Charlton Must Go Back To Italy To Face The Charge of Killing Wife

Porter Charlton and the scene of the murder in Lake Como, Italy.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—Porter Charlton must go back to Italy and stand trial for the murder of his wife, who was drowned in Lake Como three years ago. The supreme court thus ended the controversy which has been waged in the courts of this country over his extradition ever since his arrest in New Jersey. Charlton was a bank clerk in New York, his father, Paul Charlton, a classmate of ex-President Taft, being a federal judge. On a tour through Italy Charlton took his wife for a row on Lake Como and came back alone, it being charged he drowned her. He was captured in this country but fought extradition and set up a claim of insanity. The supreme court in passing on the case admits there is "impressive evidence" of insanity but decides Charlton must go back to Italy and face trial.

The news of Charlton's defeat in the United States supreme court recalls the sensational murder of Mrs. Porter Charlton which mystified the authorities of two continents.

The body of Mrs. Charlton was discovered in a trunk that had been sunk in Lake Como, where the couple had gone to spend their honeymoon. An immediate search was begun for the murderer. Failure to find the 21-year-old husband led to the advancement of many theories. The father believed that his son, too, had been murdered.

The mystery was cleared, however, when Charlton arrived in Hoboken direct from Italy. That night he penned a confession which was published broadcast. In part it read: "My wife and I lived happily together, but she had an uncontrollable temper, and so had I. On the night of the murder she had the worst outbreak of temper I ever saw. I told her to keep quiet or I would make her keep quiet. Then she had another outbreak. I took up a wooden mallet, with which I had been repairing a table, and hit her on the head and body two or three times. At midnight I put the body in a trunk, dragged it to a small pier near the house and threw it overboard." Following the confession an international controversy arose over the delivery of the prisoner by the United States to the Italian authorities. Delay for several months followed diplomatic exchanges between the two nations. The then secretary of state, Knox, finally after a thorough examination of the treaty rights existing between the two countries agreed to give up the murderer.

NURSES HERE--AND PRETTY ONES, TOO

Forty-three of the best looking young nurses to be found in the state are in Tacoma. Think of that, young men, and you running around here in robust health when you might be laid up sick-abled. Good thing that not much has been said about this state convention of Washington nurses at Tacoma hotel this week. Otherwise there would have been the worst epidemic in history of typhoid, brain fever, angina pectoris and heart trouble generally. It makes most any fellow want to be sick to go over and take a look at this group. For two days now the state board has been examining the girls to see if they are competent. All are graduate nurses and most of them usually pass the test of the state.

Simultaneously an examination is being held at Spokane. The four examiners, Mrs. Mary P. Hawley, Seattle; Miss Ella A. Wilkinson, Bellingham; Miss Helen K. Lester, Spokane; and Miss Anna T. Phillips, Tacoma, divided up two in each city for the annual examination. The young ladies are put through a written test on 10 different subjects all bearing on the one idea of how to restore the sick to health. This program is now reduced down to a science. For the nurse is really taking the place of a doctor in many diseases today. While the two work together, the fact is the nurse is the big end of the combination in most of the cases where both are called. And these 43 girls from all over Western Washington want the state to give them a diploma to show they are up to the highest standard. They can go on nursing without but the state license is a badge of prestige and efficiency. The examination closed last night and today the convention is attending to routine business and listening to discussions on subjects of interest.

SEATTLE OFFICER WOUNDED

SEATTLE, June 11.—An 18-year-old highwayman will probably die from bullet wounds received last night when he fought off his captors, and City Detective G. H. Humphrey is dangerously, although not fatally wounded, as a result of the struggle. The highwayman, Abe Turner, tried to hold up the conductor of the Beacon Hill car line at the end of the line. Detectives Humphrey and Jones had been stationed at the end of the line, because of numerous street car hold-ups recently. When Turner appeared, the officers commanded him to submit to arrest. Instead, the youth began firing. He shot down Detective Humphrey and was in turn wounded by Detective Jones.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Rest, fresh air and well-cooked, nourishing food do help many persons suffering with Lung Trouble. But in many cases the disease is only temporarily "arrested," and something more is needed. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine for Throat and Lung Troubles and has brought about many complete recoveries—in many cases where the surroundings were not ideal. Judging by the many reports of recoveries received, we believe it should be used in every case of Lung Trouble. A remarkable case follows: Weidon, Ill. "My Dear Sir: Through your instrumentality I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 4, 1904, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia, which developed into Consumption. In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks, my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 163 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching there alive. "On July 14, 1906, I began taking Eckman's wonderful remedy for Consumption. Today I weigh 158 pounds. I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator." (Affidavit) ARTHUR WEBB. (Above abbreviated much on request.) Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upholding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by Owl Drug Co., 904 C St., and French Drug Co., 13th and Pacific. Little Lame Girl Whom Dr. Lorenz Cured is Now Princess of Her Own Home

LOLITA ARMOUR. LAKE FOREST, Ill., June 11.—Little Lolita Armour—do you remember her? She's the daughter of J. Ogden Armour. And he's King of Meat, Grandee of Grain and Emperor of Refrigeration. But that isn't what makes Lolita famous.

Lolita is the little girl who was born lame and never walked a step until the great Dr. Lorenz came from Vienna and worked a miracle with his hands, putting her hip bone in the place where nature had forgot to put it. Now she is well and strong and happy, a beautiful girl of 16, who limps ever so little, but lives free from pain and full of the joy of youth in the paradise her father has made for her. And this summer she is particularly happy. For she is a princess, ruling over her own principality. Father and Mother Armour are in Europe, and in their absence this bright little lass, who but lately was a helpless cripple, is managing Melody Farm, the country estate of the Armours, out on the prairie to the west of Lake Forest.

To know what that means you should see Melody Farm! Many a really, truly princess has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upholding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by Owl Drug Co., 904 C St., and French Drug Co., 13th and Pacific. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

a far humbler principality. Most princesses, too, haven't much to do but wear their coronets. But little Miss Lolita has a job on her hands. To begin with, there's the place. King Daddy calls it just a "country place" that he started to build for his little girl when he was so happy because the doctor cured her. But there are European kings and queens who would be glad to trade their peacocks palaces for it. They say that $2,000,000 went into this beautiful white marble villa. And it doesn't look at all as if it ever had anything to do with pork. And it's all so lovely and restful and harmonious in form and color you can't help thinking that you yourself would feel at home there when the strangeness wore off. The surroundings are so cool and the corridors, and clean, white walks, and fountains playing, and green things growing, and big libraries and picture galleries, and music rooms, and dining rooms, and conservatories, and cozy dens, and luxurious baths, and dainty bedrooms without end. And Princess Lolita looks after it all and sees that the servants keep everything in order, that the guests are entertained, that the larder is stocked and the tradesmen are paid. That is but the beginning. For you must know that King Daddy went into the miracle business himself when Dr. Lorenz got through. He undertook to build Lolita's principality out of a swamp. Nearly seven years now scores of workmen have toiled to rear outbuildings and walls and terraces and pergolas and pavilions, to dredge sloughs for a lovely, winding lake full of islands and swans, to make sunken gardens and fish ponds and flower gardens and vegetable gardens and greenhouses to plant shrubs, orchards and forest trees, to build roads and bridges and cottages and to drain and cultivate 1,000 acres of farm land.
