is as likable a chap as you want to meet. He is bashful almost to shyness. His father is his pal, but when not helping at the New York Athletic club gymnasium, he is to be found at home helping his mother about the house. "I'm glad dad let me fight. I'm half as good as he was, I'll be satisfied," says the boy. And if he is half the fighter his game cock dad was, Mike, jr., will be better than half the pugs setting by today.

"Fifty Years Ago, When Golden Wedding Rye Was Young"

A whiskey made like Golden Wedding can never be commonplace. Its mellow, mild flavor, its wonderful smoothness, is the result of our years of good whiskey making. That's why Golden Wedding is demanded by the knowing ones.

Finch's Golden Wedding Bottled in Bond is distilled by special formula and method, perfected to keep in all the original flavor and quality in their natural purity.

That is why it is different from all ordinary whiskeys.

It is a pure, straight whiskey, aged and matured in wood under government supervision.

But it is the Golden Wedding distillation that brings to you the rare quality, free from all undesirable after-effects.
